Two Army Generals Suspended

Pending Inquiry Of Allegations They Used Influence In Contract Awards

WASHINGTON, July 16 — (AP) — The army today suspended its quartermaster general and the chief of the chemical corps because of evidence turned up by a Senate committee investigating alleged influence in army contract awards.

Those relieved of duty were: Maj. Gen. Herman Feldman, 57, who enlisted as a private 42 years ago and rose through the ranks to head the army's quartermaster section.

Maj. Gen. Alden Harry Waitt, 56, who has served most of his 26 years in the army as a chemical warfare specialist.

Secretary of the Army Gordon Gray, who announced the suspensions, said in a statement that a Senate investigating committee "has evidence which indicates that General Waitt improperly furnished personnel data to an individual not in the military service and who was not entitled to receive such data; and that General Feldman furnished to a contractor's representative procurement information under circumstances which appear irregular."

Lack of Judgment

Gray said that he was "not attempting to draw conclusions on the basis of an incomplete investigation" but that he had ordered the officers' release pending the outcome of a complete inquiry by the inspector general of the army.

He acted, he said, "because evidence secured to date indicates that each officer had exhibited a lack of that judgement and sense of propriety which must be expected of persons in their position."

The secretary added that "each officer would be given ample opportunity for a full hearing."

Shortly after Gray's announcement, Waitt left the Pentagon saying he had no comment at that time. Feldman, reached by telephone later, also said he had no statement.

The suspension order first was disclosed by Chairman Hoey (D-NC) of the Senate Expenditures subcommittee which has set out to find out about persons "who hold themselves out as peddlers of influence" in obtaining government contracts, with particular attention to large commission fees.

Touched Off Last Month

The Senate probe was touched off by a story last month in the New York Herald Tribune about a contract that James V. Hunt, a former officer in the quartermaster corps, had with Paul Grindle, a Framingham, Mass., furniture manufacturer.

Grindle was quoted as saying he gave Hunt a $1,000 fee, to be followed by $500 monthly payments for a year, plus 5 percent of the gross on any government contract he received. Grindle said Hunt had mentioned several government officials, implying he had considerable influence.

Hunt denied ever trying to sell "influence." He said his services were an aid to small businessmen.

Both Feldman and Waitt were listed by Grindle as among those Hunt had mentioned as contacts in the army. Both officers denied "influence" figured in the award of contracts.

In Another Probe

Waitt also figured in another Capitol Hill probe three years ago when the old Senate War Investigating committee conducted its spectacular inquiry into operations of the munitions combine of Murray and Henry Garsson and its dealing with former Rep. Andrew May (D-Ky), then chairman of the House Military Affairs committee. The Garssons and May later were convicted on war fraud charges.

In his testimony before the Senate group, Waitt acknowledged that he had attended a wedding party for Murray Garsson's daughter in New York on a trip for which the government footed his $36 travel bill.

The committee also was told Garsson paid hotel expenses for Waitt and other guests, but the general contended that the trip in January 1944 was necessary for the war effort and that the wedding party was only incidental.

The convention ended for the juniors with a picnic and wiener roast Saturday noon at Liberty park with a large crowd attending.

Friday Night's Session

J. E. Cooper, director of rural mails, post office department, Washington, D. C., was the principal speaker at a banquet at St. Patrick's school hall at 6:30 o'clock Friday evening, with about 250 attending. Mr. Cooper, once a rural mail carrier himself, expressed his pleasure in attending the convention in Sedalia, and termed it highly successful.

Mr. Cooper told of several humorous experiences in the postal department which he had encountered, but also took a serious view on some current national problems. He stated that he thought a depression could be avoided if the people of the country would exercise wise planning in their personal economies, which would in turn have a beneficial effect on the national economy, and suggested that a more optimistic viewpoint be taken on events in the future. Mr. Cooper said that he sympathized with the administration and Congress in their tremendous responsibility of governing the country.

Mr. Cooper was introduced by Paul Benson, of Smithton, a national association committeeman. Later in the evening, he was pre-

Missouri Highway Patrol is Looking for 31 Young Men

JEFFERSON CITY, July 16—(AP)—The Missouri State Highway Patrol is looking for 31 bright, sturdy young men.

That's the number needed to build up the state police force to the maximum called for under a new law. It raises from 229 to 260 the top strength of the uniformed personnel.

And the new men will be offered a new salary range—from $250 a month up, depending on rank. The salary schedules apply to all uniformed officers in the patrol. But they don't take effect until Oct. 14, when the bill becomes law.

Meanwhile, Col. David Harrison, patrol superintendent, would like to get his recruits lined up and trained.

They'll get a training period before they're assigned to probationary work under the watchful eyes of experienced men. The specifications for Missouri's patrol troopers are rigid:

They must be between 21 and 33 years of age at the time they're appointed and must have the equivalent of a high school education. They can't be less than five feet, eight inches tall nor more than six feet, three.

Physical and mental examinations must be passed.

Missouri reportedly has one of the finest state police forces in the country.

Mayor Axton, Parsons, Kas., Is Suspended

Action Taken by State Supreme Court Saturday

TOPEKA, Kas., July 16—(AP)—The Kansas Supreme Court today suspended Vernon C. Axton as Mayor of Parsons, Kas.

The suspension was ordered pending outcome of a suit by Kansas Attorney General Harold R. Fatzer to oust Axton on charges of misconduct in office.

The court's ruling on the attorney general's request for Axton's suspension came quickly after a 90-minute hearing. Fatzer argued the state's case and Ed Rooney, Topeka attorney, presented Axton's defense.

"Sufficient grounds have been shown for the granting of the motion and it would be in the public interest for such an order to be made," said the court in announcing its decision.

Appoint Acting Successor

State statutes call for the Parsons city commission to appoint a person to fill the office of mayor temporarily, the attorney general said.

The temporary mayor will serve until Axton is cleared and returned to office by the court or until the next regular election, Fatzer added.

Axton has until Aug. 6 to file an answer to the attorney general's ouster petition.

Fatzer charges Axton with misconduct on two counts. He alleges Axton failed to suppress gambling and illegal liquor sales and that Axton reappointed Frank A. Williams chief of police with the knowledge Williams had been extorting money from gamblers and bootleggers for protection of their illegal enterprises.

Dismissed by Commission

Williams was dismissed by the Parsons city commission July 7 at Fatzer's request.

Axton has denied any knowledge of payoffs or illegal activities in Parsons.

Rooney told the court today the case is an outgrowth of a bitter campaign in the Parsons city election last April.

He said most of the affidavits supporting the state's case come from "persons who were opposed to Mayor Axton in the April election and who, paradoxically, represent the law violation element."

Ray Lippard to Speak at Conference

Ray Lippard, 1842 South Barrett avenue, has accepted Gov. Forrest Smith's invitation to attend a state-wide conference for fire-prevention to be held in Jefferson City on September 12.

Mr. Lippard is scheduled to make a speech, "Proper Publicity for Fire Prevention and Civic Cooperation," during the program.

Child 'Deaded' Grocer, He Tells Officers

SAN FRANCISCO, July 16—(AP)—"I deaded him."

That was seven-year-old Teddy Moreno's baby talk way of saying he had killed a man.

Teddy, only 30 inches tall, carried a note for his mother to the corner grocery:

"Please send $1 nice hamburger. Thank you."

Police Inspector Al Nelder said this is what happened:

Fred Throckmorton, 67, operator of the store, went to the meat counter to fill the order.

Teddy wandered behind the counter. He saw a gun lying there—a gun Throckmorton kept for protection. He picked it up.

"The man said 'Look out'," Teddy told police.

It Went Off

"I said 'Does it go off?' and then I pulled the trigger. It worked hard. Then it went off. The pop gun made a noise like a firecracker.

"The man fell down. I deaded him."

The grocer's wife, Tomma, told police she heard the shot and "a scuffling of feet that sounded like kids." She ran into the store from their adjoining living quarters and found her husband dying on the floor. A bullet had penetrated his chest.

Some time afterward, Teddy's mother telephoned police and said her boy knew something about the shooting. Questioned, Teddy told police a strange man had shot the grocer after he protested against the man's grabbing Teddy's $1 bill. The boy even led police to a neighborhood bar and pointed out a man he said had done the shooting.

Sister Told On Him

But then his four-year-old sister, who had accompanied him to the store, said:

"Teddy pulled the trigger."

The boy then readily admitted the shooting.

The boy, oldest child in a family of five, was turned over to juvenile authorities who were undecided what to do with him.

His father, John Moreno, said: "People like that grocer shouldn't leave guns like that around for kids to get hold of."

Accounting Of Funds Requested

Charge Rep. Irving And Two Others Diverted Union Funds to Own Use

KANSAS CITY, July 16—(AP)— Charges that Rep. Leonard Irving, Missouri Democrat, and two other men had diverted labor union funds to their own use were contained today in a petition for an accounting.

Irving, elected last November in President Truman's home district, is president and business agent of the Hod Carriers, Building, and Common Laborers' Union of America, (AFL) Local No. 264.

Named with him in the petition filed by 85 members of the union, were Roy E. Livingston, treasurer and financial secretary, and Alvin Butcher, corresponding and recording secretary.

An alleged decrease of $37,000 in the union's treasury within five or six months was cited by an attorney as one of the reasons for filing the petition.

Paul Barnett, representing the union members bringing the suit, said:

"According to reports made in open meeting of the union, the bank balance in the treasury dropped from about $98,000 in December, 1948, or January, 1949, to about $61,000 in May, 1949, notwithstanding a large income from initiations and dues. The members want to know what caused such tremendous expenses in so short a time."

The 14-page petition, filed in circuit court here, alleged that the defendants and other members of the executive board conspired "to divert funds of the local union to their own use and the use of the defendants severally, and to various purposes not authorized by the local union or its members x x x."

General Denial

In Washington the congressman issued a general denial of the allegations. Shown a copy of a wire story about the suit, he told the Kansas City Star:

"All of these things I have read about are untrue. There has been a small clique working against me as long back as 1940."

Livingston, the 32-year-old full-time treasurer, was the first of the three reached for comment.

"We don't have anything to worry about," he said. "Our books are in good shape."

Saying he believed the 85 plaintiffs were "disgruntled members," he added:

"We have 1,800 members, and no one can satisfy all of them."

Temporary Order Signed

Child's Left Leg Is Paralyzed

Linda Sue Clark, two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed C. Clark, 167 South Autumn avenue, is paralyzed in her left leg, below the knee.

Linda became ill July 4, and was taken to the University hospital at Columbia, July 7, then as a poliomyelitis suspect. Mr. Clark quoted doctors as saying that in all probability it was only temporary polio in Linda's case.

Mr. Clark said that his daughter would remain in the hospital for at least another week before bringing her home. He said it would be some time before she would be able to walk, and that she would have to wear a brace.

Mr. Clark is employed at Esser's Hardware and Sporting Goods store on West Main street. The family have resided in Sedalia about six weeks, coming here from Springfield, Mo.

Labor Leader, A. F. Whitney, Died Saturday

Gained Notice in 1946 Feud With President Truman

CLEVELAND, July 16—(AP)—Death came today to A. F. Whitney, 76, labor leader and political liberal, at the age of 76.

He had gained his greatest public notice in his celebrated 1946 feud with President Truman. But he was Mr. Truman's most prominent labor backer in the last election.

The tall, broad-shouldered man with a plume of white hair had been president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen since 1928. His successor will be named by the brotherhood's eight directors, probably within the next ten days.

A heart attack, early this morning at his home, caused Whitney's death. He had spent a full day at his office yesterday and was expecting to attend a grand lodge (headquarters) picnic today.

Survivors

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Dorothy May Whitney; two sons, Gen. Joseph L. Whitney of the U. S. Air Force and Everett A. Whitney of Chicago; a daughter, Mrs. Richard J. Olson, also of Chicago; and two sisters, Mrs. Charles Degarmo of Early, Ia., and Mrs. Etta Benson of Staples, Minn.

Message From Truman

CLEVELAND, July 16—(AP)—A message from President Harry S. Truman to the widow of Alexander F. Whitney, deceased president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, follows:

"A fearless and faithful champion of human rights has been lost to the American scene in the sudden taking of Mr. Whitney.

"Happily, to the last he was active in a life prolonged in the full summit of its powers many years beyond the average. Although a hard fighter in any cause he considered just, he came through his many battles singularly free of the spirit of vindictiveness or revenge.

"He saw all things in their due proportion and became in a high degree the exemplar of the philosopher's teaching that a foolish consistency is the hobgoblin of little minds.

"To you and to all his sorrowing family I offer the assurance of heart felt sympathy."

Fraternity Has Sign to Get Work For College Men

BOSTON, July 16—(AP)—A six-dollar sign may pay for five futures.

It hangs outside a red brick Beacon street house—home of a Boston university fraternity—and reads:

"1949 college graduates available — 1 accountant, 1 public relations-publicity man, 1 management trainee, 1 economist, 1 marketing major—inquire within."

The five available, who said the sign cost them $6 are Arthur Petlock, Springfield; Jack Crane, Stoughton; Sherman Shapiro, New Haven, Conn.; Irving Wolkow and Kenneth Kopel, both of Boston.

It's only been out a few days and Shapiro says he has his job—as a management trustee.

Governor's Day At Fair On August 24

Governor's Day and, incidentally, Kansas City Day, at the Missouri State Fair here will be Wednesday, August 24, and on that day Governor Forrest Smith will take in the fair, visit with his fellow Missourians and participate in certain of the day's events.

In the forenoon, Governor Smith will present a special award to the highest-scoring baby girl in the blue-ribbon and nine-point health examination event. The governor will also receive the blue-ribbon country-cured ham, which will be presented to him in an appropriate ceremony by the winner of the ham event.

In the county-exhibit division, the governor will present a sweepstakes plaque to the county in Missouri which makes the most outstanding exhibit of livestock in the 4-H club division, including the junior beef and junior dairy show.

Crowning Function

The governor's crowning function in the day's program will be his presentation of the Governor Forrest Smith silver trophy to the winner of the $5,000 Big-5 Pace on the mile track in front of the grandstand in the afternoon. The afternoon's racing program will embrace four big races, with purses totaling $30,000.

Many state officials and employes from Jefferson City, as well as a huge attendance from outstate and from Kansas City, are expected on Wednesday.

Mother Wants Son's Body Brought Here

Rich Californian, Name Unknown, Furnishes Money

PORTLAND, Ore., July 16—(AP)—A big-hearted Californian with a passion for anonymity arranged for the burial of a 7-year-old hero today.

It was Thursday when 7-year-old Jacob Charles Sumners, one of the six children of transient berry pickers, heard a little boy yell that his foot was caught in rocks of the Sandy river.

Little Jacob, wading on the other side, started splashing across the river to help. The mid-stream current caught him.

The Sumners family, formerly of Sedalia, later of Dresden, and more recently of near Lincoln, left that place a couple of years ago. Mr. Sumners' mother resides about seven or eight miles southeast of Lincoln now. Mrs. Sumners' family name, before her marriage, was Burnett.

The body was restored to the dazed parents, who had stopped their trailer on the Sandy banks to let their children cool off. The family had just $25.

"I don't know what we'll do," said Mrs. Joe Sumners next day. "We'd like to bury him in the family plot near Sedalia, Mo. I hate to leave him alone out here."

Asked the Cost

Last night a sport-shirted man in his mid-thirties strode into the police station and ordered a reporter:

"Find out what it costs to send the kid back home."

Oregon Journal reporter Jack Ostergren, who was working on something completely different blinked.

The man jabbed a finger at the newspaper story telling about the destitute family. "Find out what it costs," he demanded. "When people are in trouble, someone's got to help them."

Reporter Ostergren called up the mortuary. The trip to Sedalia—for the body and an escort—would be $225.53.

The man grabbed out a checkbook, signed his name, and threw it down. "You fill out the amount," he said. "Just leave me out of this."

No Name or No Money

Ostergren hastily began the usual reporter's questions. The man got mad.

"I'm from California, up for the races. I've had a few hard knocks myself and I know what it is. That check's good—it won't bounce. But I don't want my name used. If you use it, I'll stop payment on the check."

With that he marched out. Today bank sources confirmed that the check, drawn on the San Mateo branch of the Bank of America, was good.

Reporters took the check to the Sumners today. The father, whose money was now down to $2, grabbed hold of his trailer and burst into tears.

Mrs. Sumners will start for Sedalia with the body of her son at 8:30 a. m. (PST) Monday.

Council Meeting Monday Night

The city council meets in regular session, in the city hall, at 7:30 o'clock Monday night, Mayor Julian H. Bagby, presiding.

O. B. Poundstone to Talk to Optimists

O. B. Poundstone, linotype operator of the Sedalia Democrat and former mayor of Sedalia will be the guest speaker at the Sedalia Optimist club Tuesday noon. His topic will be: "My Past Fifty Years In and Around Newspapers."

Mr. Poundstone has had extensive experience in the newspaper business having worked on papers in Columbia, Kansas City and Sedalia. Poundstone stated that he would attempt to capture some of the excitement and experiences of a newspaperman, and tell of his association with the newspapers, and newspapermen that flourished in Sedalia in years gone by.

Woman Who Advertised for Husband Has Ended Her Quest

SALT LAKE CITY, July 16—(AP)—Mrs. Elena Lebaron, the divorcee and mother of eight who made the nation's headlines recently when she advertised for a husband, has ended her quest.

She is now Mrs. Robt. Shrewsbury.

The couple revealed today that they eloped to Evanston, Wyo., last week and were married. They now are planning a four-month honeymoon to Arizona.

Sure, Shrewsbury said, they are going to take the children.

"What's a honeymoon without kids?" she said, surveying his new flock of eight.

He added that eight may not be enough.

"Yes," he said, "I think Elena and I will have some additions to the family."

Shrewsbury is a 35-year-old Salt Lake City carpenter.

Divorced himself, he is the father of four children.

Shrewsbury, who fell in love with Mrs. Lebaron when he saw her picture in the newspapers when she first advertised for a husband, averred he is going to keep his new wife in the kitchen.

To give weight to his words, he and Elena held a little ceremony and burned the more than 500 letters Elena received from bachelors all over the world.

Link Name of Princess and Girl Friend With Same Man

LONDON, July 16—(AP)—The question of whether Princess Margaret Rose and her Arizona girl friend, Sharman Douglas, might fall in love with the same man was raised here today.

Noel Whitcomb, the Daily Mirror columnist, wrote that U. S. Ambassador Lewis W. Douglas had cut down on the social life of Sharman, his 20-year-old daughter, in fear of just such a situation.

A Buckingham palace spokesman observed:

"Naturally there will be no comment from here."

The ambassador's household likewise was not talking publicly about the story. The U. S. Embassy was closed for the week end.

Sharman shines as one of the brightest stars in London's younger social set and is a favorite of British royalty. Princess Margaret, now 19, captivated Sharman when she arrived with her parents in 1947.

"She's so friendly and cute," Sharman explained.

Sharman herself is right cute and friendly.

The royal family likes her. The Duchess of Kent once was overheard describing her: "A sweet child—and unspoiled."

Invariably, when the spotlight's glare is upon Sharman, she murmurs: "What would they think in Arizona?"

She and Margaret often go to the theater together and backstage also, to mingle with the artists. Word got around that they and 10 other girls danced the French can-can in the ambassador's house at a party for 250 persons the other night, with the standard flinging up of skirts to show lace-trimmed panties.

Match-makers at times have linked the name of one or the other to that of the Marquess of Milford Haven, young cousin of King George VI. The Marquess of Blanford, 23-year-old cousin of Winston Churchill, is another among their occasional escorts.

Slash In Military Spending

Severe Blow is Dealt Those in Move for Bigger Aviation Force

WASHINGTON, July 16—(AP)—A $1,010,000,000 slash in military spending was voted Friday by the Senate appropriations committee in an action which dealt a severe blow to advocates of a bigger Air Force.

The cut the committee recommended to the Senate was from a total of $15,900,000,000 in cash and contract authority previously voted by the House for operating the Army, Navy and Air Forces during the current fiscal year, which began July 1.

Senator Elmer Thomas (D-Okla) told reporters that an additional slash of up to $600,000,000 in funds for stockpiling materials may be recommended before the Senate acts.

As for the slashes voted Friday: Thomas said that Secretary of Defense Johnson will be directed —with his prior agreement—to cut $433,000,000 from the funds of the three services in any manner he wishes.

Cut Air Force Funds

In addition the committee voted a $799,000,000 slash in Air Force funds approved by the House to raise the Air Forces from 48 groups recommended by the President to 58 groups urged by air-minded congressmen.

Thomas said the committee also decided to end the program of one-year enlistments, permitted under the draft act, by simply cutting off these funds with a savings of $50,000,000.

These three cuts add up to $1,282,000,000 but Thomas said the net reduction from the House bill would be only $1,010,000,000. He explained it this way: The House made some decreases in some items in the bill while increasing others. The Senate committee restored the decreases but then voted to tell Secretary Johnson to cut $433,000,000 in any manner he chose.

Prediction Of Balance

Thomas flatly predicted to reporters after two closed sessions of the full Senate appropriations committee that "the budget this year will be balanced."

He said a previous slash of about 10 per cent in the European Recovery Program plus an expected cutback of funds would bring government spending and income into balance.

Under the broad-termed order to Secretary Johnson for saving $433,000,000 Thomas said it would be possible to cut all of it from any one of the services—Air Force, Army or Navy.

"But we know he won't do that," Thomas added dryly, "or he never would come back up here again."

Thomas explained that the novel economy proposal had been discussed with Johnson. Its total indicated some agreement had been reached privately between Johnson and senators as to where the cut swould be made.

Thomas said the Senate committee also approved "by a close margin" a House provision that would permit the Army to buy oleomargarine. For many years the military bills have carried a rider that required funds be spent for butter and not for substitutes.

"Secretary Johnson approves the bill in every particular," Thomas added.

The cutback of $50,000,000 funds for one-year enlistments would mean a gradual end to a feature of the Selective Service Act.

That allowed youths 18 years and older, who might be drafted, to volunteer for a 12 month term and afterward continue in the National Guard or other active reserve organization." Navy and Air Force officials testified this was an expensive program.

Thomas said he hopes another cutback of up to $600,000,000 can be made in some $835,000,000 of cash and contract authority voted by Congress for stockpiling funds in previous appropriations this year.

These are funds to acquire surplus stocks of tin, copper, lead, zinc and many other items that would be needed in case of a war or emergency.

Because other senators had handled these items, Thomas said the full committee decided to ask those groups to reconsider the stock-piling funds and limit them to "a one-year basis or about $200,000,000".

"We already have a billion dollars worth of stock-piled supplies on hand," Thomas said.

President Truman Suggests Business Should Cut Prices

By James Marlow

WASHINGTON, July 14.—(AP)—President Truman is putting the heat on business, not on labor, to get this country out of its slump

He wants business men to cut prices, but not wages.

He made this true in his report to congress on Monday and in his radio talk last night.

Further, he challenged steel companies to let government fact-finders check on their ability to meet their workers' demands.

Mr. Truman thinks there's reason to worry about the economic illness which the country is suffering now.

One of the main cures he suggests is a cut in prices. Too-high prices, he says, brought on the inflation.

That inflation was bound to bust sooner or later, he says, and it's busted now. His reasoning goes:

Bought What They Needed

When prices soared after the war, people with money to spend bought what they needed, in spite of the prices.

At last they had to begin cutting down on their buying because of the big gap between the prices and their pocketbooks.

So production began to go down. It's still going down. This meant fewer and fewer people needed to produce and more people were made jobless. Unemployment is growing. So—

1. What is needed is more production to make more jobs for more people, although there can't be more production unless people are able to buy what's made.

2. They won't be able to do the necessary buying unless the prices are cut down closer to their ability to buy. Therefore, to encourage buying, prices should be cut down.

Spurs Production

3. The more the buying, the more the need for production of things that people want to buy. And that will mean more people employed to do the producing.

4. But if wages are cut, when prices are cut, then the gap between prices and ability to buy remains the same and people will have too little money to buy the reduced goods.

5. Therefore, to keep up people's ability to buy, wages should not be cut. But—businessmen will lose some of their present profits if they cut prices but not wages.

6. That's all right. The main point is to have people with money to buy goods, since that will encourage production and employment. In the end business men will make sufficient profits through the increased volume of production, or number of items they sell.

Burden on Business

That's what Mr. Truman suggests. It puts the burden on business, not on labor.

For days now a crisis has been developing in the steel industry. Some of the biggest companies have refused to grant the CIO steelworkers' demands for higher wages and other benefits.

The workers threatened to strike. This would mean more unemployment at once. And, if it lasted long, it would be a severe jolt to the whole economy since so many businesses need steel.

To prevent a strike, Mr. Truman asked the CIO and the companies to keep on working while he set up a board of government fact-finders to look into both sides of the argument.

The CIO agreed. The biggest companies refused, telling Mr. Truman this was not a proper move for him to make. They said he should have acted under the Taft-Hartley labor law, which includes steps to forbid the strike.

He told the companies: "Surely, you're not afraid to have your side in this dispute examined in the public interest."

A real fact-finding job would be an examination of the companies' ability to meet the workers' demands. If they reported the companies could do it, this would put strong public pressure on them to give in to what the steelworkers wanted.

Names Board Of Three on Steel Dispute

Asks Report in 45 Days as to Recommendations

WASHINGTON, July 16—(AP)—President Truman late Friday named a three-man board to seek a settlement of the steel labor dispute.

Carroll R. Daugherty, professor of business economics at Northwestern University, heads it. Other members are Samuel I. Rosenman, former special counsel to the President, and David L. Cole, Patterson, N. J. labor relations expert.

In letters to the three members, the President expressed hope that they will convene at the earliest possible time.

Asks For Report

He asked them to report to him within 45 days from tomorrow "with your recommendations to the parties as to fair and equitable terms of settlement."

Daugherty has been a professor of economics at Northwestern U., Evanston, Ill., since 1946.

During the first Roosevelt administration, Daugherty was an economist with NRA on labor conditions in the iron and steel industry.

Daugherty is 50 years old.

Cole, 47-year old lawyer, has been a lecturer of labor relations and chairman of the New Jersey Board of Mediation.

In 1944, Cole was chairman of a War Labor Board panel that sat in disputes involving the steel industry.

Since 1936, he has been counsel of the Silk and Rayon Manufacturers Association and Master Weavers Institute since 1933.

Rosenman, 53, was one of the original Roosevelt "brain trust" and one time member of the New York legislature.

He was serving as a justice of the New York supreme court when Franklin D. Roosevelt called him to Washington in 1943 to take over the full time job of special counsel to the President. He held this post under President Truman until he retired in 1946 to resume the practice of law in New York City.

County Courthouse in the Olden Days Was Never Idle

(By the State Historical Society of Missouri at Columbia, Floyd Floyd C. Shoemaker, Sec'y)

Usually the first, and sometimes the only public building built in pioneer Missouri counties was the courthouse. As such it served its duty as the official mill for county business, but when court was not in session, the courthouse never stood idle. Its uses were general rather than specific and everything from teaching school to dancing was held within the hallowed walls of justice. The door was never closed.

Missouri courthouses have not always been the imposing edifices they are now. Usually when the county seat was designated, a private home served as a meeting place for court until one could be built. In Linn county Judge Clark held his first court at the homeof John Holland, an official. The court convened in a room warmed by a fireplace with a smokey chimney. The smoke was almost intolerable and the good judge and attorneys wept copiously over cases which were not at all sad. It was discovered that the trouble with the chimney was that the back wall was full of gaps and cracks. Right in the middle of this all-important first session, the back wall fell out and the judge adjourned the meeting —with tears in his eyes.

All Sorts of Meetings

Dances, fancy balls, spelling bees, singing classes, and all denominations of church meetings kept the courthouse open day and night. It was the center of the community. Old people of the settlement went there to discuss their affairs and learn news of the outside world from visiting attorneys. Little children went there to learn their ABC's, and at night when all activity had ceased, it often served as a resting place for weary travelers. Indeed, its doors swung on easy hinges.

The uses of the courthouse were not always so dignified, but just as necessary. The story is told in Montgomery county that the first courthouse in Lewiston was a log and puncheon-floored building which was watched over by a Mr. Kibbe. Mr. Kibbe put it to good use when court was not in session —he stabled his sheep in it. However, care was always taken to drive out the sheep and sweep the house clean before each meeting of court.

In the prairie counties, where the great green-head flies made life almost unbearable for men and animals alike during the daytime, the old courthouse was used as a refuge for the sheep, cattle and horses that were driven from the prairies after sun-up by the flies.

Not Easily Discouraged

It took more than that to discourage the settlers of our state from dispensing juctice. These were casual days, when the records of the court were carried around in official's breast pockets, written on various scraps of paper, the backs of envelopes, and anything else available.

On very special nights the old courthouses were illuminated with light and the gay strains of a waltz swung through the moonlight. But even more wonderful was its use by the traveling montebanks, the delightfully wicked "show people," who got the consent of the court to use the "hallowed and never-to-be desecrated court room" for the diversion of the fun-loving public.

But alas, in time the courthouses lost a part of their glamor, for officials discovered flagrant abuses, and in Lawrence county, at least, the court barred the use of the court house to certain persons, such as members of traveling shows, and ordered that never again should its sacred walls be forced to echo the strains of dance music.

This marked the passage of an era in the lives of courthouses, for the sheriff of Lawrence county was told to order a key or the building and keep it locked except for uses of churches, schools, or political pow-wows. Thus entered the key into the carefree existence of the courthouse, and while people love to loaf, gossip and attend to business in its shelter, the look that said, "Come in stranger, and rest yourself," was gone.

Statisticians Dream of Luscious Unimals

By Lawrence N. Eldred

CHICAGO, July 16 — (AP) — There's a new kind of critter roaming the economic pastures these days.

It's the "unimal," a brainfed hybrid invented to measure the ratio of meat, milk, eggs and poultry to our human population.

The unimal has the head of a beef steer, topped with a roasting chicken's comb. Its forequarters descended from sheep. Its hind legs and the wings on its back came from an egg-laying hen. It carries a milking cow's udder, and its rear third once belonged to a hot, including a healthily curled tail.

This strange addition to the animal kingdom is the brainchild of H. Edward Babcock, of Ithaca, N. Y., and is being raised by a group of livestock, dairy and poultry organizations. The group chairman is R. C. Pollock, of the National Livestock and Meat Board.

Babcock formerly was professor of marketing at Cornell University and general manager of the Grange League Federation, a New York State farm cooperative. He now owns and operates livestock and poultry farms totaling around 800 acres.

The purpose of the unimal is to simplify and reduce multiple-digit figures for easier understanding.

The process lumps together hogs, beef cattle, dairy cattle, sheep and poultry and assigns each a relative statistical value depending on weight and the amount of feed consumed. The resulting composite is called an unimal.

For instance, Babcock finds that this year we have around 206,200,000 unimals producing the so-called refrigerator products —meat, milk and so forth. We have an estimated 146,300,000 persons old enough to eat full rations of such farm products.

Back To 1939

But instead of dealing with huge figures such as those, Babcock reduces them to unimals and discovers we have approximately 1.4 unimals per person. This puts us back to about 1939, down substantially from the peak of 1.9 reached in 1943.

Babcock contends we need a full two unimals per person for adequate diet needs.

Expressed in actual numbers, he compares the productive livestock we have with how much more we need for a population of 150,000,000 as follows:

How much we have: Hogs 55,000,000; beef cattle, 41,200,000; dairy cattle, 37,300,000; sheep, 35,300,000; poultry 468,000,000.

How much more we need: Hogs, 20,000,000; beef cattle, 11,000,000; dairy cattle, 10,000,000; sheep, 8,000,000; poultry 120,000,000.

In addition to diet requirements, he says, if we had the extra livestock American agriculture could better rebuild its soil with animal fertilizers, could bulwark the family-type farm, could set up the best possible food reserve, and could make animal agriculture one of the best guarantees for continued national prosperity and stability.

On this last point, Babcock says 56 per cent of farm income is from livestock and more than half the workers of the nation are engaged in the food industry. He estimates 80 per cent of that half are engaged in the livestock and associated industries.

"At the moment," he says, quite in contrast to war years, this country is worrying about the problem of so-called surplus grain, which will become worse as exports fall off. This grain, when it builds up beyond needed reserves, tends to derpess the market to the point where it will choke off production.

"There are three ways to deal with this 'surplus.' It can be degraded into fuel and burned. It can be hoarded and piled up in dead storage. It can be fed to unimals and converted into the foods we need most.

"We can't work out a clear-cut solution of the problem of surpulses in a hurry. But it is important to everyone—farmers and consumers alike—that the man-unimal ratio be improved."

Army Depot Blast Kills Twelve

PRUEM, Germany, July 16—(AP)—A French army depot exploded Friday night, killing 12 Germans, injuring scores more, and leaving hundreds homeless in the vicinity of this west German town.

German police said the death toll may go higher.

The entire northern part of the town was destroyed, police said. Pruem is about 45 miles west of Coblenz and near the junction of the German, Belgian and Luxembourg frontiers.

Cause of the explosion was not determined, but no sabotage is suspected.

The depot, operated by French occupation forces, was in a former air raid shelter built into a hill.

The depot stored such explosives as TNT and dynamite, but no ammunition was known to be stored there, police said.

They described it as an underground depot about 120 yards long and four yards wide, with two entrances about 70 yards apart. The area was restricted and guarded by Germans under supervision of French officers.

Guards at the depot were reported to have noticed smoke shortly before the blast and sounded a warning, probably averting a greater casualty toll. The blast occurred about 8 p. m. (1 p. m. EST). It was believed a short circuit in an electrical line might have caused the explosion.

It darkened all lights and disrupted telephone connections. Telephone service was partially restored later.

Jail Problem Like Phoenix bird—

Given time, the Pettis County jail problem may emulate the fabled Phoenix bird that lived for 500 years, consumed itself in fire of its own making, then rose in freshness of life from its ashes.

Characteristically the Pettis County grand jury, like so many others the past fifty years, was again confronted with making a recommendation to the people about the delapidated county jail building on South Lamine avenue.

Said the jury: "We recommend that ways and means be devised and provided for the erection of an adequate, safe and modern place of detention for prisoners, insane persons and juveniles."

That meaningful one-sentence assertion has been reiterated so often it is like a drop of water rolling off a duck's back insofar as arousing public interest in a new jail building is concerned.

Nevertheless this present building is a discredit to Pettis county as anyone with fair conscience will allow after an examination of it. The pity is so few citizens are aware of the structural defects. Disheartening as the task is, the Pettis County sheriff and his staff maintain unusual cleanliness about the premises.

The jail is not a fit place for detention of mental patients or juvenile cases. Even though Buena Vista farm affords limited care of such patients out in the county, this is not enough.

Ministers of every church in the county, members of every service club should arrange with the sheriff for a personal inspection of the jail. Then if they do not agree with the recent grand jury's recommendation, let the matter of a new jail drop. If they do agree then a county-wide campaign should begin to "devise ways and means to erect an adequate, safe and modern place of detention for prisoners, insane persons and juveniles."

A Passing Era of Cynicism

If you believe that human conduct is motivated wholly by self-interest, you may classify yourself among the cynics.

These days it is mighty difficult not to be a cynic because we read and hear so much about activities of the numerous pressure groups representing every segment of the nation's social and business life, each striving daily and desperately for exclusive material gains.

There is more awareness of this condition in the present because the world grows and communications expand and become more facile. Yet cynics were snarling and biting over man's selfish status a half century before Christ and no doubt before the actual dawn of civilization.

Before becoming a confirmed cynic one should look about and discover the many good deeds his fellowmen perform daily. Good deeds, unlike evil ones, are not advertised.

The human race may run through cycles of spiritual depression, universal meanness, persecution and all the devil's devices, yet the spark of Divinity in man can never be extinguished. In succeeding cycles it ever flares anew and ever will.

Goring Whose Ox?—

For the past sixteen years it has been a popular pastime of the social planners to beat the power companies over the head with a club. Maybe they needed it a time or two, but even so they have a right to swing an upper cut when they are clipped from behind.

Recently the manager of an Electric Cooperative of Higginsville lambasted the power companies for charging "high rates" to the cooperatives.

The Missouri Public Service came right back with an answer, by telling that they had charged the Cooperative Electric Company 96c for 80 kilowatts of energy, and the Co-op turned around and sold this 96c worth of energy to one of its farmer customers for $4.41—quite a sizeable profit for even a Co-op. We'd like to hear the Co-op's answer to that one.

An Abortive Gambling Crusade—

The one-man gambling crusade by the Rev. Holland B. London, of St. Louis, insofar as Sedalia is concerned, turned out to be somewhat of an abortive enterprise, qualified by one supposition that if there was any commercial gambling going on the gamblers ran to cover for the duration of the grand jury session.

The Rev. Mr. London clung to that extenuation of the merit of his broadsides directed this way.

Winding up its affairs, the Pettis County grand jury reported a dearth of evidence sufficient upon which to return true bills. Not a single person rapped for entrance on the grand jury door with voluntary evidence that they or their neighbors had been unkindly treated by professional gamblers. Even the St. Louis pastor didn't approach the door enthusiastically—he had to be subpoenaed to appear.

The public was certainly on notice that the June grand jury was in session and ready to function. There were some voluntary appearances on other matters—but not on gambling. So, indubitably, the financially stricken, and their sympathizers, must prefer to continue mourning their gambling losses on the curbstone rather than before a grand jury.

One healthy conclusion arrived at individually by the members of the grand jury, even though unspoken, was that Prosecuting Attorney William Brown and Sheriff John Taylor are not going to tolerate wide-open gambling in Sedalia. In accomplishing this purpose, however, they are going to have to have more co-operation in obtaining evidence than they or the recent grand jury had.

Sedalia, Near Heaven

An unusually attractive and informative guide book covering the state of Missouri has been issued by the Missouri Recreation Association. The 168-page brochure contains advertising by communities with emphasis on resort and recreational facilities. It is profusely illustrated. James F. Gamble is editor of the publication which is being distributed by the Division of Resources and Development to persons interested in Missouri vacations.

The booklet devotes two pages of photographs and facts to Sedalia, including this illuminating conclusion:

"There are 101 undeniable good reasons for a move to Sedalia and why Sedalians only half jokingly say:—'Sedalia isn't heaven—it just isn't as high up."

An Elevator For The Court House—

Thirty years made a lot of difference.

In 1919 as a reporter, when I used to climb the stairs to the circuit court room in Pettis County court house, I never once thought about the convenience of an elevator.

But after 30 years while the height of the climb may be the same there's a bit more puffing the last few steps to the court room.

Of course anyone who has served on a grand jury knows about the weight of business transacted by that body, scarcely a moment allowed to day dream (?). Anyhow I slipped in a dream or two about how accommodating an elevator would be for us old men who don't have the wind we used to have. Juryman Herman Bloess just laughs when I say I'm "short-winded."

But no foolin', an elevator for the court house would really be appreciated by young and old. The county court ought to put this on its agenda, especially since the administration is toying with the idea of resuming plans for federal grants on public improvement projects.

Even Senators' Wives Participate in Dixiecrat-Republican Coalition

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON, July 17—Even the senators' wives are embroiled in the Republican-Dixiecrat coalition that now really rules the Senate.

The Senate Ladies Auxiliary, sometimes called the Senate Ladies Luncheon club, is a friendly organization of all Senate wives regardless of politics, which ordinarily is presided over by the wife of the vice president. But since Alben Barkley is a widower and the next Democrat in line—president pro tem of the Senate Kenneth McKeller—is a bachelor, the next ranking wife is Mrs. Millard Tydings of Maryland whose husband was elected to the Senate in 1937.

Mrs. Tydings, daughter of Ex-Ambassador Joe Davies is one of the loveliest ladies in the Senate, and it has always been taken for granted that the wife with the most seniority should be automatically elected. However, the club's bylaws call for an election in case there is no vice president, and this year Mrs. Taft of Ohio, who is as astute as she is charming, saw to it that the bylaws were carried out.

Rather than see her rival, Mrs. Tyding, elected, Mrs. Taft rallied the Republican wives behind a Dixiecrat dark horse—Helen Ellender, wife of the senator from Louisiana. This was contrary to all tradition, since Senator Ellender wasn't elected until 10 years after Tydings.

But, as in the Senate, the G. O. P.-Dixiecrat coalition won and Mrs. Ellender became president of the Ladies' Auxiliary. That's the reason for the social icicles today whenever Mrs. Taft and Mrs. Tydings meet.

Note—Chief activity of the Ladies' Auxiliary is Red Cross work. Once a week the wives don Red Cross Uniforms, meet in two spacious rooms allotted for them in the Senate Office Building. Meanwhile, Senate employes are cramped for lack of space. Yet Senator Ellender, whose wife has charge of the two empty rooms, is blocking a bill to construct a new office building.

Religious Debate In Congress

Most important issue now being discussed in Capitol Hill cloakrooms is the religious fight over federal aid to education. This was brought to a head when Cardinal Spellman hurled the "bigot" charge at Congressman Barden of North Carolina, author of the provision that no money from the education bill be used for any religious school—whether Catholic, Baptist or Methodist.

Ever since, Congressmen's offices have been deluged with mail—on both sides of the question—some of it bitter.

One congressman who met the issue early is Rep. Andrew Jacobs, Indiana Democrat, himself a Catholic, but who has defended Barden against Cardinal Spellman's attack.

Going back to his home town, Indianapolis, some time ago, Jacobs attended a Knights of Columbus meeting where he put the issue of federal education up to a large group of Catholics. After lengthy debate the consensus of opinion was that federal money should not go to parochial schools.

"The only one who disagreed," says Congressman Jacobs, "was the priest. The non-clergy Catholics all felt there was a great danger to the church if federal money was used for church schools. Eventually, the government might dominate the thinking of those schools."

State Over Church

Congressman John McSweeney of Ohio has taken a similar view, writing to Father Edward S. Hannon of Wooster, O., McSweeney argued:

"Although I realize that parents of parochial school children are taxpayers, I know that you will agree with me in that these parents have the freedom of choice between sending their children to a public or a parochial school.

"I wish to point out also that there is always the possibility that parochial schools would lose their identity as such should they receive public funds since public school officials are entrusted wtih the task of establishing educational standards which may run counter to the teachings of the particular church sponsoring parochial schools. This would result in clashes of ideology.

"I firmly believe that a great danger would be encountered by parochial schools should they receive public funds and thereby come under the control of State Boards of Education."

On the other hand, Congressmen Lesinski of Michigan and Kennedy of Massachusetts, both Catholics and both Democratic members of the Education and Labor committee, are endeavoring to bottle the bill in committee and state quite frankly that they are motivated by church opposition.

Congressional Backtrack

Representatives Richard Nixon of California and Harold Velde of Illinois, both Republicans, did some fast backtracking when the House Un-American Activities committee held a showdown, closed-door session of their demands to investigate Federal Judge Samuel Kaufman and the Alger Hiss trial.

In fact, the two congressmen almost tripped over themselves denying that they made such demands though this did not come until after some blunt sermonizing by committee colleagues.

"The charges you are making against this judge are little short of outrageous," crackled Democratic Representative Francis Walter of Pennsylvania, "particularly when you use this committee as a political sounding board. Even if the charges were true, this committee has no business investigating judges to satisfy the political grudges of any of its members."

Nixon and Velde fell back on the old defense of being "misquoted" by the press.

"We never demanded that this committee investigate Judge Kaufman," they claimed.

However, representative Burr Harrison of Virginia pulled out the actual newspaper reports of their attacks of Kaufman.

"Newspapers all over the country," he said, "stated that you did demand an investigation of the judge, speaking as members of this committee. That's pretty conclusive to me."

The two Republicans didn't reply. Nor did they dissent when Chairman John Wood of Georgia, with an angry flourish of his gavel, ruled: "Without objection, we will inform the press that it is not the intention of this committee to investigate Judge Kaufman."

New Drug May Provide Relief For Seasickness Discomfort

By Edwin P. Jordan, M. D.
Written for NEA Service

There is an old saying that the person who is seasick first is afraid he is going to die and after a while is afraid he is not. This may be an exaggeration but certainly no one who has had a real experience with being seasick, airsick, or carsick has any pleasant memories of the occasion.

The fact that many adjust to the motion of ship or airplane and get their "sea legs" is not enough. In one recent study of this subject from Canada, for example, it was reported that a serious problem of airsickness existed during flying training.

Eye Important

In this investigation, men were swung back and forth in different body positions. The frequency of "seasickness" symptoms depended partly on the position of the body when it was swung and partly on the way in which the eyes could be used to keep a sense of position. It was concluded that the inner ear was most important but that the eyes played a big part.

Many attempts have been made to find a drug or medicine which would prevent or at least improve the symptoms of seasickness or airsickness. Recently a drug called dramamine has been tried out with highly promising results.

A study of seasickness and the use of this drug was conducted on soldiers traveling on an army transport to Germany. Without going into the details of the study this drug prevented seasickness in all but two of 134 men and relieved the symptoms in 34 others who had become seasick.

In a companion study of the same drug in the prevention of airsickness the results were not quite so good. In this case the drug seemed to cut down on the number of cases of airsickness, but not to prevent it as successfully as was done with the soldiers traveling on the transport.

Note: Dr. Jordan is unable to answer individual questions from readers. However, each day he will answer one of the most frequently asked questions in his column.

Question —Is saccharine harmfull to the body when taken in coffee or tea?

Answer — No. This question has been carefully investigated and there is no reason to believe that saccharine taken in reasonable amounts even over a long period of time would produce any harmful effects.

Men Who Put Off Marriage May Wind Up Regretting It

Perhaps the men are learning what girls have always known.

That if you put off marriage too long—the cream of the crop has already been skimmed off when you get around to looking for a mate.

Here's a letter from a man who figures that is just exactly what he has done.

"I made the mistake of going to college for eight years and securing two degrees. Then I served a period in the army before looking around for a wife.

"Then I found the cream had all been picked off. I am 29 years old, an average-looking fellow, neither fat or lean, neither rich or poor. But to the girls of 19 and 20 I am too old.

"If I had it to do over I would marry one of the cute ones I knew at 18 and let her work while I went to college."

That's exactly what a lot of young men of his generation have done. Married young and let their wives work while they either finished their educations or got a start in a business or profession.

Got "First Choice"

And maybe they were pretty smart at that. They got the "cream of the crop" — at least in their opinion—for they got first choice of the girls their own age.

And now many of them have safely weathered the lean years and are settling down to rearing families.

This, of course, is a fairly recent problem for men. It used to be that a man waited to marry until he could support a wife—and then usually married a girl considerably younger than himself.

Now that many young men aren't waiting until they can support wives (without their help) the young man who does wait may feel left out in the cold.

That, of course, is exactly the reason so many girls are willing to marry a man before he has completed his education or made a start in the world.

They see other girls marrying young and they figure that they'd better grab a husband before the best ones are all taken.

Now, it seems, men may be facing the same problem. And apparently they'll have to meet it in the same way.

CLIPPED ANGEL

By Clive Grierson Cornish, Copyright, 1949, NEA Service

THE STORY: Mike McTaig, a mining engineer, is investigating the drop in production from the Dark Angel, inherited by Cory Parnell from her father. Mike suspects ore thieves, but they have covered their trail by using a nearby mine as a dummy through which the stolen ore is sold. Mike is just about to give up before he discovers that the Argus is being used. Armed with this knowledge, Mike goes to the Dark Angel and discovers that one of the old drifts of the mine still has a rail line that is being used. Mike follows this tunnel and finally reaches an exit, opening into a disused state highway department garage. Here, Mike finds, trucks haul the stolen ore away to the Argus workings. When Mike tells his discovery to Cory, she says she can't go to see what he is found because she is afraid—she's got claustrophobia—a fear of closed-in places.

XVI

"IT'S crazy," I repeated. "The idea of not being able to go into your own mine because you've got claustrophobia!"

Cory Parnell flushed scarlet. "All right, Mike, I'm a coward. I can't help it. I've tried and tried, but every time I get a few feet past the portal—"

I reached for her hand but she snatched it away. "Cory, you've got me wrong. Claustrophobia's nothing to be ashamed of. Everybody's got something the matter with them. Take me—I'm scared to death of horses."

She brightened up visibly. "Really, Mike?"

I felt better. You hate to see somebody with guts licked by a thing they can't fight.

"What I meant," I said, "was that if people around here know you never go into the mine, how do you expect to keep them on their toes?"

"Because I can trust them."

I groaned. "Cory, don't give me that again. Listen, and I'll tell you what I've been doing."

I gave her the story, leaving out the bit where I nearly got conked off. She heard me out and when she'd thought it over for a few minutes, she came out with something absolutely typical: "Mike, I wish you knew who it was."

Without thinking, I said, "We could find out easily enough. All we'd have to do is sit on the roof of that shed tonight and watch the parade."

"Then let's do it!"

Right then is when I should have put my foot down. I should have pointed out it was risky, unnecessary, and that things had reached the stage where the law should be called in, preferably in the shape of several smart detectives.

I should have told her not to be melodramatic, and generally acted my age.

Instead of that I toyed with a cozy picture of Cory and me sitting close together in the dark for several hours, sharing an adventure, and perhaps the two of us planning our life together. I'll admit I behaved like a romantic idiot—but I liked it.

"Okay," I said, "and any time you'd like a few dozen dragons slain, just say the word."

* * *

LATE that afternoon I said goodby to Uncle Jake and Archie Trask, and told them how sorry I was I hadn't been able to find any ore for them.

I said the same thing to everybody I ran into, and told them, also, that Cory was driving me into Seattle right after dinner. I wanted it known to everyone that Mr. McTaig had taken the hint and was pulling up stakes.

We set out about eight o'clock and when we'd gone about a mile toward Driscoe, Cory pulled into a gravel pit where the car was out of sight from the road.

She knew a trail that led past the far edge of the townsite and we stumbled along in the dark for an hour until we finally came out on the road, just below the shed which the Highway Department had apparently forgotten it owned.

I scouted the ground and noticed both trucks were in the shed, but there were no signs or sounds of activity. I gave Cory a boost up onto the roof.

It was flat and once it had been tarred and graveled, but now it was covered with moss. A foot high parapet was along the front edge and we settled down behind it like a couple of fans in the bleachers.

* * *

A LITTLE before midnight the roof started vibrating and I knew ore cars were in the tunnel. We heard the rattle of ore cascading into the trucks and then it stopped and a moment later the shed doors below us swung open. Somebody stepped out and stood listening for fully half a minute.

"All clear," he said, and it was the voice of Uncle Jake.

Cory grabbed me so hard I nearly yelled.

A starter whirred and a loaded six-wheeler pulled out. It traveled with dimmed headlights and turned along the road in the direction of Argus Mines.

"Who's driving it?" Cory whispered.

I shook my head.

The second truck pulled away and somebody came out of the shed and stood with Uncle Jake.

"You filled that last one a bit too full, Jake"—it was Archie Trask—"the tarp didn't quite cover the load."

"It doesn't matter," Uncle Jake said, "that snoop artist has gone home."

"Yeah, but if any of the stuff spilled on the road it might start someone wondering."

Hal Boyle Says

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK—(AP)—Little Louie, the kid who lives on borrowed blood, has had a good year.

"I don't get as tired as I used to," he said, as he rested on a hospital bed after receiving his 500th transfusion.

Louis was given his first transfusion at the age of seven months when doctors discovered he had Cooley's anemia. This is a rare childhood disease whose victims are unable to fully replenish their own blood.

There is no cure known. They must live on the blood of others or die. And usually they die anyway. But in Louie's wiry 93-pound frame there is a great gusto for living, a stout heart that won't give up.

He is in his 14th year now, and there is a good chance he may yet win his long and tedious gamble for life.

"If we can pull him through until he's 20, he may improve," said Dr. Harvey Gollance, deputy medical superintendent at the Kings County hospital. "There are cases of that kind in the medical records."

Louis is a quick-witted, cheerful, intelligent boy. Somehow he has learned the odds are against him, but he discounts the odds. He's sure he'll make it. And hundreds of New Yorkers who never saw him have helped keep the small, dark-haired kid alive through blood donations to the Brooklyn Red Cross.

He talked about his future as he lay there waiting for his dad to come and take him home.

"When I grow up I'm going to be a radio sports announcer," he confided shyly. "Everybody at school says I got a good speaking voice and I take part in all the plays."

Didn't Do Too Well

Louie didn't do too well in his English studies this year—"They threw adverbial phrases at us, and I can't tell a dependent clause from an independent clause very easy"—but that doesn't worry him He feels, with some justification, that grammar isn't everything in sports announcing.

He used to have to stay in the hospital several days, receiving a pint of blood each day. Now he only comes each Thursday, gets a pint, and goes home.

"I know a lot of the people here now," said Louie, who has become a kind of mascot at the hospital. "After all, I been coming here since I was just a kid."

"Yes, and you tell the doctors now how to give transfusions," smiled Dr. Margaret Rice, a pediatrician. "And some Thursdays you don't come when you should."

Louis squirmed and looked busy. He doesn't like to talk about the times he plays hookey from the transfusion needle.

Too Interested In Baseball

The usual reason is he gets too interested in a baseball game and forgets to go to the hospital.

"I play first base and the outfield," said Louis and added modestly, "Of course, I do a little pitching, too."

He has never seen a major league baseball game, and one of his biggest ambitions is to watch his hero, Joe DiMaggio, knock a home run. He prefers the New York Yankees over the Dodgers—treason in Brooklyn.

"I just like the way the Yankees play," he said. "I like their style better. I saw them on television once."

The 500 pints of blood borrowed by Louie in his short lifetime is equivalent to the amount that flows in the veins of 50 adults. Sometime he'd like to be a donor himself.

"I'd like to help someone the same way people help me," he said.

Women Divert From Program To Talk of Board Sleeping

There is an old saying: "You can get used to hanging if you hang long enough," and maybe the same holds true of sleeping on boards, but some people are just as doubtful.

There are many people who have back trouble who do sleep on boards and that is the only way they can sleep. After you get used to it, it is wonderful, so they say.

The subject of board sleeping came up at a recent women's meeting and some of the women had never even heard of such a thing, and others who had heard of it were curious.

"Do you put the board on top or under the mattress?" asked one woman.

"Underneath the mattress," someone answered.

"Oh, that isn't so bad," said the woman, "I thought they put the board on top of the mattress."

Just Try It Once

"Maybe you think it isn't so bad," put in somebody, "But you just try it once."

"Well, at least it sounds better to have the mattress on top," insisted the woman.

Then a story was told about going into a room and seeing two mattresses piled on one bed. A guest in the home who had gotten into a bed that had a board in it didn't know what was the matter, so they borrowed an extra mattress from another bed.

"But," insisted a woman with a bad back, "sleeping on a board is wonderful. I couldn't sleep at all until I started sleeping on the board. Of course you have to get used to it, but it really is grand."

Just Stays at Home

"Hmmm," said another woman almost under her breath, "I never put a board under my mattress but I slept for a long time on a davenport in a little apartment we lived in that was definitely a board—and I'll tell the world I never got used to it. I got up every morning feeling like a board myself, just as stiff. My bones ached something terrible."

But when you have to do things, you do them, and people who don't have to do thm never realize how lucky they are.

"What do you do when you go visiting," the woman with the bad back was asked, "take your board along?"

"No," she replied, "I just stay at home."

Boy Who Started Delivering Milk at 11, Now Has Own Dairy

An ambition since early boyhood has just about been realized by Harry B. Young Sr., aged about 31, who, Monday morning begins his own milk route, delivering milk from his own herd. This desire has been in his mind since he was 11-years-old and started "shagging" milk for Glenn Warren, then owner of the Warrencrest Dairy.

Young started delivering milk with Warren at the "ripe-old-age" of 11 years, starting out early each morning, crowding in his school work, and working after school hours. He did his "shagging" until he was fifteen years old when he took over and began driving a truck for Warren.

Rated as Grade A

"I told Mr. Warren many times," Mr. Young said, "that someday I hope to own a herd of good cattle and have a dairy." Continuing, he said, "I have worked hard and saved here and there with the one thought in mind to get some cattle, a farm and start a dairy. The past week I obtained my city permit from Dr. M. E. Gouge, milk inspector, who also inspected my cows and barns and he also rated me as Grade A raw milk to be bottled and sold."

Young said that after he left Warren he worked for "Dub" Whitfield in Warrensburg for two years, then went with the Tullis-Hall Dairy Co., in 1935 and was with them until 1940 when he went with the White Valley Dairy for two years.

In Defense Work

In 1942 he went into defense work and remained in this until he entered the United States Navy from which he received his discharge in 1945. Returning to Pettis County, he obtained a farm and for the past three years has been working toward his goal which starts Monday. He secured several fine guernsey cows which have passed all tests required by the state and city.

His farm is located six miles south and a half mile west of the Anderson school house and invites his friends there to inspect his new venture.

Young is married, Mrs. Young being the former Miss Geraldine Louise Chancey. They have four children, Patsy 12, Harry B. Young Jr., 10, Nancy 7 and Joann 3.

BIRTHS

Son, born to Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Lee May, route 1, Smithton, at 9:20 o'clock Saturday morning at Bothwell hospital. Weight: Seven pounds, two ounces.

Accounting Of Funds Requested

the union, was signed by Circuit Judge Thomas R. Hunt. He signed another order to show cause why the temporary restraining order should not be made permanent. It was made returnable next Thursday morning.

Irving, whose career includes stretches as a semi-pro baseball pitcher, movie extra, railroad and farm laborer, became head of the local in 1940.

The 51-year-old congressman won the Democratic nomination in a field of five last August after a Hollywood flavored campaign. He had the backing of only one of five of Jackson county's party factions, that of James Pendergast. In the election he easily defeated his Republican opponent Richard A. Erickson.

Ask An Accounting

In their suit, the plaintiffs asked an accounting from the defendants of funds received and disbursed since June, 1946. They stated they did not know the extent of the alleged diversions.

The defendants were alleged in the petition "to have authorized and permitted large sums of money to be paid out for political purposes." These purposes, the plaintiffs alleged, included the registration of voters, payment of campaign expense for persons seeking nomination as candidates and the promotion of campaigns for people seeking public office.

A Colorful Figure

The union president, who came here in 1934, made his first public appearance in a labor role as the leader of a grave diggers' strike in 1937. He is a native of St. Paul, Minn., and once claimed he began his labor career by organizing a union of clerks on the Great Northern railroad. He lived in North Dakota for 14 years and for a time pitched baseball in Williston, N. D., for $25 a game.

Later he went to Hollywood where he worked as a movie extra along with the then unknown Clark Gable.

In the 1948 primary he won by a narrow margin of victory over his four opponents. In a campaign directed by a Hollywood press agent he toured the eastern part of Jackson county with a miniature train labeled "Freedom Train." He bought full page newspaper advertisements carrying pictures of himself, his white-haired terrier, "Umbriago" and one of his collection of 300 smoking pipes.

He said his secret of getting votes was "friends, friends, friends."

He boasted that "more people have visited my little white house in Independence than have visited Harry Truman's place a mile away."

State Head of Draft States Regulations

Believes Some Do Not Thoroughly Understand Law

Calling attention to the fact that failure to register is a violation of law and makes the delinquent liable to penalty, Brig. Gen. John A. Harris, state director of Selective Service for Missouri, outlined registration requirements under the Selective Service Act of 1948, which he said he believed were not thoroughly understood by all of the general public.

"The obligation to register," General Harris said, "is a continuing obligation and must be fulfilled regardless of whether men are being inducted into the armed forces under the Selective Service Act. The obligation to register is imposed by the Act on every male, citizen or resident, in the United States between the ages of 18 and 26, with only the general exception of members of the armed forces on active duty and certain aliens."

Must Register at 18

The young man who becomes 18 is required to register at a local board office within five days of the date of his eighteenth birthday, General Harris explained, but if he happens to be away from home he need not return; he may register at the nearest local board convenient to him and and the record will be sent to the local board having jurisdiction, even though it is in another state. After he registers, it is mandatory that a registrant keep his local board informed of any change in his address or change in status, the director pointed out. This applies after he becomes 26 as well as before.

Questioned concerning the man who did not register during the designated registration days — August 30 to September 18, 1948— because he was then on active duty in the armed forces, General Harris explained that he is required to register within 30 days of the time he was separated from the armed forces.

Watch Change of Status

"Any person who changes from a status which did not require his registration to a status which does require it must register promptly to be within the law," General Harris said, adding that those who were out of the country on the registration days must register within five days following the date they reenter the United States, which includes Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

General Harris said that noncitizens entering the United States for the first time are required to register at a local board within six months following the date of their entry.

The maximum penalty for violation of any of the provisions of the Selective Service Act of 1948, General Harris pointd out, is five years in prison or a fine of $10,000 or both.

Briefs

PARIS, July 16 —(AP)— A dry summer is cutting into western European crops, but an Associated Press survey shows harvest prospects are still fair to middling.

Short crops would mean a larger proportion of American aid must go into food imports instead of products that help reconstruction.

WASHINGTON, July 16 —(AP)— Senators were informed today that the State Department repeatedly has overruled its visa division and ordered the admission to the United States of foreign officials whose entry had been questioned on security grounds.

Herve J. L'Heureux, chief of the visa division, told a Senate judiciary sub-committee that he had appealed such decisions of the department's "political desk" three to five times in the past five years. In each case, he testified, "higher echelons" rejected the appeal, permitting entry of the officials.

In earlier testimony, a department official said about 10 aliens were admitted despite objections because other factors outweighed the security angle.

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, July 16 —(AP)— The Communist party called today for a no-quarter fight to crush the Czechoslovak hierarchy "our greatest enemy — the church."

A party manifesto which reached western hands declared victory was necessary to complete communization of the nation, especially the collectivization of farms against peasant resistance.

"We want to give good Catholics the opportunity finally to get rid of elements which are damaging us," the manifesto said. "It is not a question of liquidating churches entirely, but of liquidating the church order."

WASHINGTON, July 16 —(AP)—Nearly a dozen Senate Republicans seemed likely today to go along with Senator Taft (R-Ohio) in voting against the North Atlantic pact next Thursday.

Informal checks indicated that more than two-thirds of the party's 43 Senate members will support the treaty. They will be casting their lots with Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich) in a foreign policy split between the two GOP leaders.

Lodge Hears of Vacation Trips

Loyal Rebekah Lodge 260 held its regular meeting Friday evening. The meeting was presided over by the new Noble Grand, Mrs. Fred Anton, Jr.

Interesting reports on vacation trips by Miss Mary Belle Harbit, who had been to Spokane and points in Idaho and other northwest territory; Mrs. Anton who had been to Iowa and Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Kirkpatrick who had been to Salt Lake City and Colorado, were given.

The Rebekah's will join the Odd Fellows in being assistant hostesses at a pep meeting for Odd Fellows and Rebekah's of the surrounding territory at Liberty Park today. The meeting will be called at 2:00 o'clock with music, pep talks and an address by a well known Sedalian to be followed by a picnic lunch to which all will contribute. All Rebekah's, Odd Fellows and their families are expected to join in the meeting.

Progress on Swimming Pools

A progressive report on the Liberty Park and Hubbard Park swimming pools for the past week given by W. R. Blackwell, resident engineer, is as follows:

The drainage and sewer system is completed at both pools. Bricklayers have commenced on the bathhouse at Liberty Park and coping around the edge of the pool, has been completed.

At Hubbard Park, the bathhouse is ready for mason work. Half of the coping has been applied around the edge of the pool. Concrete pouring for the footing of the wading pool has been completed, as was the bathhouse floor. Water mains are in the progress of being installed.

Some of the work yet to be finished at Liberty Park includes installation of re-circulation system, the completion of a wading pool, and sidewalks.

At Hubbard Park, work unfinished is the re-circulation system, and assembly of filters and sidewalks.

Swimmers' Property Reported Missing

Several boys went swimming in Flat Creek, near the water works Saturday. When they had finished their swim, and returned to pick up various articles left in an automobile, they discovered them missing.

Clarence Mullins, 1204 South Harrison avenue, one of the swimmers, reported to police Saturday afternoon the missing articles, a 17-jewel wrist watch, billfold and its contents, pocket knife, and thirty-five cents.

Found Not Guilty

Charles W. Davidson, who was charged with non-support of minor children, pleaded not guilty before Acting Magistrate Earl Crawford Saturday afternoon, and was discharged following a hearing.

Davidson was arrested several days ago.

Mae West Sues on Bathroom Tumble

NEW YORK, July 16—(AP)—Mae West Friday sued a luxurious New York hotel for $250,000 for a tumble she took in her bathroom there.

Miss West alleged a defective floor mat caused the fall.

The actress said in her action, against the Hotel Chatham, that the fall caused her to become "sick, sore, lame and disabled" and prevented her from continuing to earn $3,000 a week as the star of the stage revival of "Diamond Lil."

Miss West's supreme court complaint said the fall, on Feb. 26, fractured bones in her left ankle and caused other lacerations and abrasions. She asserted the tumble forced closing of the play.

NEW YORK, July 16.—(AP)—Now come pills and chewing gums against dental decay.

They are the latest in a variety of new dental products, aimed at cutting down toothaches, that have been flooding into drugstores in recent weeks. Other new dental treatment methods have been developed and many people are getting bewildered by the assortment and claims.

And some dental experts are worried that people are expecting too much. They feel there hasn't been time yet for really thorough tests of how effective the new things are.

Take a look at the line-up:

1. Ammoniated tooth powders and pastes. These are based on the idea that decay is caused by acids formed by the lactobacilli acidolphilus bacteria, or L. A. bacteria for short. These formulas contain diabasic ammonium phosphate and urea to keep the bacteria from growing.

Formulas Vary

These formulas vary. They do reduce the number of L. A. bacteria. As for protectaion against actual decay, researchers who developed one formula said use of the ammoniated powder reduced decay rates by 35 per cent on the average. The tests, running nearly three years, were made on about 150 people, some using the new formula, others sticking to the old. About 82 per cent benefitted, some more than others, they said. Longer tests, on many more people, are underway in at least two states.

2. The pills and chewing gum with the same general ingredients have just come along. The pills are white wafers to be dissolved in the mouth after meals, like after-dinner mints. They are not a substitute for brushing teeth, but are offered as giving some protection immediately after meals when the danger of decay is believed to be greatest. They are said to help reduce the number of L. A. bacteria, and not to be harmful from swallowing the ammonium and urea. But there has not been time to show clearly what they may do against decay.

Effective Tooth Paste

3. A toothpaste containing chlorophyll, the green stuff that gives plants their color. University researchers report it was extremely effective in lowering the L. A. bacteria, even to eliminating them in most people after a time, and in preventing formation of acids. They said it also appeared helpful in combatting two other processes that may cause decay—the action of chemicals called enzymes, and possibly the action of other kinds of bacteria.

4. Chemical roadblocks. Some dentists are testing a method based on the idea that decay is caused by bacteria, invading tiny channels of living matter between the rods of tooth enamel. Two chemicals are applied to the teeth to form a barrier at the opening of these channels. Initial studies report up to 90 per cent reductions in decay. This treatment must be given by a dentist.

5. Fluorine. This chemical element is being added to drinking water, and dentists are applying weak solutions of sodium fluoride directly to children's teeth. After several years of studies, it is credited with reducing decay by up to 40 per cent when applied directly. It appears to help children only.

Has Support

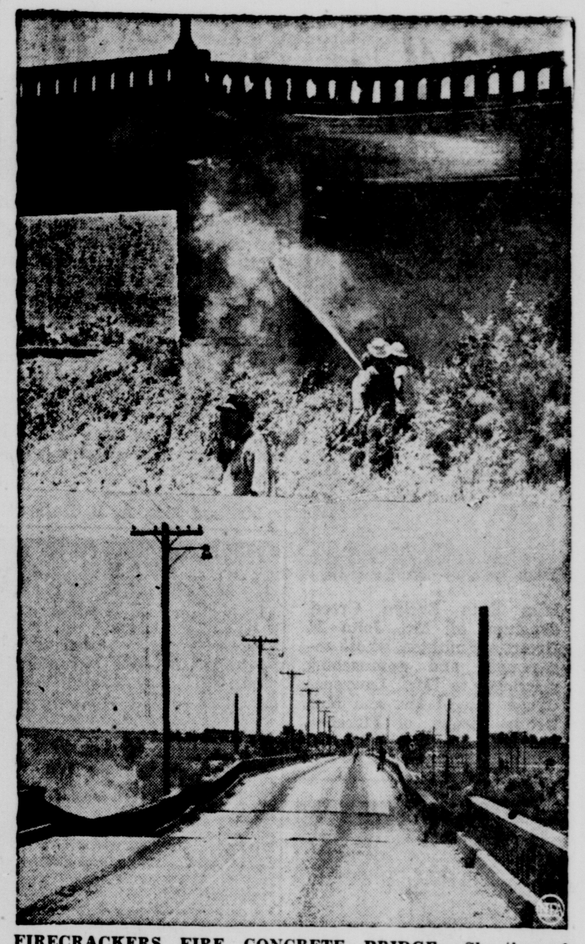

The fluorine attack is supported by the American Dental Association and the U. S. public health service.

As yet, the council on dental therapeutics of the dental association has not approved any of the other new methods. It has accepted three of the ammoniated formulas for clinical tests, which take time.

Meanwhile, some dental leaders are worried about what they call exaggerated stress on preventing tooth decay. Gum diseases and other troubles, not decay, are responsible for most teeth lost today, said Dr. George A. Bruns of Boston, president of the American Academy of Dental Medicine.

The academy decided a national program was needed to destroy an "obsession" over the threat of decay. It also would urge people to pay more attention to general oral hygiene and the first signs of gum troubles.

Tooth decay usually becomes much less common after people reach the age of 35. But gum disorders then start causing much more trouble.

Machine Age In Agriculture

KANSAS CITY, July 16—(AP)—A new peak in the mechanization of agriculture was reported Friday by Implement & Tractor, farm equipment business magazine.

The magazine gave the number of tractors on the nation's farms as 3,375,919. That is 261,323 more than last year. The figure jumped for trucks and motor cars, too. The magazine reported there were 2,408,098 trucks and 5,332,506 cars on the farms. This compared with 2,191,621 trucks and 4,928,127 cars in 1948.

"According to farm economists, tractor population and farm mechanization are presently at a level which the industry did not expect until 1952," the magazine stated.

Convict Captured; Another Escapes

JEFFERSON CITY, July 16—(AP)—One escaped Missouri convict was caught Friday and another one got away.

Ralph Eidson, warden of the state penitentiary, said Herschel McGrew, 45, a Negro, was arrested at Muskogee, Okla., after being gone from a prison farm since Wednesday.

McGrew was serving 40 years from Carroll county for murder. He waived extradition and will be returned tomorrow, Eidson said.

Meanwhile the highway patrol reported Earl Eugene Dalton, 29, walked away from a prison farm sometime Friday morning. He was serving 10 years from Mississippi county for robbery with a deadly weapon.

Knickerbocker Burial Friday

BOMBAY, India, July 16—(AP)—The body of H. R. Knickerbocker, one of 14 American correspondents and news representatives killed in a plane crash near here Tuesday, was buried Friday in Scots Kirk cemetery.

Also buried after simple graveside services were the bodies of 19 unidentified Dutch and American passengers who were among the 45 victims of the KLM (Royal Dutch Airlines) Constellation crash.

A body tentatively identified as that of Fred Colvig of the Denver Post was interred close to the grave of Knickerbocker, who was a radio commentator for WOR, New York. The bodies of all 45 victims were recovered after a three-day hunt, but authorities said they still had been unable to identify those of Charles Gratke, Christian Science Monitor foreign editor, and S. D. Heath, Newspaper Enterprise Association Correspondent.

Bodies of 10 of the Americans have been identified and cremated for return to the United States.

The newest thing about fall dresses will be the fabrics. Matelasse, slipper satin, and plaid corduroy are new again and most exciting. Gabardines are more popular than ever, although plain corduroy will top the list for the back-to-school crowd and career girls. Corduroy through a new development this year is lighter weight, and color. This newly developed fabric is called "Featherroy" and is really as luscious as velvet especially in the new shades of jade green, American beauty, burnished gold and dull rose. You can't escape having a dress, suit, jacket or skirt from this heavenly material.—Trimming of all kinds are good including buttons, fringe, and metallic thread woven in the fabric and it is especially good-looking in the woolens. The newest novelty trim is burlap in its original color used as crushed belts on a crepe dress. It is wise to shop early—the best workmanship is available on the choice materials.

Shoe fashions keep step with summer prints. The flat patent leather Mary Janes (above) which cut a shine with summer florals make news with a side-dipping, edged vamp, a back bow of grosgrain ribbon. Camping for Brownie Scouts has increased almost as rapidly as Brownie membership itself in the past few years. Not only is camping now anticipated by the children as a definite part of Brownie Scouting, but it is an accepted part of the obligation of every Girl Scout local council and camp committee to make a camping experience available to every Girl Scout under its jurisdiction.

Separate programs adapted to meet their needs, experiences and interests, was provided for the Sedalia Brownie Scouts in a four day outing this week, Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday, at Liberty Park and Thursday at Washington Park. Seventy-three Brownies enrolled and 45 were recognized as four-day campers, in the closing program at Liberty Park, Friday afternoon. Mrs. J. M. Bailey and Mrs. Elmo Harlan desire to express appreciation to the leaders and mothers, who cooperated as staff members with handcraft and transportation, and their skill in handling children of that age as well as their knowledge of camping technique.

Mrs. P. Cecil Owen, Day Camp Chairman, is of the opinion the Brownie Day Camp of 1949 is one of the most successful and well planned camps sponsored by the Sedalia Council in recent years, due almost entirely to the fine spirit of unity of the leaders, who helped with the camp.

At the conclusion of the afternoon, Mrs. F. Emory Bowman led the Brownies in singing, "We are the Brownie Scouts," to the tune of "London Bridge is Falling Down." "Taps," the finale, was led by Mrs. Harlan, with 58 girls in a "Wishing Ring."

Mo. State Fair Patrons to See Auto Racing

At Its Best on Mile Dirt Track: Top Drivers Enter

Thousands of Missouri automobile racing fans, who come to Sedalia every August to attend the Missouri State Fair, are assured of some of the best race driving seen on the local dirt track in many years—in fact, since the driving of the late Gus Schrader was seen in his record breaking drives.

There will be two days of automobile racing, the opening day of the State Fair, which is Sunday, August 21, and the following Saturday, August 27. These events are being arranged by new race promoters, Al Sweeney and Gaylord White, both of whom have built reputations of producing some of the most thrilling races on dirt tracks since the late Mr. Sloan.

Seven Events

Some of the world's most noted drivers will be here to contend for the big cash awards in seven events and time trials, the latter starting the day's events at 1:00 o'clock each afternoon of the races. The race events begin at 2:30 o'clock.

Some of the drivers are "Dapper Deb" Snyder, noted Kent, Ohio, big-car racer and the 1948 National Speedways champion. He pilots his world record-breaking Offenhauser in the State Fair national title competition here. Another red-hot contender will be Frankie Luptow, Detroit speed merchant, driving a brand new Offenhauser. Luptow is bidding for his first national dirt-track title this year.

Bert Hellmueller, veteran Missouri State Fair campaigner, will return. Hellmueller will be remembered as one of the most daring drivers on the local track. He pilots an aviation-engine Curtiss.

Sensational Winners

Bobby Grim, new 24-year-old Indianapolis sensational winner of national speedway features, is entering in the Missouri events. He has a most outstanding record, lowering the track record at Columbus, Ga., last April, beating the IMCA national 10-mile record at Birmingham, Ala., in April and lowering the track record of Emory Collins on the Danville, Ill. race track last May.

Electric timing devices are employed at the race meets promoted by Sweeney and White, thus assuring accurate speeds run in each event.

Holcomb Wins Semi-Pro Game

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., July 15—(AP)—The Holcomb Cardinals launched a 19-hit attack to smother Houston 14 to 0 in the opening game of the 1949 Missouri Semi-Pro Baseball Tournament.

Mel Schwab, Houston first baseman, paced the hitters with five hits in five times at bat. The game was called at the end of the seventh because of the tourney rule which ends the game when one team leads by 12 or more runs.

Ralph Fall Now At Vidalia, Ga.

Ralph Fall, a former member of the Sedalia Junior Legion and Ban Johnson teams, who was signed with the St. Louis Browns following a tryout camp early in June, is now playing with the Vidalia-Lyons Twins at Vidalia, Ga. This team, sponsored by Vidalia and Lyons, Ga., is at present in third place in the Georgia State league, a Class D league.

Fall was originally signed with the Olean, N. Y., club, but was optioned to the Pittsburg, Kas., club of the K-O-M league. He did not play regularly there, and so was optioned to his present position. Fall is now playing shortstop every day, which he was unable to do while at Pittsburg. He is still the property of the Browns.

Word received from Georgia is that his hitting and fielding is good, and he recently starred in a game by getting two hits for three times at the plate, including a home run.

Attended Skeet Shoot

W. O. Wilson, Roy Burkholder and Carl Wollet went to Kansas City the middle of the week, where they participated in a skeet shoot at Elliott's Gun Club.

Missouri is High in Small Game Harvest

JEFFERSON CITY, July 16—(Special)—Missouri is a leading state in the annual harvest of small game, according to field bag checks made by the Conservation Commission.

The figures place last year's legal take of quail at 2,200,272 birds, a number which, according to available information, ranks Missouri as one of the leading quail states in the nation.

For the amount of time and effort spent by hunters, the Ozark plateau produced a higher percentage of kill.

As for rabbits, 4,086,630 of them were taken in 1948, not counting the commercial live rabbit harvest. The western prairie region of the state produced the largest percentage of the total harvest.

Squirrels are high on Missouri's small game list. Last year, 2,292,449 of the bushytails were taken, of which 62 per cent were fox and 38 per cent greys.

Ohio ranks close to Missouri in small game. In 1946, hunters of that state bagged 4,606,000 rabbits (Ohio has no commrecial rabbit harvest), and 1,505,000 squirrels.

Blues to Meet J. C. Mohawks At Housel Park

Team Records of 9-3 and 15-3 For the Season

The Sedalia Blues will tangle with the strong Jefferson City Mohawks, a colored team, at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at Housel park.

A victory in today's game would make the Blues' record stand at 10 wins and three losses. Only one of these losses was at home, and the other two defeats were by one run—5 to 4 at Mendon, with Vernon Kennedy pitching, and 7 to 6 at Marshall.

Jefferson City comes to Sedalia with 15 wins and three losses, also having lost two of their games by a one-run margin. The Mohawks' roster includes several former players of the Monarchs and Cleveland Clowns.

Either Turchek or Rapp will start on the hill for the Blues, with Don Weller behind the plate. Smith, Payne, or Green will start for the Mohawks, with White catching.

Manager Jack Alpert of the Blues announces the following batting averages for members of his team who are hitting near or over .300: Cliff Barr, 3b, .425; C. Poynter, 1b, .444; Sullivan, rf, .310; Barnes, cf, .298; Slocum, ss, .313; and Alpert 2b, .333. Paul Evans, who recently joined the Blues got 3 for 6 in Sunday's game to give him a .500 average.

Sport Scraps

By D. KELLY SCRUTON

SEDALIA will not be host to the 1949 Missouri Semi-Pro tournament, which isn't news, and the fact we lost it isn't too good for the sports activity here. However, if rumors are true, one could hardly blame C. C. Howe, Commissioner, for the move after getting what is reported from Jefferson Citians, a guarantee of $1,500.

There has always been a discussion as to whether it was or was not good for baseball in Sedalia. Personally I always thought it added color to baseball here, helped baseball when local teams played good teams, and most certainly it was good advertisement for the city.

Maybe next year we might make a bid for it and get it back. Sedalia is the logical place for such a tournament and when the 1949 meet is over the proof will be there.

THE Sedalia Athletics are entered in the tournament again this season. The A's were runner-up last year and hope to win the honors this year at the Capital City. Three local merchants have taken over the sponsorship for the tournament play and opened their pocketbooks to help secure some excellant players to help win it if possible.

E. W. Thompson, of the Thompson Chevrolet Motor Co., Leroy "Dutch" Kirchhofer of the Pacific Cafe, W. C. Cramer and Carl Schrader, of the Cramer-Schrader Co., have joined together in an endeavor to assist Manager Vincent Siegel to get the players needed.

Baseball minded as these gentlemen are and like seeing good teams on the field, they are endeavoring to put the name of the town at the top of the tournament with a championship team.

THE Inter-City golf tournament which was played on the Sedalia Country Club course, the past week brought much praise from the golfers on teams from the other cities, on the local course. How much they enjoyed playing in Sedalia was exhibited by some of the "hot-rock" scores made during the play. Incidentally, Columbia's team scored 289½ points for a total of 1210½ to win the 1949 tournament.

It was an excellant tournament with plenty of spirit being shown in the contests, played not only in Sedalia but also Columbia, Fulton and Jefferson City. The finish rolled around with the Capital City team second to Columbia with 20 points difference. Sedalia was third with 989 and Fulton fourth with a 930 score.

The interesting fact of this tourney is that these four cities have competed against each other for the past forty years.

Paul Leslie, Jefferson City, thrilled the players with a 70, two under par, closely followed by Sedalia's Charlie Patterson with a 71, which included four birdies.

An interesting feature in regards to Leslie, in the four matches totalling 72 holes, the high calibre of his playing was demonstrated. In each city 18 holes were played and his record was 9 strokes under par having pared 55 holes, birdied 13 and going over par on only four holes.

Color to the tournament has been added with the presentation of the trophy by Damon Hieronymus, president of the Country Club. Mr. Hieronymus explained it has been donated by one of the former players on the Sedalia team, John McGrath. Permanent possession will not be made until one team has won it three times.

For the record on local players on the team:

	Score	Points
C. Patterson	71	32
Hieronymus	76	26½
Sherman	77	27½
Owens	79	30
McGrath	80	30
Gorrell	81	26½
G. Patterson	81	26
Darr	84	20
Yount	85	29
Martin	87	22½

Athletics To Semi-Pro Tourney Mon.

Meet J. C. Eagles At 9:30 P.M.; New Players Make Trip

The Sedalia Athletics will have a day of rest today before entering the Missouri State Semi-Pro toournament at Jefferson City, Monday night. At 9:30 o'clock that night they will play the Jefferson City Eagles, colored team, which is rated a strong aggregation and seeded by some to win the tournament. The team will leave at 6:30 o'clock from the Pacific Cafe

If the Athletics win their initial contest, they will meet the Versailles Merchants at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday evening. If they lose, they will meet the loser of the Columbia-Marshall game at 9:30 o'clock Wednesday evening.

In addition to their regular lineup, the A's will take two new pitchers, Tommy Hall and Jimmy Wilson, to the tourney to strengthen their mound staff, with negotiations now underway for a third hurler. Carl Frevert, a hard-hitting infielder, will also play in the tournament.

Regulars making the trip will be Ralph Shipley, pitcher; Bus Walker, pitcher and outfielder; Elwood McMackin, catcher; Henry Jacobs, Jim Taylor, Bus Livengood, Joe Wolfe, and Earl Hill, infielders, and Charles Thompson, George Thompson and Fred Beismeyer, outfielders.

12-to-1 Shot Wins Upset in $100,000 Race

Solidarity Takes Gold Cup Handicap From 'Big' Horses

By Bob Myers

ARCADIA, Calif. July 16—(AP)—Solidarity, a 12-to-1 Californiabred colt, put the big name horses to shame today when he rolled in to win the $100,000 Hollywood Gold Cup Handicap.

Billed as the world's richest horse race, with its net purse of $100,000 to the winner, the golden upset was staged before a sweltering throngs of 40,535. Solidarity soundly whipped 10 rivals in this 10th renewal of the western turf fixture.

Tied Seabiscuit's Record

Further confusing the experts, the strapping bay colt whipped cross the line with peppery Ralph Neves aboard to tie the track record at Santa Anita park set by the mighty Seabiscuit when he won the Santa Anita hundredgrander in 1940.

The time for the mile and one quarter was 2 minutes 1 1-5 seconds.

Second, a length and a quarter back was the Maine Chance Farm's pace-setting Ace Admiral. The Argentine horse, Pretal rushed in for a surprise third.

An Undignified Procession

Trailing, in undignified procession behind, were Abe Hirschberg's Dinner Gong, Harry Warner's Honeymoon, On Trust from the E. O. Stice stable, James Tigani's highly regarded Double Jay, the more popular Vulcan's Forge, Miss Grillo and longshots Amble In and Roman In.

Solidarity is owned by blonde Mrs. Nat Goldstone of Beverly Hills, wife of a motion picture executive.

The colt paid the handsome price of $24.80, $8.50 and $6.10; Ace Admiral, coupled in the betting with On Trust, paid $4.10 and $3.20, and Pretal $9.00.

Solidarity, the son of Alibhai, was bred by Louis B. Mayer, who collected $10,000 as the winning breeder.

NEW YORK, July 16—(AP)—The National league leading Brooklyn Dodgers and the American league pace-setting New York Giants both lost today, but only the Yankees lost ground.

In losing, 4-2, to the St. Louis Browns, the Yankees saw their lead over Cleveland shrink to five and a half games as the Indians overcame the Philadelphia Athletics, 7-3.

Boston Gains A Game

The Boston Red Sox also gained a full game on the Yankees, trouncing the Detroit Tigers, 11-1, to advance to within a half game of the third place Athletics. The Bosox trail the Yankees by eight and a half games.

Chicago's White Sox moved to within a game and a half of 7th place Washington by whipping the the Senators, 5-1. The Boston Braves retained their hold on third place in the National league, walloping the Chicago Cubs, 9-1.

Pittsburgh Wins Doubleheader

Pittsburgh swept both ends of a doubleheader from the New York Giants, 9-0, and 7-6. The second game went 11 innings.

Walker Cooper's second homer of the game sunk the Dodgers. It came in the top of the 10th with one mate aboard.

In a game that was limited to five and a half innings because of a heavy rain, the Browns finally beat the Yankees getting all their runs in the first inning. Roy Sievers batted in two with a bases loaded single. Errors by outfielder Johnny Lindell and shortstop Phil Rizzuto helped St. Louis tally the others.

Indians Vanquish A's

Jim Hegan's three-run homer, and some nifty relief pitching by Gene Bearden and Satchel Paige helped the Indians vanquish the A's. Bearden and Paige gave up two hits and no runs between them in seven innings, with Bearden getting credit for his sixth victory.

Mel Parnell had an easy time winning his 12th game for the Red Sox. He spaced four hits while his mates got 13 off three Bengal hurlers. Ted Williams, Bobby Doerr, Al Zarilla and Birdie Tebbetts cracked homers for the winners.

Second baseman Cass Michaelis batted in four runs with a double and single to lead the White Sox to their victory over the Senators. Bob Kuzava pitched a six-hitter for his fifth victory.

14-Hit Cub Attack

The Braves combined a 14-hit attack and a neat six-hit effort by long John Sain to gain their win over the Cubs, and first baseman Elbie Fletcher hit a home run for the winners. It was the seventh win for Sain, who has lost nine this year.

The Pirates belted seven homers off Giant pitching, six of them coming in the first game. Outfielder Wally Westlake, who added another in the second game, smashed two in the opener.

Pitcher Vic Lombardi, acting in the role of a pinch hitter, dropped a looping single in short right, to score Stan Rojek from third with the winning in the 11th inning of the nightcap. The Giants had forced the game into overtime, overcoming a 6-0 deficit with two runs in the seventh and four in the eighth. Johnny Mize, Henry Thompson and Bob Thomson homered for the Giants.

Junior Legion Plays Lebanon

The Sedalia Junior Legion Post 16 team will leave at 11:30 o'clock this morning from Smith-Cotton high school to go to Lebanon, where they will meet the Junior Legion team at 2:30 o'clock.

This game was originally scheduled for Friday night, but was postponed because of rain at that time. Lebanon defeated Sedalia 5 to 4 in a game played here earlier in the season. Today's game will not be a league game.

Manager Cecil Glenn is working the Sedalia aggregation into shape for the zone tournament which stads Friday at Kirksville. No information concerning what teams Sedalia will meet in the tournament has been received yet by the local club.

Waitkus to Be Dismissed From Hospital

Following Shooting; Glad to be Out and Wants to See Team

CHICAGO, July 16—(AP)—Eddie Waitkus, the 29-year-old bullet-punctured Philadelphia Phillies' first baseman, says tomorrow'll be a red letter day.

Tomorrow, he plans to leave Billings Memorial hospital and fly to Philadelphia. It will be the end of more than a month in hospitals. And—"Boy, I'm telling you hospital life is driving me nuts." he says.

Eddie takled to newsmen today and seemed glad of the opportunity. He's been kept pretty quiet most of the time since he was shot June 15 by an addled woman fan. She is Ruth Steinhangen, 19, who has been committed to a mental hospital.

"I want to see the Phillies play, but I probably won't be able to get to the park until Monday," Eddie says. "Haven't seen a ball game recently because I haven't been able to get the television set working right. Couldn't get the aerial set us here."

Waitkus, an honorary member of his league's squad, heard the American-National league all-star game, though, on the radio, and it didn't make him happy." They always pull something you would not do in high school," he groaned.

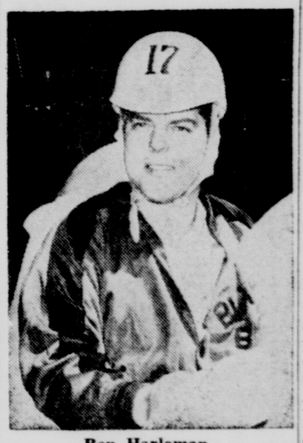

Eddie still doesn't know whether he'll get into uniform this season. They removed the bullet from near his spine a week ago.

"I've still got a couple of drain tubes in me, and they'll stay in a couple of weeks," he said.

Ben Harleman Tough to Beat

KANSAS CITY, July 16—Ben Harleman, the 1949 champion midget auto driver at Kansas City's Olympic stadium, is practically out of the running for the current title, but he's likely to have a big say about who succeeds him.

In second division of the top ten in point standings, Harleman finally has found the car and the touch that should bring him several 25-lap classic victories before the season ends.

Ben Harleman

Ben placed second in both his heat race and the 15-lapper last Sunday in the famous Orange No. 77 Offy, driven last year by the late George Binnie, who was rated one of the greatest midget drivers in the nation.

Harleman will again be at the wheel of the Binnie No. 77 at Olympic Stadium Sunday night. Time trials start as 6 p.m. and heat races at 7 o'clock.

Vito Calia of Kansas City, the early pacesetter at Olympic Stadium, tightened up the lead in the point standing—based on dollar earnings—last week by winning his second classic of the season and must be considered among the favorites at Olympic this Sunday.

"Bud" Ward, Former Amateur Golf Champion, Turns Pro

SPOKANE, Wash., July 16—(AP)—Marvin (Bud) Ward of Spokane, twice national amateur golf champion is playing for cash from here on out.

Ward announced this morning he has accepted a job as professional at the Meadowlark Country Club at Great Falls, Mont., The one-time Walker Cup player said his contract with the Montana club will allow him to make the tour of professional tournaments for at least two months each winter.

Parker Meets Gonzales for Tennis Title

National Clay Court Championship Match At Chicago Today

CHICAGO, July 16— (AP) —Defending champion Pancho Gonzales did a neat semi-final job today to bracket himself with Frankie Parker—as entirely expected—for a national clay court tennis title showdown tomorrow.

Top-seeded Gonzales gained the payoff round by outslashing third-seeded Vic Seixas of Philadelphia, 6-2, 5-7, 6-4, 6-1 in the masculine half of two semi-final singles at the River Forest tennis club.

In the feminine division, another defending champion, Magda Rurac of Los Angeles brushed aside Rosemary Buck of Dallas, Tex., in straight sets, 6-2, 6-4.

Women's Championship

Magda's championship opponent tomorrow will be Beverly Baker of Santa Monica, Calif., who got past the semi-final round yesterday, as did Parker.

It took Gonzales almost two hours to discourage Seixas, who perked considerably in the second set when, with the score 5-all, the Philadelphiaian broke Gonzales' serve and won the set, 7-5. That set was the longest of the match, requiring 45 minutes.

However, once Pancho got things under control with his bullet-like services and net-rushing tactics, he took the third set handily and needed only 20 minutes to polish off Seixas in the final set.

In Parker, five times winner of this meet, Gonzales will meet his Wimbledon doubles championship partner. Parker yesterday also was extended by his semi-final opponet, Herb Flam of Beverly Hills, Calif., before winning 6-3, 7-5, 6-3.

Chiefs Play at Chillicothe Tonite

The Sedalia Ban Johnson Chiefs have a busy schedule for this week, with games slated for this evening, Tuesday night, and also Thursday night.

Today the team will leave at 4:00 o'clock from Cal Rodgers' service station, Fifth street and Osage avenue, to go to Chillicothe where they will play a B-J league game at 8:15 o'clock. Jim Egbert will be the starting pitcher with either Barbour or Whitworth behind the plate.

The Chiefs will be out for their third win of the second half of the B-J season tonight, having won previously from Columbia and Mexico, but losing to Moberly.

Tuesday night, the Chiefs will play a league game at Boonville, beginning at 8:15 o'clock.

Thursday night, a game will be played at Liberty park with a B-J team from Kansas City. The Katz team is desired for the game but arrangements are not completed yet for the contest.

Trotlines Below Dams Are Serious Problems

JEFFERSON CITY, July 16—(Special)—The problem of trotlines below dams—and particularly below Bagnell Dam impounding Lake Ozark—is seriously perplexing the Missouri Conservation Commission.

The Commission is being swamped with complaints from hook-and-line fishermen against trotlines strung in the legal 75 yards below the dam on the Osage river. The lines, the anglers charge, foul up hooks, wrap around paddles and at times even snag boats, not to mention taking too many fish.

Most of the protests to date have been based on this particulr area and the problem does not seem so great elsewhere. At the present time there are no regulations barring the use of trotlines below dams other than the 75-yard rule applying to all types of fishing. At Lakes Wappapello and Clearwater, neither bank lines, throw lines, trotlines nor boats may be used within 700 feet below the spillway wing walls.

SIX OF THE MEN WHO HELP YOUR STANDARD OIL DEALER KEEP YOUR TANK FILLED

America used 18.9% more oil last year than in 1945, our peak war year—and yet, although a shortage had been feared, there were enough petroleum products for everyone last winter. This summer, with automobile travel at an all-time high, you can still get all the gasoline you want.

How is this possible? Only because the great efforts of the entire petroleum industry made it possible. Through teamwork, this company and its subsidiary companies have set output records in each of the last three years.

Standard Oil works as an integrated team, from the oil well to the service station. That's why we were able to bring you more oil: because we work together from the ground up to find oil, to bring it out of the earth, to carry it to refineries, to make it into useful products, to distribute those products to convenient locations in your community.

We are willing to spend for new oil wells, pipe lines, refinery units, to help keep you supplied. In the last three years, these costs amounted to more than twice our net earnings.

We have the manpower—48,000 employees, from geologists to tank truck drivers. Like the independent businessman who fills your tank at his service station, each of these men is important to your gasoline supply.

STANDARD OIL COMPANY (INDIANA)

GRANT DARNELL of Houston, Texas—engineer. He's testing the drilling mud that helps us get beneath the surface of the earth to find oil.

JOHNNY HATCHER, at work on Drilling Rig No. 12, High Island, Texas. He and his fellow crewmen work to bring oil to the surface.

LLOYD M. KING, pipe line maintenance man, Niota, Illinois. He helps keep oil flowing from the wells to a Standard Oil refinery.

GEORGE P. NEIDERKORN, stillman, Wood River, Illinois, refinery. The huge catalytic cracker he helps run, converts gas oil into gasoline.

MATHEW SIMAGA, tank car loader, at Whiting, Indiana, refinery. He sends finished refinery products to Standard Oil bulk plants.

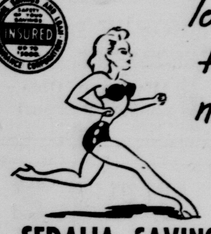

STANLEY BETTS, agent, who runs our Burlington, Wisconsin, bulk plant, filling dealers' tanks from which your tank may be filled.

Just a reminder that practically all our summer cottons are on sale at Lockett's . . . Prices are in groups at $2,99, $4.99, $6.99, $8.99 and the better cottons which were priced from $16.98 to $24.98 are now reduced one-third to one-half.

Waldorf Experts Minister To Many Famed Palates

By Cynthia Lowry
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK, July 16 —(AP)— The Duke and Duchess of Windsor love spinach. Former President Herbert Hoover won't tolerate onion or garlic in his food. Clare Boothe Luce likes dainty portions. Warren Austin loves apples.

But th late Maharajah of Kapurthala was the fanciest eater of them all. He gave sumptuous dinners, but insisted on eating alone.

That's the way Rene Black sizes up the palates of some of the famous people whose menus he has supervised. Black, a Frenchman trained in old world hotels, is manager of the six restaurants in New York's famed Waldorf-Astoria. One of his many jobs is the handling of special menus for occupants of the Waldorf apartments, where so many world-famous names live while in New York.

He leaned back in his swivel chair, twirled his mustache and prepared to discuss the subject he loves: Good food prepared for people who know the joys of fine eating.

Like Simple Food

"The Duke and Duchess," he began, "like simple food when they are by themselves, but they are particular. For dinner alone they like roast chicken with a puree of potatoes and two vegetables—spinach or sorrel. Then a cheese with a glass of claret or white wine. After dinner a brandy with a demi-tasse.

The royal menu is considerably more elaborate for a dinner party. Then the couple would start with cocktails, with which is served caviar—set up at a buffet so the guests can have all they want. Dinner itself starts with a clear soup, then a plain broiled fish served with lemon butter. The main dish is apt to be capon or roasted filet of beef. Baked potatoes are preferred, plus two green vegetables. Salad is served as a separate course—with a slice of Virginia ham. Dessert is usually a mousse of ices or a hot souffle.

Hoover Likes Soup

"Mr. Hoover also is a simple eater," Black said. "He keeps away from rich dishes. He loves soups and an almost inexhaustible variety are presented to him. He keeps away from onions and garlic and prefers steak, boiled and braised beef. He likes good vegetables and his dessert choices are water ices or a bread-and-butter pudding or rice pudding, but without too much rich flavoring."

Mrs. Luce, former congresswoman, playwright and author, enjoys elegance at the table, Black says.

"She insists on haute cuisine, and through her travels has acquired a viewpoint of the gastronome," he said. "She especially likes miniature and dainty portions—but it is immaterial to her whether the piece de resistance is beef, veal, mutton or fowl. She has a good palate and appreciates the distinctiveness of cooking."

Magazine publisher Luce, her husband, likes a simple meal, but "eats in a hurry."

Conversation Important

"He likes nice things, but conversation is more important to him than putting food in his mouth."

A typical Luce dinner would consist of a fruit cocktail or melon, lamb chops or filet mignon, green vegetables, potatoes. Then a salad, followed by ice cream or cheese.

Warren Austin, head of the U. S. delegation to the United Nations, is a "great amateur of simple food, well cooked, on time, served in small quantities — but hot," said Black.

"He likes a good tomato soup, good fish, chicken or beef and he loves plain boiled potatoes and salad. Also he gorges with fruit, especially apples—sometimes with cheese."

But Black really becomes lyrical when talking of the Indian maharajah.

"He was," said the food expert, "the most finicky gourmet of the age. He liked to eat his dinner before his guests so he was certain that it was perfect."

A Favorite Dinner

Here follows, with some interpolations, a favorite dinner of the Indian potentate:

"It would start with caviar spread on roasted onions over little pieces of deviled melba toast. The dough for the toast would have mixed cinnamon and black pepper in it. Then would follow a consomme of chicken broth with turtle meat.

"After that trout, seven inches long, completely boned, cooked in red wine and stuffed with wild rice and shrimps previously mashed but freshly cooked.

"Then lamb chops St. James. They were divested of all fat, covered with bread crumbs mixed with parmesan cheese and sauteed in butter. When half-cooked they were allowed to cool. Ten minutes before serving they were covered with yolk of egg mixed with cayenne pepper and a puree of goose or capon liver cooked with reduced in Madeira wine. This was placed on the broiler with truffles of small size.

"The piece de resistance was chicken or capon, sliced in the kitchen and reformed to be presented in its entirety. Under the skin was apple sauce mixed with yolks of egg and lemon juice, which had been inserted before cooking. When finished the stuffing has 'blown' and the bird is twice as large as it was before.

No Potatoes

"There were no potatoes — or bread and butter—for the maharajah objected to anything overfilling. He claimed bread and butter are obstructions to digestion.

"He served a romaine salad in its simplest form—but with the inside and outside leaves in separate bowls, and the dressing separate, too. The salad was eaten with the fingers, and dipped into the dressing.

"Finally, there was a souffle of fruit—cherries, grapes, figs, dates or something extremely sweet. Or a peach stuffed with macaroons enrobed in a meringue, all placed on a block of water ice and ice cream. Or a puree of chestnuts, cooked in a light syrup, served with small napoleons of honey and almonds. With this was served strong coffee."

Black sighed with sheer delight and prepared to eat his own luncheon. It was a dish of rice, with two golden figs atop, and a cup of warm milk.

"No conditiments for me," he said. "It is not natural."

Eight Camels Last Straw On Shrine Jubilee Back

By William G. Garry
NEA Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO — Where to billet eight camels is giving this town a headache.

With this lone exception, Chicago is set to handle the biggest convention in its history — the 75th jubilee of the Ancient Arabic Order of the Mystic Shrine.

When about 50,000 Shriners hit town July 18, the convention committee headed by the general chairman Joseph A. Downey will be able to guarantee everyone a place to sleep and plenty to eat. Quarters have been found, too, for the 250 horses which will be ridden in the spectacular eight-hour parades on July 19 and 20. But those camels!

Shriner Charles A. White, custodian of the armory where the horses will be stabled, wants no part of the hump-backed "ships of the desert."

"I can't keep those camel patrols here," he told Downey. "Camels hate the sight of horses an dwould fly at them like mad Besides, they bleat at night. And they don't smell too good."

Dismissing the camel problem, the Shrine committee has everything under control in its convention quarters in the Palmer House.

A reception committee will meet the delegates at the stations and escort them to their hotels. A guide service will escort conventioneers to meeting places. And at night a special 300-man police detail headed by Shriner-Captain Walter Storms will keep the visitors out of trouble.

A highlight of the convention will be the Soldiers' Field address by Shriner Harry Truman on July 19. Another will be the introduction of Harold Lloyd, star of the silent screen, as Imperial Potentate of North America. He will succeed Galloway Calhoun of Tyler, Texas.

With those relatively simple details arranged for, Downey and his aides can now concentrate on the one dilemma confronting them —where to batten down those camels.

JOSEPH DOWNEY: 50,000 delegates and eight camels.

Accuses Brannan

Allan B. Kline, head of the American Farm Bureau Federation, gestures with his glasses as he accuses agriculture secretary Charles Brannan of throwing the farm problem into partisan politics. His testimony was before the senate agriculture sub-committee in Washington (AP Wirephoto)

Buena Vista, Where 33 Aged Persons Make Their Home

Buena Vista—operated by 11 board members who formed the corporation, Pettis County Association for Social Service, last November, provides shelter for 33 inmates of Pettis county. The home is always kept in neat appearances. (Photos by Bill Padgett)

This is the original building at Buena Vista, except to the extreme left, that being the hospital wing, recently added. The house sets off from the road a few hundred feet, making Buena Vista stand good for its name, a beautiful view.

The inmates have only to step out of one building next door to attend church services every Sunday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock. The Buena Vista chapel is adjacent to the main building. Church services are conducted by the Ministerial Alliance, and Sedalia ministers take turns every Sunday in religious services.

Pictured is the newly decorated and furnished lounge room. This room is utilized by the inmates in many ways, such as, reading, sewing, radio listening, and visiting with friends and fellow inmates. Sedalia organizations use this room for varous entertainments and refreshments.

Pictured is a portion of the men's quarters, consisting of three single rooms and two dormitories. The building is located in the rear of the main building, where the women reside.

Buena Vista is comprised of about 80 acres of land, located 3½ miles north of Sedalia on the Grand Avenue road. It was formerly known as the County Home, until it was leased by a corporation which was formed in November 1948 by 11 board members, who call themselves the Pettis County Association for Social Service.

This organization operates the Buena Vista home by non-political and non-profitable means. The board is headed by Harry E. Lindstrom, president, W. F. Keyser, vice-president, Mrs. M. E. Green, secretary, and Earl T. Crawford, treasurer.

Three committees are set up to keep the organization running smoothly. The employment committee consists of Riley Lee, Fr. A. J. Brunswick and W. F. Keyser. The farm operating committee is composed of Richard Lower, chairman, Edwin Heffernan, vice-chairman, and Olen Monsees. Rev. J. Fred King is chairman of the guest committee, assisted by Roy Bryson and Mrs. M. E. Green.

Capacity for Fifty

Fifteen women and 18 men are now residing at Buena Vista, but there is a capacity for 50 inmates. Twenty-four of the total people there are old-age pensioners. Nine inmates are wards of the Pettis county court. The organization provides its residents with room, board, some clothing, medical attention, laundry and miscellaneous, such as tobacco for the men and candy for the women.

A happy contented family and enthusiastic help dwell at Buena Vista. Some of the inmates know no other home, having lived at Buena Vista when a small child. One particular woman now living there, came to the home in 1912 with her mother. The youngest inmate is 49 years of age, with the oldest being 91 years.

Woman Superintendent

Mrs. Ethel Knelle is general superintendent of Buena Vista, and is doing a fine job, looking after the old persons and keeping them happy. She took over the supervision duties when the home was taken over by the board. Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Wasson, formerly of the State of California, are employes, Mrs. Wasson being in charge of preparing the meals, and household duties, while Mr. Wasson is the farm hand. They have been at Buena Vista since March, 1948. Mr. Wasson is an expert farmer and a hard worker, awakening as early as 3:00 o'clock some mornings to work the fields. His enthusiasm shows that he enjoys the many farm activities on the 80 acres.

Mrs. Ethel Knelle, general superintendent, since she came to Buena Vista in November is well liked by all the inmates. She has a capable way of handling all of the Buena Vista family.

Own Products

Three Jersey and three Guernsey cows produce all of Buena Vista needs for milk, butter and cream. Eggs and meat are provided with a flock of over 300 chickens. Twenty-two hogs are ready for butchering when needed, in addition to four little arrivals now over three weeks old. The mother of the pigs is a registered Poland China sow. An Angus bull calf was born the same day as the pigs. Two steers are being fattened for beef this winter. Four horses and a three-months old colt roam the fields. One horse and the colt are owned by Mr. Wasson.

"Daisy Mae" has started a family. A pair of rabbits was given to Buena Vista by Mrs. M. E. Green. Within two months Daisy Mae has increased the family to fourteen, and the family is expected to double within another month. According to Mr. Wasson, the rabbits make better eating than fried chicken.

Nice Garden

Two acres of land is in garden with nearly every type of vegetable planted. Besides this year's garden vegetables, much of last year's canned fruits and vegetables are stored in the basement, in addition to a 50-gallon barrel of sour-kraut that was put up this year. Long rows of fruit orchards and blackberries will provide fruit to eat this winter. All the canning will be done by Mrs. Knelle and Mrs. Wasson.

Besides all these good things to eat grown at Buena Vista, 30 acres of oats, 16 acres of corn, and 10 acres of hay are planted. The oats are ready for harvest, and the corn is looking good.

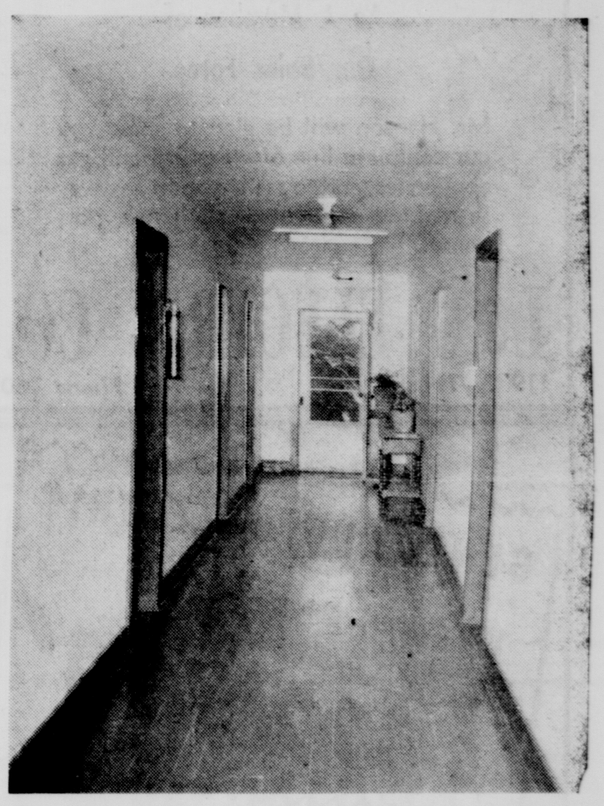

Many Improvements

Many major and minor improvements have been undertaken since last November. A lounge room was built with all the furnishings added, and two gas bottled stoves replaced an old fashioned coal range. An automatic gas heater was installed. A hospital wing was built. Five of the rooms are being used by women, and one is reserved in the event of sickness. The women use two dormitories and five single rooms, and the men, who have their sleeping quarters behind the main building, have two dormitories and three single rooms. The women's quarters are heated by gas, while coal stoves are used for the men's quarters. There are two dining rooms in the main building, one for the women and the other for the men.

Their Own Chapel

A chapel is located on the north side of the main building. Services are held every Sunday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock ,and are conducted by a different minister each Sunday.

The inmates are proud of the new lounge room. Here they read, listen to the radio, converse and relax. In this room various organizations in Sedalia entertain the old folks and serve refreshments. The lounge room is also known as the guest room.

This is the hospital wing, comprised of six rooms. Five rooms are used by women inmates, and the other room is held in reserve in the event of sickness. The hospital, as well as the main building is heated by gas, while coal stoves are used in the men's quarters.

Agitation Is Art, Says "Pravda"

MOSCOW — (AP) — Agitation, "Pravda" says is an art.

"The ideological level of Bolshevik agitation," said "Pravda," "is being continually raised." "But," it added, "it is not in the Bolshevik tradition to rest on past achievements. New problems demand further improvement in political agitation, demands an increased sense of responsibility and better qualifications in agitators."

"It is not only, however, a matter of teaching the agitator to elucidate complex questions simply and understandably and to select for his talk the most instructive facts. The art of agitation lies also in avoiding the commonplace and being able to approach different strata of the population differently."

W. F. Wasson, Buena Vista farm man, is shown with his prize registered poland china sow, and four pigs, three weeks old Friday. It was hot the day these pictures were taken, and the sow is seen dashing back toward the barn where it was shady. The little pigs will be future pork on Buena Vista's dining tables.

Tribesmen Cho p Each Other Up For 'Good L uck' Medicine

LONDON, July 16—(AP)—Tribesmen of African Basutoland have revived a jungle ritual of chopping each other up to make "good luck" medicine.

An alarmed British government is sending Cambridge Professor G. I. Jones there next week to study the problem. He is chief lecturer on native tribes and their ancient customs at the university.

A spokesman for the British commonwealth relations office, which is in charge of this primitive area, said there had been nearly 20 such slayings in the past year.

The spokesman gave this explanation:

It seems the Basutos believe they can derive certain marvelous new powers—either spiritual, political or sexual—if they brew a medicine of which the principal ingredient is some portion of a human being they have just killed.

So they wait along a linely footpath in the wild bush until the hapless victim comes along. They clout him over the head with a club and proceed to cut off the victim's nose or a bit of his flesh. They brew this in a secret medicine and either drink it or scatter it around the household, depending upon what kind of powers they are asking for.

One tribesman recently sold his brother to a local chieftain for $400. Then the chief's gang waylaid the brother and made some potent medicine out of him.

Prof. Jones, the spokesman added, is not going as a detective to find out who is committing the murders. His job is simply to find out sociologically and anthropologically what has caused the sudden outbreak in a custom that had been nearly stamped out among the 500,000 peoples of the tribe.

Opera Delayed For Invalid Boy

ST. LOUIS, July 15—(AP)—The Municipal Opera was delayed ten minutes tonight to permit 15-year-old Jerry Turpin of Jefferson City, an invalid, to be on hand for the start of a performance of "The Chocolate Soldier."

It was the first time in the 31-year-old history of the opera that it had been delayed for a reason other than rain.

The boy, bedridden for the past year with a serious spinal ailment, was the guest of the opera management and the Missouri Pacific Railroad Women's Club.

The ambulance bringing him here from Jefferson City had a blowout en route, delaying his arrival. An opera fan and a music student since he was five, Jerry had frequently expressed a desire to see the opera here.

As the ambulance drew into the parking lot, the boy's mother exclaimed "he is one of the happiest boys you have ever seen."

His stretcher was placed on a rolling frame and wheeled into a box, where he watched the performance with obvious enjoyment.

After the performance, principals of the cast and some of the stars of next week's show visited Jerry and offered their autographs.

Girl Builds Her Dances Around a Feline Theme

NEW ORLEANS, July 16—(AP)—Ever watch a cat stretch and walk gracefully away?

Lilly Christine did — and what she saw has made her the recognized challenger of the long reigning specialty dancers of the nation.

It was about a year and a half ago when the beautiful blonde from Buffalo, noted the charm of a cat's grace. She decided to build her dances around a feline theme.

Now, billed as "The Cat Girl," she is packing them into night clubs over the country.

The tawny, 21-year-old dancer uses a slow, provocative rhythm that has brought her rave notices in newspaper reviews and trade magazines and more than a thousand cat figurines from fans all over.

Lilly is no stripper. She wants that understood. She begins with the minimum, so there isn't anything she can remove and stay within the bounds of the New Orleans law which requires at least a bra and a G-string.

Hopes to be Tops

Watching the fortunes of other specialty dancers who have reached the top, Lilly hopes to fare even better than most of them.

For one thing, she and Leon Prima, brother of bandsman Louis Prima and owner of a New Orleans night club, plan to open three night clubs in Miami, New York and New Orleans as the beginning of a Lilly-Cat club chain. These, she says are to open in the fall.

With the night club trade in a seasonal slump, she is using her time now to plan for them after concluding a successful return engagement at Prima's 500 club here.

This summer she will be on her farm near Buffalo, N. Y., enjoying a bit of horseback riding, golf, tennis, swimming and sun bathing.

Vacations seem especially good to night club dancers, she says, because they don't have to sleep all day to be ready for the nightly grind. Besides, she can be with her mother and father during the day, instead of seeing them only at the end of the night's work when they call at the club to take her home.

Enjoys Sports

Then, too, summer sports are good for her figure, although she has little trouble retaining her present proportions: Five feet 6½ inches, 128 pounds, 35-inch bust and hips and 24-inch waist.

Baptized Lilliana Christina, the girl who anglicized the name given her by parents of German, Swedish and Italian extraction, prefers dancing in night clubs to working in films or on the stage.

It was fun working in "My Wild Irish Rose" and "Two Guys From Texas" in the movies and with Bert Lahr on the stage in "Burlesque," she says, but night clubs are much better.

"The audience is smaller and closer. I feel nearer to the people and can get their reaction," Lilly says.

Looking at you with her deep blue eyes, Lilly tells you she doesn't smoke and she doesn't drink, but she does have a drink named for her.

It's called the Lill Cat-nip and the recipe is secret, but it contains about everything you could put in a mixed drink without giving the customer an enforced cat nap.

After all, who wants to nap when Lilly Christine dances?

APING—Every time a photographer came near Eric, a camera-shy 5-month-old gorilla, he would go into a tantrum. So Pancho, his 3-year-old buddy, decided to ape the cameraman and do the job himself. Weighing a mere seven pounds, the French Equatorial African native will grow into a 700-pound giant.

Drunk on Duty—It's Duty

MIAMI BEACH, Fla.—(AP)—Three Miami Beach policemen recently sat down at a table with a fifth of 100-proof bourbon and got drunk—with the blessing of their superiors and in the interest of science.

The trio were serving as guinea pigs for the city's new "drunkometer," a device for measuring the extent of intoxication. All drank two, four and 10-ounce shots of bourbon, then breathed into a sterile balloon. The alcohol content was rated at .180 or better in each policeman—.150 is considered drunk.

They agreed it was a staggering ordeal.

A warm spring day and you ride out to the field in your brand-new Farmall Cub tractor . . . flip a tiny lever with your finger . . . and down goes the plow! A big, shiny ribbon of soil rolls over . . . yessir, even working's fun with a Farmall Cub!

A fellow east of town said to me, "My kids are always scrapping about who's going to drive the Farmall Cub. How I wish we'd had machines like that when I was a kid. My poor feet sure took a beating!"

Yes, folks, that's what a lot of people are saying since they bought their Farmall Cub . . . and they know that any time parts or service are needed. I'm always here.

Interpretation of Vatican Order on Communists

By James D. White
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

Put yourself in the shoes of a Polish peasant.

He is a Catholic and a devout one in a land where a relatively small body of Communists controls virtually every phase of his day-to-day life.

He is forced, of necessity, to have contact with the Communist propaganda, if only through reading official orders of the government. Assume he has learned of the Vatican excommunication decree, through his diocesan authorities, forbidding him to expose himself to Communist doctrine.

Is he faced with the necessity of disobeying the government and depriving himself of a living? From a literal reading of the decree excommunicating Communists and forbidding Catholic contact with them, this might appear to be the case. However, the effect probably would be to make his contact with his parish priest closer than ever.

Priest Could Judge

The parish priest, his confessor, would have the authority to judge what this peasant could and could not do if he wanted to avoid the risk of cutting himself off from the sacraments of the church.

The crux of the matter is the conscience of the peasant, as his priest most likely would instruct him. Reading government notices which vitally affect his everyday life would not constitute wilful disobedience. Exposing himself knowingly to Communist propaganda would.

He is inevitably caught between two systems of supreme authority. The church holds itself supreme in all spiritual matters. A Communist government claims supremacy in temporal affairs, and wants authority over church affairs, too.

Sort Wheat From Chaff

What the peasant must do is sort the wheat from the chaff, with the assistance of his spiritual advisor. He must now learn what he has to reject and what he may accept.

To good Catholics, this can be a matter of spiritual life or death. To citizens of Communist countries, it can be life or death, period.

The Vatican has unsheathed its supreme weapon—and the Communists have asked for it. They have attacked the church in all the countries of eastern Europe, and even in northern Korea.

The Communists have had a lot of experience at this. The Russian Orthodox church exists today, partly because the Soviets found they could not wipe out religion without wiping out the people who follow it—and partly because the orthodox church in Russia adjusted itself to Soviet rule.

Rebellion May Have Begun

This is not to say the Roman Catholic church of today is like the Russian orthodox church that bowed to the Soviets, except that both are churches and churches that are made up of people.

Widespread rebellion may already have begun in Czechoslovakia, for instance, as Catholic peasants support their priests who are victims of Communist campaigns against them. It may spread, weaken the Communist hold in such countries, and alter the political face of eastern Europe.

On the other hand, if Communist control is strong enough, local church groups may have to adjust themselves if they are to live.

In any case, the Vatican's order seems to mean that as far as it is concerned there is to be no compromise in the religious phase of the cold war.

Rice Deteriorates In Relief Work

BANGKOK—(AP)—Rice sent for relief of suffering residents of the southern provinces of Thailand (Siam) have undergone a corruption process before reaching the starving.

The rice has been changed from 30 percent to 50 percent broken grade, reported Deputy Agriculture Minister Nai Kitcha Vathanasilp after a tour of the area.

OFFERS EYE—Paul Richter, 46, Kansas City, Mo., reads a calendar on the opposite side of the room as he offered to sold his good left eye for $5,000 in order that his ailing wife could spend her remaining days on earth "in peace and comfort." Richter, an unemployed painter, made the unusual offer as a last desperate hope to prolong his wife's life. "I've been plagued by bad luck since a youth," Richter said, "and I have about reached the end of my rope." Richter's right eye is slightly impaired because of an accident a few years ago.

For Hennings As Candidate

ST. LOUIS, July 16—(AP)—The St. Louis Central Democratic committee adopted a resolution last night urging Thomas C. Hennings, Jr., to run for the U. S. Senate in 1950.

Hennings, a former congressman, was a guest of honor at a dinner given by Jules J. Schatzman, a broker.

All but two of the city's 28 wards were represented at the dinner and only two of the committeemen present declined to vote for the resolution. They said they wanted to consult first with their ward organizations.

The resolution was introduced by John K. Regan, committeeman for the 17th ward, who termed Hennings "an ideal candidate" for the senate.

Among those who rose to second Regan's proposal was State Senator Anthony Webbe of the 7th ward.

Old Age Pensioners Should Have July Checks by Monday

JEFFERSON CITY, July 16—(AP) — Missouri's complaining old age pensioners should have their July checks by Monday.

Gov. Forrest Smith announced plans today to get the delayed checks in the mail tomorrow by using emergency postoffice crews.

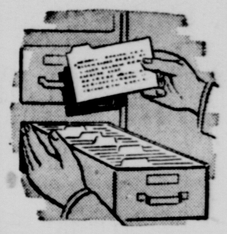

The checks — about 124,000 of them—normally go out the first of the month. They average around $42. But this month the legislature did not pass the necessary appropriation bill until July 1, the first day of the state's new financial year.

The money bill is expected to be signed tomorrow by the presiding officers of the House and Senate, then it will be rushed to the governor for his immediate signature.

The envelopes are stuffed and the checks are ready to go as soon as the governor acts. Many pensioners have complained about the delay.

Aid to dependent children and general relief checks also have been held up. They will go out at the same time tomorrow, giving the local postoffice 162,992 checks to handle. The governor said extra men will be working to get the big volume of mail started on its way promptly.

Altogether the welfare bill carries $196,100,050, including $112,278,006 in federal matching funds and the rest in state money.

Two Army Generals Suspended

Pending Inquiry Of Allegations They Used Influence In Contract Awards

WASHINGTON, July 16 — (AP) — The army today suspended its quartermaster general and the chief of the chemical corps because of evidence turned up by a Senate committee investigating alleged influence in army contract awards.

Those relieved of duty were: Maj. Gen. Herman Feldman, 57, who enlisted as a private 42 years ago and rose through the ranks to head the army's quartermaster section.

Maj. Gen. Alden Harry Waitt, 56, who has served most of his 26 years in the army as a chemical warfare specialist.

Secretary of the Army Gordon Gray, who announced the suspensions. said in a statement that a Senate investigating committee "has evidence which indicates that General Waitt improperly furnished personnel data to an individual not in the military service and who was not entitled to receive such data; and that General Feldman furnished to a contractor's representative procurement information under circumstances which appear irregular."

Lack of Judgment

Gray said that he was "not attempting to draw conclusions on the basis of an incomplete investigation" but that he had ordered the officers' release pending the outcome of a complete inquiry by the inspector general of the army.

He acted, he said, "because evidence secured to date indicates that each officer had exhibited a lack of that judgement and sense of propriety which must be expected of persons in their position."

The secretary added that "each officer would be given ample opportunity for a full hearing."

Shortly after Gray's announcement, Waitt left the Pentagon saying he had no comment at that time. Feldman, reached by telephone later, also said he had no statement.

The suspension order first was disclosed by Chairman Hoey (D-NC) of the Senate Expenditures subcommittee which has set out to find out about persons "who hold themselves out as peddlers of influence" in obtaining government contracts, with particular attention to large commission fees.

Touched Off Last Month

The Senate probe was touched off by a story last month in the New York Herald Tribune about a contract that James V. Hunt, a former officer in the quartermaster corps, had with Paul Grindle, a Framingham, Mass., furniture manufacturer.

Grindle was quoted as saying he gave Hunt a $1,000 fee, to be followed by $500 monthly payments for a year, plus 5 percent of the gross on any government contract he received. Grindle said Hunt had mentioned several government officials, implying he had considerable influence.

Hunt denied ever trying to sell "influence." He said his services were an aid to small businessmen.

Both Feldman and Waitt were listed by Grindle as among those Hunt had mentioned as contacts in the army. Both officers denied "influence" figured in the award of contracts.

In Another Probe

Waitt also figured in another Capitol Hill probe three years ago when the old Senate War Investigating committee conducted its spectacular inquiry into operations of the munitions combine of Murray and Henry Garsson and its dealing with former Rep. Andrew May (D-Ky), then chairman of the House Military Affairs committee. The Garssons and May later were convicted on war fraud charges.

In his testimony before the Senate group, Waitt acknowledged that he had attended a wedding party for Murray Garsson's daughter in New York on a trip for which the government footed his $36 travel bill.

The committee also was told Garsson paid hotel expenses for Waitt and other guests, but the general contended that the trip in January 1944 was necessary for the war effort and that the wedding party was only incidental.

Labor Leader, A. F. Whitney, Died Saturday

Gained Notice in 1946 Feud With President Truman

CLEVELAND, July 16—(AP)—Death came today to A. F. Whitney, 76, labor leader and political liberal, at the age of 76.

He had gained his greatest public notice in his celebrated 1946 feud with President Truman. But he was Mr. Truman's most prominent labor backer in the last election.

The tall, broad-shouldered man with a plume of white hair had been president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen since 1928. His successor will be named by the brotherhood's eight directors, probably within the next ten days.

A heart attack, early this morning at his home, caused Whitney's death. He had spent a full day at his office yesterday and was expecting to attend a grand lodge (headquarters) picnic today.

Survivors

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Dorothy May Whitney; two sons, Gen. Joseph L Whitney of the U. S. Air Force and Everett A. Whitney of Chicago; a daughter, Mrs. Richard J. Olson, also of Chicago; and two sisters, Mrs. Charles Degarmo of Early, Ia., and Mrs. Etta Benson of Staples, Minn.

Message From Truman

CLEVELAND, July 16—(AP)—A message from President Harry S. Truman to the widow of Alexander F. Whitney, deceased president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, follows:

"A fearless and faithful champion of human rights has been lost to the American scene in the sudden taking of Mr. Whitney.

"Happily, to the last he was active in a life prolonged in the full summit of its powers many years beyond the average. Although a hard fighter in any cause he considered just, he came through his many battles singularly free of the spirit of vindictiveness or revenge.

"He saw all things in their due proportion and became in a high degree the exemplar of the philosopher's teaching that a foolish consistency is the hobgoblin of little minds.

"To you and to all his sorrowing family I offer the assurance of heart felt sympathy."

Fraternity Has Sign to Get Work For College Men

BOSTON, July 16—(AP)—A six-dollar sign may pay for five futures.

It hangs outside a red brick Beacon street house—home of a Boston university fraternity—and reads:

"1949 college graduates available—1 accountant, 1 public relations-publicity man, 1 management trainee, 1 economist, 1 marketing major—inquire within."

The five available, who said the sign cost them $6 are Arthur Pellock, Springfield; Jack Crane, Stoughton; Sherman Shapiro, New Haven, Conn.; Irving Wolkow and Kenneth Kopel, both of Boston.

It's only been out a few days and Shapiro says he has his job—as a management trustee.

Governor's Day At Fair On August 24

Governor's Day and, incidentally, Kansas City Day, at the Missouri State Fair here will be Wednesday, August 24, and on that day Governor Forrest Smith will take in the fair, visit with his fellow Missourians and participate in certain of the day's events.

In the forenoon, Governor Smith will present a special award to the highest-scoring baby girl in the blue-ribbon and nine-point health examination event. The governor will also receive the blue-ribbon country-cured ham, which will be presented to him in an appropriate ceremony by the winner of the ham event.

In the county-exhibit division, the governor will present a sweepstakes plaque to the county in Missouri which makes the most outstanding exhibit of livestock in the 4-H club division, including the junior beef and junior dairy show.

Crowning Function

The governor's crowning function in the day's program will be his presentation of the Governor Forrest Smith silver trophy to the winner of the $5,000 Big-5 Pace on the mile track in front of the grandstand in the afternoon. The afternoon's racing program will embrace four big races, with purses totaling $30,000.

Many state officials and employes from Jefferson City, as well as a huge attendance from outstate and from Kansas City, are expected on Wednesday.

Woman Who Advertised for Husband Has Ended Her Quest

SALT LAKE CITY, July 16—(AP)—Mrs. Elena Lebaron, the divorcee and mother of eight who made the nation's headlines recently when she advertised for a husband, has ended her quest.

She is now Mrs. Robt. Shrewsbury

The couple revealed today that they eloped to Evanston, Wyo., last week and were married. They now are planning a four-month honeymoon to Arizona.

Sure, Shrewsbury said, they are going to take the children

"What's a honeymoon without kids?" she said, surveying his new flock of eight.

He added that eight may not be enough.

"Yes," he said, "I think Elena and I will have some additions to the family."

Shrewsbury is a 35-year-old Salt Lake City carpenter

Divorced himself, he is the father of four children.

Shrewsbury, who fell in love with Mrs. Lebaron when he saw her picture in the newspapers when she first advertised for a husband, averred he is going to keep his new wife in the kitchen.

To give weight to his words, he and Elena held a little ceremony and burned the more than 500 letters Elena received from bachelors all over the world.

Mother Wants Son's Body Brought Here

Rich Californian, Name Unknown, Furnishes Money

PORTLAND, Ore., July 16—(AP)—A big-hearted Californian with a passion for anonymity arranged for the burial of a 7-year-old hero today.

It was Thursday when 7-year-old Jacob Charles Sumners, one of the six children of transient berry pickers, heard a little boy yell that his foot was caught in rocks of the Sandy river.

Little Jacob, wading on the other side, started splashing across the river to help. The mid-stream current caught him.

The Sumners family, formerly of Sedalia, later of Dresden, and more recently of near Lincoln, left that place a couple of years ago. Mr. Sumners' mother resides about seven or eight miles southeast of Lincoln now. Mrs. Sumners' family name, before her marriage, was Burnett.

The body was restored to the dazed parents, who had stopped their trailer on the Sandy banks to let their children cool off. The family had just $25.

"I don't know what we'll do," said Mrs. Joe Sumners next day. "We'd like to bury him in the family plot near Sedalia, Mo. I hate to leave him alone out here."

Asked the Cost

Last night a sport-shirted man in his mid-thirties strode into the police station and ordered a reporter:

"Find out what it costs to send the kid back home."

Oregon Journal reporter Jack Ostergren, who was working on something completely different blinked.

The man jabbed a finger at the newspaper story telling about the destitute family. "Find out what it costs," he demanded. "When people are in trouble, someone's got to help them."

Reporter Ostergren called up the mortuary. The trip to Sedalia—for the body and an escort—would be $225.53.

The man grabbed out a checkbook, signed his name, and threw it down. "You fill out the amount," he said. "Just leave me out of this."

No Name or No Money

Ostergren hastily began the usual reporter's questions. The man got mad.

"I'm from California, up for the races. I've had a few hard knocks myself and I know what it is. That check's good—it won't bounce. But I don't want my name used. If you use it, I'll stop payment on the check."

With that he marched out. Today bank sources confirmed that the check, drawn on the San Mateo branch of the Bank of America, was good.

Reporters took the check to the Sumners today. The father, whose money was now down to $2 grabbed hold of his trailer and burst into tears.

Mrs. Sumners will start for Sedalia with the body of her son at 8:30 a. m. (PST) Monday.

Friday Night's Session

C., was the principal speaker at a banquet at St. Patrick's school hall at 6:30 o'clock Friday evening, with about 250 attending. Mr. Cooper, once a rural mail carrier himself, expressed his pleasure in attending the convention in Sedalia, and termed it highly successful.

Mr. Cooper told of several humorous experiences in the postal department which he had encountered, but also took a serious view on some current national problems. He stated that he thought a depression could be avoided if the people of the country would exercise wise planning in their personal economies, which would in turn have a beneficial effect on the national economy, and suggested that a more optimistic viewpoint be taken on events in the future. Mr. Cooper said that he sympathized with the administration and Congress in their tremendous responsibility of governing the country.

Mr. Cooper was introduced by Paul Benson, of Smithton, a national association committeeman. Later in the evening, he was pre-

Poundstone stated that he would attempt to capture some of the excitement and experiences of a newspaperman, and tell of his association with the newspapers, and newspapermen that flourished in Sedalia in years gone by.

Missouri Highway Patrol is Looking for 31 Young Men

JEFFERSON CITY, July 16—(AP)—The Missouri State Highway Patrol is looking for 31 bright, sturdy young men.

That's the number needed to build up the state police force to the maximum called for under a new law. It raises from 229 to 260 the top strength of the uniformed personnel.

And the new men will be offered a new salary range—from $250 a month up, depending on rank. The salary schedules apply to all uniformed officers in the patrol. But they don't take effect until Oct. 14, when the bill becomes law.

Meanwhile, Col. David Harrison, patrol superintendent, would like to get his recruits lined up and trained.

They'll get a training period before they're assigned to probationary work under the watchful eyes of experienced men. The specifications for Missouri's patrol troopers are rigid:

They must be between 21 and 33 years of age at the time they're appointed and must have the equivalent of a high school education. They can't be less than five feet, eight inches tall nor more than six feet, three.

Physical and mental examinations must be passed.

Missouri reportedly has one of the finest state police forces in the country.

Action Taken by State Supreme Court Saturday

TOPEKA, Kas., July 16—(AP)—The Kansas Supreme Court today suspended Vernon C. Axton as Mayor of Parsons, Kas.

The suspension was ordered pending outcome of a suit by Kansas Attorney General Harold R. Fatzer to oust Axton on charges of misconduct in office.

The court's ruling on the attorney general's request for Axton's suspension came quickly after a 90-minute hearing. Fatzer argued the state's case and Ed Rooney, Topeka attorney, presented Axton's defense.

"Sufficient grounds have been shown for the granting of the motion and it would be in the public interest for such an order to be made," said the court in announcing its decision.

Appoint Acting Successor

State statutes call for the Parsons city commission to appoint a person to fill the office of mayor temporarily, the attorney general said.

The temporary mayor will serve until Axton is cleared and returned to office by the court or until the next regular election, Fatzer added.

Axton has until Aug. 6 to file an answer to the attorney general's ouster petition.

Fatzer charges Axton with misconduct on two counts. He alleges Axton failed to suppress gambling and illegal liquor sales and that Axton reappointed Frank A. Williams chief of police with the knowledge Williams had been extorting money from gamblers and bootleggers for protection of their illegal enterprises.

Dismissed by Commission

Williams was dismissed by the Parsons city commission July 7 at Fatzer's request.

Axton has denied any knowledge of payoffs or illegal activities in Parsons.

Rooney told the court today the case is an outgrowth of a bitter campaign in the Parsons city election last April.

He said most of the affidavits supporting the state's case come from "persons who were opposed to Mayor Axton in the April election and who, paradoxically, represent the law violation element."

Woodland Hospital Notes

Admitted for surgery: Mrs. J. W. Mickens, 216 West Fifth street.

Admitted for medical treatment: Bob Gander, 216 West Broadway.

Dismissed: Mrs. John Asher, 1317 South Moniteau avenue and Mrs. Kate Buzzard, Terry hotel.

Ray Lippard to Speak at Conference

Ray Lippard, 1842 South Barrett avenue, has accepted Gov. Forrest Smith's invitation to attend a state-wide conference for fire-prevention to be held in Jefferson City on September 12.

Mr. Lippard is scheduled to make a speech, "Proper Publicity for Fire Prevention and Civic Cooperation," during the program.

Child 'Deaded' Grocer, He Tells Officers

SAN FRANCISCO, July 16—(AP)—"I deaded him."

That was seven-year-old Teddy Moreno's baby talk way of saying he had killed a man.

Teddy, only 30 inches tall, carried a note for his mother to the corner grocery:

"Please send $1 nice hamburger. Thank you."

Police Inspector Al Nelder said this is what happened:

Fred Throckmorton, 67, operator of the store, went to the meat counter to fill the order.

Teddy wandered behind the counter. He saw a gun lying there—a gun Throckmorton kept for protection. He picked it up.

"The man said 'Look out'," Teddy told police.

It Went Off

"I said 'Does it go off?' and then I pulled the trigger. It worked hard. Then it went off. The pop gun made a noise like a firecracker.

"The man fell down. I deaded him."

The grocer's wife, Tomma, told police she heard the shot and "a scuffling of feet that sounded like kids." She ran into the store from their adjoining living quarters and found her husband dying on the floor. A bullet had penetrated his chest.

Some time afterward, Teddy's mother telephoned police and said her boy knew something about the shooting. Questioned, Teddy told police a strange man had shot the grocer after he protested against the man's grabbing Teddy's $1 bill. The boy even led police to a neighborhood bar and pointed out a man he said had done the shooting.

Sister Told On Him

But then his four-year-old sister, who had accompanied him to the store, said:

"Teddy pulled the trigger."

The boy then readily admited the shooting.

The boy, oldest child in a family of five, was turned over to juvenile authorities who were undecided what to do with him.

Link Name of Princess and Girl Friend With Same Man

LONDON, July 16—(AP)—The question of whether Princess Margaret Rose and her Arizona girl friend, Sharman Douglas, might fall in love with the same man was raised here today.

Noel Whitcomb, the Daily Mirror columnist, wrote that U. S Ambassador Lewis W. Douglas had cut down on the social life of Sharman, his 20-year-old daughter, in fear of just such a situation

A Buckingham palace spokesman observed:

"Naturally there will be no comment from here."

The ambassador's household likewise was not talking publicly about the story The U S Embassy was closed for the week end.

Sharman shines as one of the brightest stars in London's younger social set and is a favorite of British royalty. Princess Margaret, now 19, captivated Sharman when she arrived with her parents in 1947.

"She's so friendly and cute," Sharman explained.

Sharman herself is right cute and friendly.

The royal family likes her. The Duchess of Kent once was overheard describing her: "A sweet child—and unspoiled."

Invariably, when the spotlight's glare is upon Sharman, she murmurs: "What would they think in Arizona?"

She and Margaret often go to the theater together and backstage also, to mingle with the artists. Word got around that they and 10 other girls danced the French can-can in the ambassador's house at a party for 250 persons the other night, with the standard flinging up of skirts to show lace-trimmed panties.

Match-makers at times have linked the name of one or the other to that of the Marquess of Milford Haven, young cousin of King George VI. The Marquess of Blanford, 23-year-old cousin of Winston Churchill, is another among their occasional escorts.

Accounting Of Funds Requested

Charge Rep. Irving And Two Others Diverted Union Funds to Own Use

KANSAS CITY, July 16—(AP)— Charges that Rep. Leonard Irving, Missouri Democrat, and two other men had diverted labor union funds to their own use were contained today in a petition for an accounting.

Irving, elected last November in President Truman's home district, is president and business agent of the Hod Carriers, Building, and Common Laborers' Union of America, (AFL) Local No. 264.

Named with him in the petition filed by 85 members of the union, were Roy E. Livingston, treasurer and financial secretary, and Alvin Butcher, corresponding and recording secretary.

An alleged decrease of $37,000 in the union's treasury within five or six months was cited by an attorney as one of the reasons for filing the petition.

Paul Barnett, representing the union members bringing the suit, said:

"According to reports made in open meeting of the union, the bank balance in the treasury dropped from about $98,000 in December, 1948, or January, 1949, to about $61,000 in May, 1949, notwithstanding a large income from initiations and dues. The members want to know what caused such tremendous expenses in so short a time."

The 14-page petition, filed in circuit court here, alleged that the defendants and other members of the executive board conspired "to divert funds of the local union to their own use and the use of the defendants severally, and to various purposes not authorized by the local union or its members x x x."

General Denial

In Washington the congressman issued a general denial of the allegations. Shown a copy of a wire story about the suit, he told the Kansas City Star:

"All of these things I have read about are untrue. There has been a small clique working against me as long back as 1940."

Livingston, the 32-year-old full-time treasurer, was the first of the three reached for comment.

"We don't have anything to worry about," he said. "Our books are in good shape."

Saying he believed the 85 plaintiffs were "disgruntled members," he added:

"We have 1,800 members, and no one can satisfy all of them."

Child's Left Leg Is Paralyzed

Linda Sue Clark, two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed C. Clark, 167 South Autumn avenue, is paralyzed in her left leg, below the knee.

Linda became ill July 4, and was taken to the University hospital at Columbia, July 7, then as a poliomyelitis suspect. Mr. Clark quoted doctors as saying that in all probability it was only temporary polio in Linda's case.

Mr. Clark said that his daughter would remain in the hospital for at least another week before bringing her home. He said it would be some time before she would be able to walk, and that she would have to wear a brace.

Mr. Clark is employed at Esser's Hardware and Sporting Goods store on West Main street. The family have resided in Sedalia about six weeks, coming here from Springfield, Mo.

Slash In Military Spending

Severe Blow is Dealt Those in Move for Bigger Aviation Force

WASHINGTON, July 16—(AP)—A $1,010,000,000 slash in military spending was voted Friday by the Senate appropriations committee in an action which dealt a severe blow to advocates of a bigger Air Force.

The cut the committee recommended to the Senate was from a total of $15,900,000,000 in cash and contract authority previously voted by the House for operating the Army, Navy and Air Forces during the current fiscal year, which began July 1.

Senator Elmer Thomas (D-Okla) told reporters that an additional slash of up to $600,000,000 in funds for stockpiling materials may be recommended before the Senate acts.

As for the slashes voted Friday:

Thomas said that Secretary of Defense Johnson will be directed —with his prior agreement—to cut $433,000,000 from the funds of the three services in any manner he wishes.

Cut Air Force Funds

In addition the committee voted a $799,000,000 slash in Air Force funds approved by the House to raise the Air Forces from 48 groups recommended by the President to 58 groups urged by air-minded congressmen.

Thomas said the committee also decided to end the program of one-year enlistments, permitted under the draft act, by simply cutting off these funds with a savings of $50,000,000.

These three cuts add up to $1,282,000,000 but Thomas said the net reduction from the House bill would be only $1,010,000,000. He explained it this way: The House made some decreases in some items in the bill while increasing others. The Senate committee restored the decreases but then voted to tell Secretary Johnson to cut $433,000,000 in any manner he chose.

Prediction Of Balance

Thomas flatly predicted to reporters after two closed sessions of the full Senate appropriations committee that "the budget this year will be balanced."

He said a previous slash of about 10 per cent in the European Recovery Program plus an expected cutback of funds would bring government spending and income into balance.

Under the broad-termed order to Secretary Johnson for saving $433,000,000 Thomas said it would be possible to cut all of it from any one of the services—Air Force, Army or Navy.

"But we know he won't do that," Thomas added dryly, "or he never would come back up here again."

Thomas explained that the novel economy proposal had been discussed with Johnson. Its total indicated some agreement had been reached privately between Johnson and senators as to where the cut swould be made.

Thomas said the Senate committee also approved "by a close margin" a House provision that would permit the Army to buy oleomargarine. For many years the military bills have carried a rider that required funds be spent for butter and not for substitutes.

"Secretary Johnson approves the bill in every particular," Thomas added.

The cutback of $50,000,000 funds for one-year enlistments would mean a gradual end to a feature of the Selective Service Act.

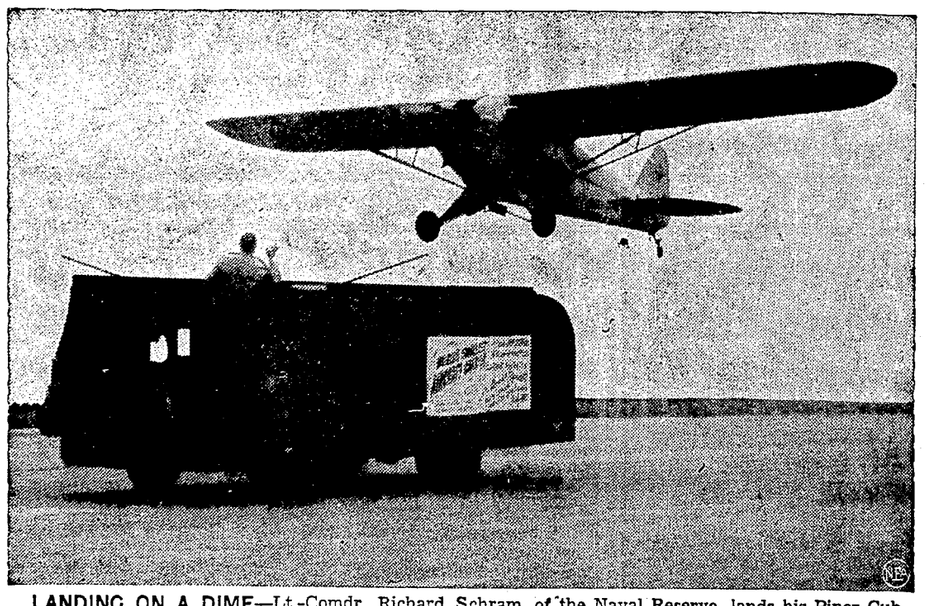

That allowed youths 18 years and older, who might be drafted, to volunteer for a 12 month term and afterward continue in the National Guard or other active reserve organization." Navy and Air Force officials testified this was an expensive program.

Thomas said he hopes another cutback of up to $600,000,000 can be made in some $835,000,000 of cash and contract authority voted by Congress for stockpiling funds in previous appropriations this year.

These are funds to acquire surplus stocks of tin, copper, lead, zinc and many other items that would be needed in case of a war or emergency.

Because other senators had handled these items, Thomas said the full committee decided to ask those groups to reconsider the stock-piling funds and limit them to "a one-year basis or about $200,000,000".

"We already have a billion dollars worth of stock-piled supplies on hand," Thomas said.

President Truman Suggests Business Should Cut Prices

By James Marlow

WASHINGTON, July 14.—(AP)—President Truman is putting the heat on business, not on labor, to get this country out of its slump.

He wants business men to cut prices, but not wages.

He made this true in his report to congress on Monday and in his radio talk last night.

Further, he challenged steel companies to let government fact-finders check on their ability to meet their workers' demands.

Mr. Truman thinks there's reason to worry about the economic illness which the country is suffering now.

One of the main cures he suggests is a cut in prices. Too-high prices, he says, brought on the inflation.

That inflation was bound to bust sooner or later, he says, and it's busted now. His reasoning goes:

Bought What They Needed

When prices soared after the war, people with money to spend bought what they needed, in spite of the prices.

At last they had to begin cutting down on their buying because of the big gap between the prices and their pocketbooks.

So production began to go down. It's still going down. This meant fewer and fewer people needed to produce and more people were made jobless. Unemployment is growing. So—

1. What is needed is more production to make more jobs for more people, although there can't be more production unless people are able to buy what's made.

2. They won't be able to do the necessary buying unless the prices are cut down closer to their ability to buy. Therefore, to encourage buying, prices should be cut down.

Spurs Production

3. The more the buying, the more the need for production of things that people want to buy. And that will mean more people employed to do the producing.

4. But if wages are cut, when prices are cut, then the gap between prices and ability to buy remains the same and people will have too little money to buy the reduced goods.

5. Therefore, to keep up people's ability to buy, wages should not be cut. But—businessmen will lose some of their present profits if they cut prices but not wages.

6. That's all right. The main point is to have people with money to buy goods, since that will encourage production and employment. In the end business men will make sufficient profits through the increased volume of production, or number of items they sell.

Burden on Business

That's what Mr. Truman suggests. It puts the burden on business, not on labor.

For days now a crisis has been developing in the steel industry. Some of the biggest companies have refused to grant the CIO steelworkers' demands for higher wages and other benefits.

The workers threatened to strike. This would mean more unemployment at once. And, if it lasted long, it would be a severe jolt to the whole economy since so many businesses need steel.

To prevent a strike, Mr. Truman asked the CIO and the companies to keep on working while he set up a board of government fact-finders to look into both sides of the argument.

The CIO agreed. The biggest companies refused, telling Mr. Truman this was not a proper move for him to make. They said he should have acted under the Taft-Hartley labor law, which includes steps to forbid the strike.

He told the companies: "Surely, you're not afraid to have your side in this dispute examined in the public interest."

A real fact-finding job would be an examination of the companies' ability to meet the workers' demands. If they reported the companies could do it, this would put strong public pressure on them to give in to what the steelworkers wanted.

Names Board Of Three on Steel Dispute

Asks Report in 45 Days as to Recommendations

WASHINGTON, July 16—(AP)—President Truman late Friday named a three-man board to seek a settlement of the steel labor dispute.

Carroll R. Daugherty, professor of business economics at Northwestern University, heads it. Other members are Samuel I. Rosenman, former special counsel to the President, and David L. Cole, Patterson, N. J. labor relations expert.

In letters to the three members, the President expressed hope that they will convene at the earliest possible time.

Asks For Report

He asked them to report to him within 45 days from tomorrow "with your recommendations to the parties as to fair and equitable terms of settlement."

Daugherty has been a professor of economics at Northwestern U., Evanston, Ill., since 1946.

During the first Roosevelt administration, Daugherty was an economist with NRA on labor conditions in the iron and steel industry.

Daugherty is 50 years old.

Cole, 47-year old lawyer, has been a lecturer of labor relations and chairman of the New Jersey Board of Mediation.

In 1944, Cole was chairman of a War Labor Board panel that sat in disputes involving the steel industry.

Since 1936, he has been counsel of the Silk and Rayon Manufacturers Association and Master Weavers Institute since 1933.

Rosenman, 53, was one of the original Roosevelt "brain trust" and one time member of the New York legislature.

He was serving as a justice of the New York supreme court when Franklin D. Roosevelt called him to Washington in 1943 to take over the full time job of special counsel to the President. He held this post under President Truman until he retired in 1946 to resume the practice of law in New York City.

County Courthouse in the Olden Days Was Never Idle

Usually the first, and sometimes the only public building built in pioneer Missouri counties was the courthouse. As such it served its duty as the official mill for county business, but when court was not in session, the courthouse never stood idle. Its uses were general rather than specific and everything from teaching school to dancing was held within the hallowed walls of justice. The door was never closed.

Missouri courthouses have not always been the imposing edifices they are now. Usually when the county seat was designated, a private home served as a meeting place for court until one could be built. In Linn county Judge Clark held his first court at the homeof John Holland, an official. The court convened in a room warmed by a fireplace with a smokey chimney. The smoke was almost intolerable and the good judge and attorneys wept copiously over cases which were not at all sad. It was discovered that the trouble with the chimney was that the back wall was full of gaps and cracks. Right in the middle of this all-important first session, the back wall fell out and the judge adjourned the meeting —with tears in his eyes.

All Sorts of Meetings

Dances, fancy balls, spelling bees, singing classes, and all denominations of church meetings kept the courthouse open day and night. It was the center of the community. Old people of the settlement went there to discuss their affairs and learn news of the outside world from visiting attorneys. Little children went there to learn their ABC's, and at night when all activity had ceased, it often served as a resting place for weary travelers. Indeed, its doors swung on easy hinges.

The uses of the courthouse were not always so dignified, but just as necessary. The story is told in Montgomery county that the first courthouse in Lewiston was a log and puncheon-floored building which was watched over by a Mr. Kibbe. Mr. Kibbe put it to good use when court was not in session —he stabled his sheep in it. However, care was always taken to drive out the sheep and sweep the house clean before each meeting of court.

In the prairie counties, where the great green-head flies made life almost unbearable for men and animals alike during the daytime, the old courthouse was used as a refuge for the sheep, cattle and horses that were driven from the prairies after sun-up by the flies.

Not Easily Discouraged

It took more than that to discourage the settlers of our state from dispensing juctice. These were casual days, when the records of the court were carried around in official's breast pockets, written on various scraps of paper, the backs of envelopes, and anything else available.

On very special nights the old courthouses were illuminated with light and the gay strains of a waltz swung through the moonlight. But even more wonderful was its use by the traveling montebanks, the delightfully wicked "show people," who got the consent of the court to use the "hallowed and never-to-be desecrated court room" for the diversion of the fun-loving public.

But alas, in time the courthouses lost a part of their glamor, for officials discovered flagrant abuses, and in Lawrence county, at least, the court barred the use of the court house to certain persons, such as members of traveling shows, and ordered that never again should its sacred walls be forced to echo the strains of dance music.

This marked the passage of an era in the lives of courthouses, for the sheriff of Lawrence county was told to order a key or the building and keep it locked except for uses of churches, schools, or political pow-wows. Thus entered the key into the carefree existence of the courthouse, and while people love to loaf, gossip and attend to business in its shelter, the look that said, "Come in stranger, and rest yourself," was gone.

Statisticians Dream of Luscious Unimals

By Lawrence N. Eldred

CHICAGO, July 16 — (AP) — There's a new kind of critter roaming the economic pastures these days.

It's the "unimal," a brainfed hybrid invented to measure the ratio of meat, milk, eggs and poultry to our human population.

The unimal has the head of a beef steer, topped with a roasting chicken's comb. Its forequarters descended from sheep. Its hind legs and the wings on its back came from an egg-laying hen. It carries a milking cow's udder, and its rear third once belonged to a hot, including a healthily curled tail.

This strange addition to the animal kingdom is the brainchild of H. Edward Babcock, of Ithaca, N. Y., and is being raised by a group of livestock, dairy and poultry organizations. The group chairman is R. C. Pollock, of the National Livestock and Meat Board.

Babcock formerly was professor of marketing at Cornell University and general manager of the Grange League Federation, a New York State farm cooperative. He now owns and operates livestock and poultry farms totaling around 800 acres.

The purpose of the unimal is to simplify and reduce multiple-digit figures for easier understanding.

The process lumps together hogs, beef cattle, dairy cattle, sheep and poultry and assigns each a relative statistical value depending on weight and the amount of feed consumed. The resulting composite is called an unimal.

For instance, Babcock finds that this year we have around 206,200,000 unimals producing the so-called refrigerator products —meat, milk and so forth. We have an estimated 146,300,000 persons old enough to eat full rations of such farm products.

Back To 1939

But instead of dealing with huge figures such as those, Babcock reduces them to unimals and discovers we have approximately 1.4 unimals per person. This puts us back to about 1939, down substantially from the peak of 1.9 reached in 1943.

Babcock contends we need a full two unimals per person for adequate diet needs.

Expressed in actual numbers, he compares the productive livestock we have with how much more we need for a population of 150,000,000 as follows:

How much we have: Hogs 55,000,000; beef cattle, 41,200,000; dairy cattle, 37,300,000; sheep, 35,300,000; poultry 468,000.000.

How much more we need: Hogs, 20,000,000; beef cattle, 11,000,000; dairy cattle, 10,000,000; sheep, 8,000,000; poultry 120,000,000.

In addition to diet requirements, he says, if we had the extra livestock American agriculture could better rebuild its soil with animal fertilizers, could bulwark the family-type farm, could set up the best possible food reserve, and could make animal agriculture one of the best guarantees for continued national prosperity and stability.

On this last point, Babcock says 56 per cent of farm income is from livestock and more than half the workers of the nation are engaged in the food industry. He estimates 80 per cent of that half are engaged in the livestock and associated industries.

"At the moment," he says, quite in contrast to war years, this country is worrying about the problem of so-called surplus grain, which will become worse as exports fall off. This grain, when it builds up beyond needed reserves, tends to derpess the market to the point where it will choke off production.

"There are three ways to deal with this 'surplus.' It can be degraded into fuel and burned. It can be hoarded and piled up in dead storage. It can be fed to unimals and converted into the foods we need most.

"We can't work out a clear-cut solution of the problem of surpulses in a hurry. But it is umportant to everyone—farmers and consumers alike—that the man-unimal ratio be improved."

Army Depot Blast Kills Twelve

PRUEM, Germany, July 16—(AP)—A French army depot exploded Friday night, killing 12 Germans, injuring scores more, and leaving hundreds homeless in the vicinity of this west German town.

German police said the death toll may go higher.

The entire northern part of the town was destroyed, police said. Pruem is about 45 miles west of Coblenz and near the junction of the German, Belgian and Luxembourg frontiers.

Cause of the explosion was not determined, but no sabotage is suspected.

The depot, operated by French occupation forces, was in a former air raid shelter built into a hill.

The depot stored such explosives as TNT and dynamite, but no ammunition was known to be stored there, police said.

They described it as an underground depot about 120 yards long and four yards wide, with two entrances about 70 yards apart. The area was restricted and guarded by Germans under supervision of French officers.

Guards at the depot were reported to have noticed smoke shortly before the blast and sounded a warning, probably averting a greater casualty toll. The blast occurred about 8 p. m. (1 p. m. EST). It was believed a short circuit in an electrical line might have caused the explosion.

It darkened all lights and disrupted telephone connections. Telephone service was partially restored later.

Jail Problem Like Phoenix bird—

Given time, the Pettis County jail problem may emulate the fabled Phoenix bird that lived for 500 years, consumed itself in fire of its own making, then rose in freshness of life from its ashes.

Characteristically the Pettis County grand jury, like so many others the past fifty years, was again confronted with making a recommendation to the people about the delapidated county jail building on South Lamine avenue.

Said the jury: "We recommend that ways and means be devised and provided for the erection of an adequate, safe and modern place of detention for prisoners, insane persons and juveniles."

That meaningful one-sentence assertion has been reiterated so often it is like a drop of water rolling off a duck's back insofar as arousing public interest in a new jail building is concerned.

Nevertheless this present building is a discredit to Pettis county as anyone with fair conscience will allow after an examination of it. The pity is so few citizens are aware of the structural defects. Disheartening as the task is, the Pettis County sheriff and his staff maintain unusual cleanliness about the premises.

The jail is not a fit place for detention of mental patients or juvenile cases. Even though Buena Vista farm affords limited care of such patients out in the county, this is not enough.

Ministers of every church in the county, members of every service club should arrange with the sheriff for a personal inspection of the jail. Then if they do not agree with the recent grand jury's recommendation, let the matter of a new jail drop. If they do agree then a county-wide campaign should begin to "devise ways and means to erect an adequate, safe and modern place of detention for prisoners, insane persons and juveniles."

A Passing Era of Cynicism

If you believe that human conduct is motivated wholly by self-interest, you may classify yourself among the cynics.

These days it is mighty difficult not to be a cynic because we read and hear so much about activities of the numerous pressure groups representing every segment of the nation's social and business life, each striving daily and desperately for exclusive material gains.

There is more awareness of this condition in the present because the world grows and communications expand and become more facile. Yet cynics were snarling and biting over man's selfish status a half century before Christ and no doubt before the actual dawn of civilization.

Before becoming a confirmed cynic one should look about and discover the many good deeds his fellowmen perform daily. Good deeds, unlike evil ones, are not advertised.

The human race may run through cycles of spiritual depression, universal meanness, persecution and all the devil's devices, yet the spark of Divinity in man can never be extinguished. In succeeding cycles it ever flares anew and ever will.

About reformers, Elbert Hubbard had this epigram:

"Most reformers wore rubber boots and stood on glass when God sent a current of Commonsense through the Universe."

Goring Whose Ox?—

For the past sixteen years it has been a popular pastime of the social planners to beat the power companies over the head with a club. Maybe they needed it a time or two, but even so they have a right to swing an upper cut when they are clipped from behind.

Recently the manager of an Electric Cooperative of Higginsville lambasted the power companies for charging "high rates" to the cooperatives.

The Missouri Public Service came right back with an answer, by telling that they had charged the Cooperative Electric Company 96c for 80 kilowatts of energy, and the Co-op turned around and sold this 96c worth of energy to one of its farmer customers for $4.41—quite a sizeable profit for even a Co-op. We'd like to hear the Co-op's answer to that one.

S. Marr Tallic says if you want to make sure the grocer gives you a full pound of sugar, you might count the grains. There should be 2,360,000 to the pound.

An Abortive Gambling Crusade—

The one-man gambling crusade by the Rev. Holland B. London, of St. Louis, insofar as Sedalia is concerned, turned out to be somewhat of an abortive enterprise, qualified by one supposition that if there was any commercial gambling going on the gamblers ran to cover for the duration of the grand jury session.

The Rev. Mr. London clung to that extenuation of the merit of his broadsides directed this way.

Winding up its affairs, the Pettis County grand jury reported a dearth of evidence sufficient upon which to return true bills. Not a single person rapped for entrance on the grand jury door with voluntary evidence that they or their neighbors had been unkindly treated by professional gamblers. Even the St. Louis pastor didn't approach the door enthusiastically—he had to be subpoenaed to appear.

The public was certainly on notice that the June grand jury was in session and ready to function. There were some voluntary appearances on other matters—but not on gambling. So, indubitably, the financially stricken, and their sympathizers, must prefer to continue mourning their gambling losses on the curbstone rather than before a grand jury.

One healthy conclusion arrived at individually by the members of the grand jury, even though unspoken, was that Prosecuting Attorney William Brown and Sheriff John Taylor are not going to tolerate wide-open gambling in Sedalia. In accomplishing this purpose, however, they are going to have to have more co-operation in obtaining evidence than they or the recent grand jury had.

Sedalia, Near Heaven

An unusually attractive and informative guide book covering the state of Missouri has been issued by the Missouri Recreation Association. The 168-page brochure contains advertising by communities with emphasis on resort and recreational facilities. It is profusely illustrated. James F. Gamble is editor of the publication which is being distributed by the Division of Resources and Development to persons interested in Missouri vacations.

The booklet devotes two pages of photographs and facts to Sedalia, including this illuminating conclusion:

"There are 101 undeniable good reasons for a move to Sedalia and why Sedalians only half jokingly say:—'Sedalia isn't heaven—it just isn't as high up."

An Elevator For The Court House—

Thirty years made a lot of difference.

In 1919 as a reporter, when I used to climb the stairs to the circuit court room in Pettis County court house, I never once thought about the convenience of an elevator.

But after 30 years while the height of the climb may be the same there's a bit more puffing the last few steps to the court room.

Of course anyone who has served on a grand jury knows about the weight of business transacted by that body, scarcely a moment allowed to day dream (?). Anyhow I slipped in a dream or two about how accommodating an elevator would be for us old men who don't have the wind we used to have. Juryman Herman Bloess just laughs when I say I'm "short-winded."

But no foolin', an elevator for the court house would really be appreciated by young and old. The county court ought to put this on its agenda, especially since the administration is toying with the idea of resuming plans for federal grants on public improvement projects.

Even Senators' Wives Participate in Dixiecrat-Republican Coalition

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON, July 17—Even the senators' wives are embroiled in the Republican-Dixiecrat coalition that now really rules the Senate.

The Senate Ladies Auxiliary, sometimes called the Senate Ladies Luncheon club, is a friendly organization of all Senate wives regardless of politics, which ordinarily is presided over by the wife of the vice president. But since Alben Barkley is a widower and the next Democrat in line—president pro tem of the Senate Kenneth McKeller—is a bachelor, the next ranking wife is Mrs. Millard Tydings of Maryland whose husband was elected to the Senate in 1937.

Mrs. Tydings, daughter of Ex-Ambassador Joe Davies is one of the loveliest ladies in the Senate, and it has always been taken for granted that the wife with the most seniority should be automatically elected. However, the club's bylaws call for an election in case there is no vice president, and this year Mrs. Taft of Ohio, who is as astute as she is charming, saw to it that the bylaws were carried out.

Rather than see her rival, Mrs. Tyding, elected, Mrs. Taft rallied the Republican wives behind a Dixiecrat dark horse—Helen Ellender, wife of the senator from Louisiana. This was contrary to all tradition, since Senator Ellender wasn't elected until 10 years after Tydings.

But, as in the Senate, the G. O. P.-Dixiecrat coalition won and Mrs. Ellender became president of the Ladies' Auxiliary. That's the reason for the social icicles today whenever Mrs. Taft and Mrs. Tydings meet.

Note—Chief activity of the Ladies' Auxiliary is Red Cross work. Once a week the wives don Red Cross Uniforms, meet in two spacious rooms allotted for them in the Senate Office Building. Meanwhile, Senate employes are cramped for lack of space. Yet Senator Ellender, whose wife has charge of the two empty rooms, is blocking a bill to construct a new office building.

Religious Debate In Congress

Most important issue now being discussed in Capitol Hill cloakrooms is the religious fight over federal aid to education. This was brought to a head when Cardinal Spellman hurled the "bigot" charge at Congressman Barden of North Carolina, author of the provision that no money from the education bill be used for any religious school—whether Catholic, Baptist or Methodist.

Ever since, Congressmen's offices have been deluged with mail—on both sides of the question—some of it bitter.

One congressman who met the issue early is Rep. Andrew Jacobs, Indiana Democrat, himself a Catholic, but who has defended Barden against Cardinal Spellman's attack.

Going back to his home town, Indianapolis, some time ago, Jacobs attended a Knights of Columbus meeting where he put the issue of federal education up to a large group of Catholics. After lengthy debate the consensus of opinion was that federal money should not go to parochial schools.

"The only one who disagreed," says Congressman Jacobs, "was the priest. The non-clergy Catholics all felt there was a great danger to the church if federal money was used for church schools. Eventually, the government might dominate the thinking of those schools."

State Over Church

Congressman John McSweeney of Ohio has taken a similar view, writing to Father Edward S. Hannon of Wooster, O., McSweeney argued:

"Although I realize that parents of parochial school children are taxpayers, I know that you will agree with me in that these parents have the freedom of choice between sending their children to a public or a parochial school.

"I wish to point out also that there is always the possibility that parochial schools would lose their identity as such should they receive public funds since public school officials are entrusted wtih the task of establishing educational standards which may run counter to the teachings of the particular church sponsoring parochial schools. This would result in clashes of ideology.

"I firmly believe that a great danger would be encountered by parochial schools should they receive public funds and thereby come under the control of State Boards of Education."

On the other hand, Congressmen Lesinski of Michigan and Kennedy of Massachusetts, both Catholics and both Democratic members of the Education and Labor committee, are endeavoring to bottle the bill in committee and state quite frankly that they are motivated by church opposition.

Congressional Backtrack

Representatives Richard Nixon of California and Harold Velde of Illinois, both Republicans, did some fast backtracking when the House Un-American Activities committee held a showdown, closed-door session of their demands to investigate Federal Judge Samuel Kaufman and the Alger Hiss trial.

In fact, the two congressmen almost tripped over themselves denying that they made such demands though this did not come until after some blunt sermonizing by committee colleagues.

"The charges you are making against this judge are little short of outrageous," crackled Democratic Representative Francis Walter of Pennsylvania, "particularly when you use this committee as a political sounding board. Even if the charges were true, this committee has no business investigating judges to satisfy the political grudges of any of its members."

Nixon and Velde fell back on the old defense of being "misquoted" by the press.

"We never demanded that this committee investigate Judge Kaufman," they claimed.

However, representative Burr Harrison of Virginia pulled out the actual newspaper reports of their attacks of Kaufman.

"Newspapers all over the country," he said, "stated that you did demand an investigation of the judge, speaking as members of this committee. That's pretty conclusive to me."

The two Republicans didn't reply. Nor did they dissent when Chairman John Wood of Georgia, with an angry flourish of his gavel, ruled: "Without objection, we will inform the press that it is not the intention of this committee to investigate Judge Kaufman."

New Drug May Provide Relief For Seasickness Discomfort

By Edwin P. Jordan, M. D.
Written for NEA Service

There is an old saying that the person who is seasick first is afraid he is going to die and after a while is afraid he is not. This may be an exaggeration but certainly no one who has had a real experience with being seasick, airsick, or carsick has any pleasant memories of the occasion.

The fact that many adjust to the motion of ship or airplane and get their "sea legs" is not enough. In one recent study of this subject from Canada, for example, it was reported that a serious problem of airsickness existed during flying training.

Eye Important

In this investigation, men were swung back and forth in different body positions. The frequency of "seasickness" symptoms depended partly on the position of the body when it was swung and partly on the way in which the eyes could be used to keep a sense of position. It was concluded that the inner ear was most important but that the eyes played a big part.

Many attempts have been made to find a drug or medicine which would prevent or at least improve the symptoms of seasickness or airsickness. Recently a drug called dramamine has been tried out with highly promising results.

A study of seasickness and the use of this drug was conducted on soldiers traveling on an army transport to Germany. Without going into the details of the study this drug prevented seasickness in all but two of 134 men and relieved the symptoms in 34 others who had become seasick.

In a companion study of the same drug in the prevention of airsickness the results were not quite so good. In this case the drug seemed to cut down on the number of cases of airsickness, but not to prevent it as successfully as was done with the soldiers traveling on the transport.

Note: Dr. Jordan is unable to answer individual questions from readers. However, each day he will answer one of the most frequently asked questions in his column.

Question —Is saccharine harmfull to the body when taken in coffee or tea?

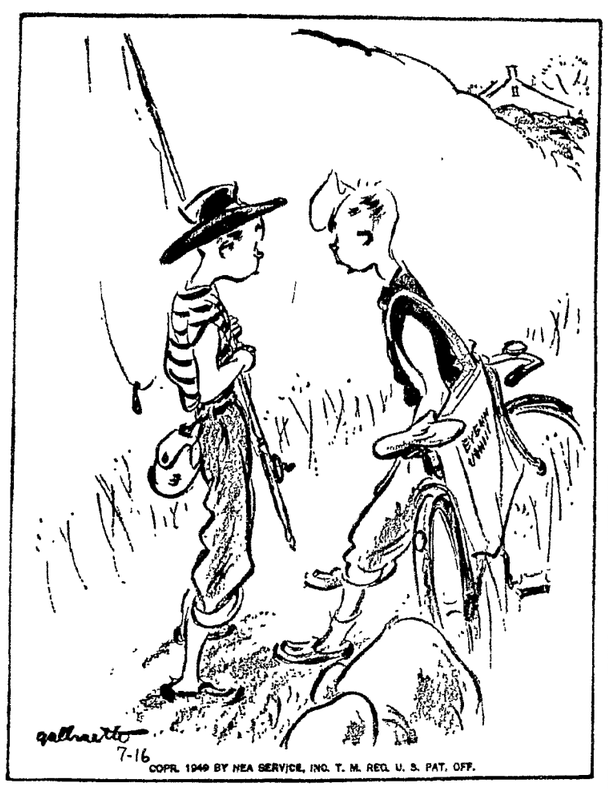

Answer — No. This question has been carefully investigated and there is no reason to believe that saccharine taken in reasonable amounts even over a long period of time would produce any harmful effects.

Men Who Put Off Marriage May Wind Up Regretting It

Perhaps the men are learning what girls have always known.

That if you put off marriage too long—the cream of the crop has already been skimmed off when you get around to looking for a mate.

Here's a letter from a man who figures that is just exactly what he has done.

"I made the mistake of going to college for eight years and securing two degrees. Then I served a period in the army before looking around for a wife.

"Then I found the cream had all been picked off. I am 29 years old, an average-looking fellow, neither fat or lean, neither rich or poor. But to the girls of 19 and 20 I am too old.

"If I had it to do over I would marry one of the cute ones I knew at 18 and let her work while I went to college."

That's exactly what a lot of young men of his generation have done. Married young and let their wives work while they either finished their educations or got a start in a business or profession.

Got "First Choice"

And maybe they were pretty smart at that. They got the "cream of the crop" — at least in their opinion—for they got first choice of the girls their own age.

And now many of them have safely weathered the lean years and are settling down to rearing families.

This, of course, is a fairly recent problem for men. It used to be that a man waited to marry until he could support a wife—and then usually married a girl considerably younger than himself.

Now that many young men aren't waiting until they can support wives (without their help) the young man who does wait may feel left out in the cold.

That, of course, is exactly the reason so many girls are willing to marry a man before he has completed his education or made a start in the world.

They see other girls marrying young and they figure that they'd better grab a husband before the best ones are all taken.

Now, it seems, men may be facing the same problem. And apparently they'll have to meet it in the same way.

CLIPPED ANGEL

By Clive Grierson Cornish, Copyright, 1949, NEA Service

THE STORY: Mike McTaig, a mining engineer, is investigating the drop in production from the Dark Angel, inherited by Cory Parnell from her father. Mike suspects ore thieves, but they have covered their trail by using a nearby mine as a dummy through which the stolen ore is sold. Mike is just about to give up before he discovers that the Argus is being used. Armed with this knowledge, Mike goes to the Dark Angel and discovers that one of the old drifts of the mine still has a rail line that is being used. Mike follows this tunnel and finally reaches an exit, opening into a disused state highway department garage. Here, Mike finds, trucks haul the stolen ore away to the Argus workings. When Mike tells his discovery to Cory, she says she can't go to see what he is found because she is afraid—she's got claustrophobia—a fear of closed-in places.

* * *

XVI

"IT'S crazy," I repeated. "The idea of not being able to go into your own mine because you've got claustrophobia!"

Cory Parnell flushed scarlet. "All right, Mike, I'm a coward. I can't help it. I've tried and tried, but every time I get a few feet past the portal—"

I reached for her hand but she snatched it away. "Cory, you've got me wrong. Claustrophobia's nothing to be ashamed of. Everybody's got something the matter with them. Take me—I'm scared to death of horses."

She brightened up visibly. "Really, Mike?"

I felt better. You hate to see somebody with guts licked by a thing they can't fight.

"What I meant," I said, "was that if people around here know you never go into the mine, how do you expect to keep them on their toes?"

"Because I can trust them."

I groaned. "Cory, don't give me that again. Listen, and I'll tell you what I've been doing."

I gave her the story, leaving out the bit where I nearly got conked off. She heard me out and when she'd thought it over for a few minutes, she came out with something absolutely typical: "Mike, I wish you knew who it was."

Without thinking, I said, "We could find out easily enough. All we'd have to do is sit on the roof of that shed tonight and watch the parade."

"Then let's do it!"

Right then is when I should have put my foot down. I should have pointed out it was risky, unnecessary, and that things had reached the stage where the law should be called in, preferably in the shape of several smart detectives.

I should have told her not to be melodramatic, and generally acted my age.

Instead of that I toyed with a cozy picture of Cory and me sitting close together in the dark for several hours, sharing an adventure, and perhaps the two of us planning our life together. I'll admit I behaved like a romantic idiot—but I liked it.

"Okay," I said, "and any time you'd like a few dozen dragons slain, just say the word."

* * *

LATE that afternoon I said goodby to Uncle Jake and Archie Trask, and told them how sorry I was I hadn't been able to find any ore for them.

I said the same thing to everybody I ran into, and told them, also, that Cory was driving me into Seattle right after dinner. I wanted it known to everyone that Mr. McTaig had taken the hint and was pulling up stakes.

We set out about eight o'clock and when we'd gone about a mile toward Driscoe, Cory pulled into a gravel pit where the car was out of sight from the road.

She knew a trail that led past the far edge of the townsite and we stumbled along in the dark for an hour until we finally came out on the road, just below the shed which the Highway Department had apparently forgotten it owned.

I scouted the ground and noticed both trucks were in the shed, but there were no signs or sounds of activity. I gave Cory a boost up onto the roof.

It was flat and once it had been tarred and graveled, but now it was covered with moss. A foot high parapet was along the front edge and we settled down behind it like a couple of fans in the bleachers.

* * *

A LITTLE before midnight the roof started vibrating and I knew ore cars were in the tunnel. We heard the rattle of ore cascading into the trucks and then it stopped and a moment later the shed doors below us swung open. Somebody stepped out and stood listening for fully half a minute.

"All clear," he said, and it was the voice of Uncle Jake.

Cory grabbed me so hard I nearly yelled.

A starter whirred and a loaded six-wheeler pulled out. It traveled with dimmed headlights and turned along the road in the direction of Argus Mines.

"Who's driving it?" Cory whispered.

I shook my head.

The second truck pulled away and somebody came out of the shed and stood with Uncle Jake.

"You filled that last one a bit too full, Jake"—it was Archie Trask—"the tarp didn't quite cover the load."

"It doesn't matter," Uncle Jake said, "that snoop artist has gone home."

"Yeah, but if any of the stuff spilled on the road it might start someone wondering."

Hal Boyle Says

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK—(AP)—Little Louie, the kid who lives on borrowed blood, has had a good year.

"I don't get as tired as I used to." he said, as he rested on a hospital bed after receiving his 500th transfusion.

Louis was given his first transfusion at the age of seven months when doctors discovered he had Cooley's anemia. This is a rare childhood disease whose victims are unable to fully replenish their own blood.

There is no cure known. They must live on the blood of others or die. And usually they die anyway. But in Louie's wiry 93-pound frame there is a great gusto for living, a stout heart that won't give up.

He is in his 14th year now, and there is a good chance he may yet win his long and tedious gamble for life.

"If we can pull him through until he's 20, he may improve," said Dr. Harvey Gollance, deputy medical superintendent at the Kings County hospital. "There are cases of that kind in the medical records."

Louis is a quick-witted, cheerful, intelligent boy. Somehow he has learned the odds are against him, but he discounts the odds. He's sure he'll make it. And hundreds of New Yorkers who never saw him have helped keep the small, dark-haired kid alive through blood donations to the Brooklyn Red Cross.

He talked about his future as he lay there waiting for his dad to come and take him home.

"When I grow up I'm going to be a radio sports announcer," he confided shyly. "Everybody at school says I got a good speaking voice and I take part in all the plays."

Didn't Do Too Well

Louie didn't do too well in his English studies this year—"They threw adverbial phrases at us, and I can't tell a dependent clause from an independent clause very easy"—but that doesn't worry him He feels, with some justification, that grammar isn't everything in sports announcing.

He used to have to stay in the hospital several days, receiving a pint of blood each day. Now he only comes each Thursday, gets a pint, and goes home.

"I know a lot of the people here now," said Louie, who has become a kind of mascot at the hospital. "After all, I been coming here since I was just a kid."

"Yes, and you tell the doctors now how to give transfusions," smiled Dr. Margaret Rice, a pediatrician. "And some Thursdays you don't come when you should."

Louis squirmed and looked busy. He doesn't like to talk about the times he plays hookey from the transfusion needle.

Too Interested In Baseball

The usual reason is he gets too interested in a baseball game and forgets to go to the hospital.

"I play first base and the outfield," said Louis and added modestly, "Of course, I do a little pitching, too."

He has never seen a major league baseball game, and one of his biggest ambitions is to watch his hero, Joe DiMaggio, knock a home run. He prefers the New York Yankees over the Dodgers—treason in Brooklyn.

"I just like the way the Yankees play," he said. "I like their style better. I saw them on television once."

The 500 pints of blood borrowed by Louie in his short lifetime is equivalent to the amount that flows in the veins of 50 adults. Sometime he'd like to be a donor himself.

"I'd like to help someone the same way people help me," he said.

Women Divert From Program To Talk of Board Sleeping

There is an old saying: "You can get used to hanging if you hang long enough," and maybe the same holds true of sleeping on boards, but some people are just as doubtful.

There are many people who have back trouble who do sleep on boards and that is the only way they can sleep. After you get used to it, it is wonderful, so they say.

The subject of board sleeping came up at a recent women's meeting and some of the women had never even heard of such a thing, and others who had heard of it were curious.

"Do you put the board on top or under the mattress?" asked one woman.

"Underneath the mattress,' someone answered.

"Oh, that isn't so bad," said the woman, "I thought they put the board on top of the mattress."

Just Try It Once

"Maybe you think it isn't so bad," put in somebody, "But you just try it once."

"Well, at least it sounds better to have the mattress on top," insisted the woman.

Then a story was told about going into a room and seeing two mattresses piled on one bed. A guest in the home who had gotten into a bed that had a board in it didn't know what was the matter, so they borrowed an extra mattress from another bed.

"But," insisted a woman with a bad back, "sleeping on a board is wonderful. I couldn't sleep at all until I started sleeping on the board. Of course you have to get used to it, but it really is grand."

Just Stays at Home

"Hmmm," said another woman almost under her breath, "I never put a board under my mattress but I slept for a long time on a davenport in a little apartment we lived in that was definitely a board—and I'll tell the world I never got used to it. I got up every morning feeling like a board myself, just as stiff. My bones ached something terrible."

But when you have to do things, you do them, and people who don't have to do thm never realize how lucky they are.

"What do you do when you go visiting," the woman with the bad back was asked, "take your board along?"

"No," she replied, "I just stay at home."

Boy Who Started Delivering Milk at 11, Now Has Own Dairy

An ambition since early boyhood has just about been realized by Harry B. Young Sr., aged about 31, who, Monday morning begins his own milk route, delivering milk from his own herd. This desire has been in his mind since he was 11-years-old and started "shagging" milk for Glenn Warren, then owner of the Warrencrest Dairy.

Young started delivering milk with Warren at the "ripe-old-age" of 11 years, starting out early each morning, crowding in his school work, and working after school hours. He did his "shagging" until he was fifteen years old when he took over and began driving a truck for Warren.

Rated as Grade A

"I told Mr. Warren many times," Mr. Young said, "that someday I hope to own a herd of good cattle and have a dairy." Continuing, he said, "I have worked hard and saved here and there with the one thought in mind to get some cattle, a farm and start a dairy. The past week I obtained my city permit from Dr. M. E Gouge, milk inspector, who also inspected my cows and barns and he also rated me as Grade A raw milk to be bottled and sold."

Young said that after he left Warren he worked for "Dub" Whitfield in Warrensburg for two years, then went with the Tullis-Hall Dairy Co., in 1935 and was with them until 1940 when he went with the White Valley Dairy for two years.

In Defense Work

In 1942 he went into defense work and remained in this until he entered the United States Navy from which he received his discharge in 1945. Returning to Pettis County, he obtained a farm and for the past three years has been working toward his goal which starts Monday. He secured several fine guernsey cows which have passed all tests required by the state and city.

His farm is located six miles south and a half mile west of the Anderson school house and invites his friends there to inspect his new venture.

Young is married, Mrs. Young being the former Miss Geraldine Louise Chancey. They have four children, Patsy 12, Harry B. Young Jr, 10, Nancy 7 and Joann 3.

BIRTHS

Son, born to Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Lee May, route 1, Smithton, at 9:20 o'clock Saturday morning at Bothwell hospital Weight Seven pounds, two ounces.

Accounting Of Funds Requested

the union, was signed by Circuit Judge Thomas R. Hunt. He signed another order to show cause why the temporary restraining order should not be made permanent. It was made returnable next Thursday morning.

Irving, whose career includes stretches as a semi-pro baseball pitcher, movie extra, railroad and farm laborer, became head of the local in 1940.

The 51-year-old congressman won the Democratic nomination in a field of five last August after a Hollywood flavored campaign. He had the backing of only one of five of Jackson county's party factions, that of James Pendergast. In the election he easily defeated his Republican opponent Richard A. Erickson.

Ask An Accounting

In their suit, the plaintiffs asked an accounting from the defendants of funds received and disbursed since June, 1946. They stated they did not know the extent of the alleged diversions.

The defendants were alleged in the petition "to have authorized and permitted large sums of money to be paid out for political purposes." These purposes, the plaintiffs alleged, included the registration of voters, payment of campaign expense for persons seeking nomination as candidates and the promotion of campaigns for people seeking public office.

A Colorful Figure

The union president, who came here in 1934, made his first public appearance in a labor role as the leader of a grave diggers' strike in 1937. He is a native of St. Paul, Minn., and once claimed he began his labor career by organizing a union of clerks on the Great Northern railroad. He lived in North Dakota for 14 years and for a time pitched baseball in Williston, N. D., for $25 a game.

Later he went to Hollywood where he worked as a movie extra along with the then unknown Clark Gable.

In the 1948 primary he won by a narrow margin of victory over his four opponents. In a campaign directed by a Hollywood press agent he toured the eastern part of Jackson county with a miniature train labeled "Freedom Train." He bought full page newspaper advertisements carrying pictures of himself, his white-haired terrier, "Umbriago" and one of his collection of 300 smoking pipes.

He said his secret of getting votes was "friends, friends, friends."

He boasted that "more people have visited my little white house in Independence than have visited Harry Truman's place a mile away."

Believes Some Do Not Thoroughly Understand Law

Calling attention to the fact that failure to register is a violation of law and makes the delinquent liable to penalty, Brig. Gen. John A. Harris, state director of Selective Service for Missouri, outlined registration requirements under the Selective Service Act of 1948, which he said he believed were not thoroughly understood by all of the general public.

"The obligation to register," General Harris said, "is a continuing obligation and must be fulfilled regardless of whether men are being inducted into the armed forces under the Selective Service Act. The obligation to register is imposed by the Act on every male, citizen or resident, in the United States between the ages of 18 and 26, with only the general exception of members of the armed forces on active duty and certain aliens."

Must Register at 18

The young man who becomes 18 is required to register at a local board office within five days of the date of his eighteenth birthday, General Harris explained, but if he happens to be away from home he need not return; he may register at the nearest local board convenient to him and and the record will be sent to the local board having jurisdiction, even though it is in another state. After he registers, it is mandatory that a registrant keep his local board informed of any change in his address or change in status, the director pointed out. This applies after he becomes 26 as well as before.

Questioned concerning the man who did not register during the designated registration days — August 30 to September 18, 1948— because he was then on active duty in the armed forces, General Harris explained that he is required to register within 30 days of the time he was separated from the armed forces.

Watch Change of Status

"Any person who changes from a status which did not require his registration to a status which does require it must register promptly to be within the law," General Harris said, adding that those who were out of the country on the registration days must register within five days following the date they reenter the United States, which includes Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

General Harris said that noncitizens entering the United States for the first time are required to register at a local board within six months following the date of their entry.

The maximum penalty for violation of any of the provisions of the Selective Service Act of 1948, General Harris pointd out, is five years in prison or a fine of $10,000 or both.

Briefs

PARIS, July 16 —(AP)— A dry summer is cutting into western European crops, but an Associated Press survey shows harvest prospects are still fair to middling.

Short crops would mean a larger proportion of American aid must go into food imports instead of products that help reconstruction.

WASHINGTON, July 16 —(AP)— Senators were informed today that the State Department repeatedly has overruled its visa division and ordered the admission to the United States of foreign officials whose entry had been questioned on security grounds.

Herve J. L'Heureux, chief of the visa division, told a Senate judiciary sub-committee that he had appealed such decisions of the department's "political desk" three to five times in the past five years. In each case, he testified, "higher echelons" rejected the appeal, permitting entry of the officials.

In earlier testimony, a department official said about 10 aliens were admitted despite objections because other factors outweighed the security angle.

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, July 16 —(AP)— The Communist party called today for a no-quarter fight to crush the Czechoslovak hierarchy "our greatest enemy — the church."

A party manifesto which reached western hands declared victory was necessary to complete communization of the nation, especially the collectivization of farms against peasant resistance.

"We want to give good Catholics the opportunity finally to get rid of elements which are damaging us," the manifesto said. "It is not a question of liquidating churches entirely, but of liquidating the church order."

WASHINGTON, July 16 —(AP)—Nearly a dozen Senate Republicans seemed likely today to go along with Senator Taft (R-Ohio) in voting against the North Atlantic pact next Thursday.

Informal checks indicated that more than two-thirds of the party's 43 Senate members will support the treaty. They will be casting their lots with Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich) in a foreign policy split between the two GOP leaders.

Lodge Hears of Vacation Trips

Loyal Rebekah Lodge 260 held its regular meeting Friday evening. The meeting was presided over by the new Noble Grand, Mrs. Fred Anton, Jr.

Interesting reports on vacation trips by Miss Mary Belle Harbit, who had been to Spokane and points in Idaho and other northwest territory; Mrs. Anton who had been to Iowa and Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Kirkpatrick who had been to Salt Lake City and Colorado, were given.

The Rebekah's will join the Odd Fellows in being assistant hostesses at a pep meeting for Odd Fellows and Rebekah's of the surrounding territory at Liberty Park today. The meeting will be called at 2:00 o'clock with music, pep talks and an address by a well known Sedalian to be followed by a picnic lunch to which all will contribute. All Rebekah's, Odd Fellows and their families are expected to join in the meeting.

Progress on Swimming Pools

A progressive report on the Liberty Park and Hubbard Park swimming pools for the past week given by W. R. Blackwell, resident engineer, is as follows:

The drainage and sewer system is completed at both pools. Bricklayers have commenced on the bathhouse at Liberty Park and coping around the edge of the pool, has been completed.

At Hubbard Park, the bathhouse is ready for mason work. Half of the coping has been applied around the edge of the pool. Concrete pouring for the footing of the wading pool has been completed, as was the bathhouse floor. Water mains are in the progress of being installed.

Some of the work yet to be finished at Liberty Park includes installation of re-circulation system, the completion of a wading pool, and sidewalks.

At Hubbard Park, work unfinished is the re-circulation system, and assembly of filters and sidewalks.

Swimmers' Property Reported Missing

Several boys went swimming in Flat Creek, near the water works Saturday. When they had finished their swim, and returned to pick up various articles left in an automobile, they discovered them missing.

Clarence Mullins, 1204 South Harrison avenue, one of the swimmers, reported to police Saturday afternoon the missing articles, a 17-jewel wrist watch, billfold and its contents, pocket knife, and thirty-five cents.

Found Not Guilty

Charles W. Davidson, who was charged with non-support of minor children, pleaded not guilty before Acting Magistrate Earl Crawford Saturday afternoon, and was discharged following a hearing.

Davidson was arrested several days ago.

Mae West Sues on Bathroom Tumble

NEW YORK, July 16—(AP)—Mae West Friday sued a luxurious New York hotel for $250,000 for a tumble she took in her bathroom there.

Miss West alleged a defective floor mat caused the fall.

The actress said in her action, against the Hotel Chatham, that the fall caused her to become "sick, sore, lame and disabled" and prevented her from continuing to earn $3,000 a week as the star of the stage revival of "Diamond Lil."

Pills And Chewing Gum New Weapons For Dental Decay

By Alton L. Blakeslee
Associated Press Science Reporter

NEW YORK, July 16.—(AP)—Now come pills and chewing gums against dental decay.

They are the latest in a variety of new dental products, aimed at cutting down toothaches, that have been flooding into drugstores in recent weeks. Other new dental treatment methods have been developed and many people are getting bewildered by the assortment and claims.

And some dental experts are worried that people are expecting too much. They feel there hasn't been time yet for really thorough tests of how effective the new things are.

Take a look at the line-up:

1. Ammoniated tooth powders and pastes. These are based on the idea that decay is caused by acids formed by the lactobacilli acidolphilus bacteria, or L. A. bacteria for short. These formulas contain diabasic ammonium phosphate and urea to keep the bacteria from growing.

Formulas Vary

These formulas vary. They do reduce the number of L. A. bacteria. As for protectaion against actual decay, researchers who developed one formula said use of the ammoniated powder reduced decay rates by 35 per cent on the average. The tests, running nearly three years, were made on about 150 people, some using the new formula, others sticking to the old. About 82 per cent benefitted, some more than others, they said. Longer tests, on many more people, are underway in at least two states.

2. The pills and chewing gum with the same general ingredients have just come along. The pills are white wafers to be dissolved in the mouth after meals, like after-dinner mints. They are not a substitute for brushing teeth, but are offered as giving some protection immediately after meals when the danger of decay is believed to be greatest. They are said to help reduce the number of L. A. bacteria, and not to be harmful from swallowing the ammonium and urea. But there has not been time to show clearly what they may do against decay.

Effective Tooth Paste

3. A toothpaste containing chlorophyll, the green stuff that gives plants their color. University researchers report it was extremely effective in lowering the L. A. bacteria; even to eliminating them in most people after a time, and in preventing formation of acids. They said it also appeared helpful in combatting two other processes that may cause decay—the action of chemicals called enzymes, and possibly the action of other kinds of bacteria.

4. Chemical roadblocks. Some dentists are testing a method based on the idea that decay is caused by bacteria, invading tiny channels of living matter between the rods of tooth enamel. Two chemicals are applied to the teeth to form a barrier at the opening of these channels. Initial studies report up to 90 per cent reductions in decay. This treatment must be given by a dentist.

5. Fluorine. This chemical element is being added to drinking water, and dentists are applying weak solutions of sodium fluoride directly to children's teeth. After several years of studies, it is credited with reducing decay by up to 40 per cent when applied directly. It appears to help children only.

Has Support

The fluorine attack is supported by the American Dental Association and the U. S. public health service.

As yet, the council on dental therapeutics of the dental association has not approved any of the other new methods. It has accepted three of the ammoniated formulas for clinical tests, which take time.

Meanwhile, some dental leaders are worried about what they call exaggerated stress on preventing tooth decay. Gum diseases and other troubles, not decay, are responsible for most teeth lost today, said Dr. George A. Bruns of Boston, president of the American Academy of Dental Medicine.

The academy decided a national program was needed to destroy an "obsession" over the threat of decay. It also would urge people to pay more attention to general oral hygiene and the first signs of gum troubles.

Tooth decay usually becomes much less common after people reach the age of 35. But gum disorders then start causing much more trouble.

FIRECRACKERS FIRE CONCRETE BRIDGE—Shooting of firecrackers under a U. S. Highway 50 bridge over the Arkansas river north of Lamar, Colo., is believed to have caused the fire which blazed for two hours before being brought under control. Two spans, made of steel girders and concrete resting on wood piling, expanded so much in the heat that they buckled the paving (lower photo) at the bridge ends and may necessitate the structure's complete rebuilding. The bridge surface dropped about four feet. Damage was estimated at from $30,000 to $40,000. (NEA TELEPHOTO)

Machine Age In Agriculture

KANSAS CITY, July 16—(AP)—A new peak in the mechanization of agriculture was reported Friday by Implement & Tractor, farm equipment business magazine.

The magazine gave the number of tractors on the nation's farms as 3,375,919. That is 261,323 more than last year. The figure jumped for trucks and motor cars, too. The magazine reported there were 2,408.098 trucks and 5,332,506 cars on the farms. This compared with 2,191,621 trucks and 4,928,127 cars in 1948.

"According to farm economists, tractor population and farm mechanization are presently at a level which the industry did not expect until 1952," the magazine stated.

Convict Captured; Another Escapes

JEFFERSON CITY, July 16—(AP)—One escaped Missouri convict was caught Friday and another one got away.

Ralph Eidson, warden of the state penitentiary, said Herschel McGrew, 45, a Negro, was arrested at Muskogee, Okla., after being gone from a prison farm since Wednesday.

McGrew was serving 40 years from Carroll county for murder. He waived extradition and will be returned tomorrow, Eidson said.

Meanwhile the highway patrol reported Earl Eugene Dalton, 29, walked away from a prison farm sometime Friday morning. He was serving 10 years from Mississippi county for robbery with a deadly weapon.

Knickerbocker Burial Friday

BOMBAY, India, July 16—(AP)—The body of H. R. Knickerbocker, one of 14 American correspondents and news representatives killed in a plane crash near here Tuesday, was buried Friday in Scots Kirk cemetery.

Also buried after simple graveside services were the bodies of 19 unidentified Dutch and American passengers who were among the 45 victims of the KLM (Royal Dutch Airlines) Constellation crash.

A body tentatively identified as that of Fred Colvig of the Denver Post was interred close to the grave of Knickerbocker, who was a radio commentator for WOR, New York. The bodies of all 45 victims were recovered after a three-day hunt, but authorities said they still had been unable to identify those of Charles Gratke, Christian Science Monitor foreign editor, and S. D. Heath, Newspaper Enterprise Association Correspondent.

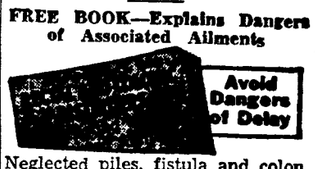

Bodies of 10 of the Americans have been identified and cremated for return to the United States.

Style Guide for today's woman

The newest thing about fall dresses will be the fabrics. Matelasse. slipper satin, and plaid corduroy are new again and most exciting. Gabardines are more popular than ever, although plain corduroy will top the list for the back-to-school crowd and career girls. Corduroy through a new development this year is lighter weight, and color. This newly developed fabric is called "Featherroy" and is really as luscious as velvet especially in the new shades of jade green, American beauty, burnished gold and dull rose. You can't escape having a dress, suit, jacket or skirt from this heavenly material.—Trimming of all kinds are good including buttons, fringe, and metallic thread woven in the fabric and it is especially good-looking in the woolens. The newest novelty trim is burlap in its original color used as crushed belts on a crepe dress. It is wise to shop early—the best workmanship is available on the choice materials.

Step Out With Prints

GIRL SCOUTS

Camping for Brownie Scouts has increased almost as rapidly as Brownie membership itself in the past few years. Not only is camping now anticipated by the children as a definite part of Brownie Scouting, but it is an accepted part of the obligation of every Girl Scout local council and camp committee to make a camping experience available to every Girl Scout under its jurisdiction.

Separate programs adapted to meet their needs, experiences and interests, was provided for the Sedalia Brownie Scouts in a four day outing this week, Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday, at Liberty Park and Thursday at Washington Park. Seventy-three Brownies enrolled and 45 were recognized as four-day campers, in the closing program at Liberty Park, Friday afternoon. Mrs. J. M. Bailey and Mrs. Elmo Harlan desire to express appreciation to the leaders and mothers, who cooperated as staff members with handcraft and transportation, and their skill in handling children of that age as well as their knowledge of camping technique.

Mrs. P. Cecil Owen, Day Camp Chairman, is of the opinion the Brownie Day Camp of 1949 is one of the most successful and well planned camps sponsored by the Sedalia Council in recent years, due almost entirely to the fine spirit of unity of the leaders, who helped with the camp.

At the conclusion of the afternoon, Mrs. F. Emory Bowman led the Brownies in singing, "We are the Brownie Scouts," to the tune of "London Bridge is Falling Down." "Taps," the finale, was led by Mrs. Harlan, with 58 girls in a "Wishing Ring."

Mo. State Fair Patrons to See Auto Racing

At Its Best on Mile Dirt Track; Top Drivers Enter

Thousands of Missouri automobile racing fans, who come to Sedalia every August to attend the Missouri State Fair, are assured of some of the best race driving seen on the local dirt track in many years—in fact, since the driving of the late Gus Schrader was seen in his record breaking drives.

There will be two days of automobile racing, the opening day of the State Fair, which is Sunday, August 21, and the following Saturday, August 27. These events are being arranged by new race promoters, Al Sweeney and Gaylord White, both of whom have built reputations of producing some of the most thrilling races on dirt tracks since the late Mr. Sloan.

Seven Events

Some of the world's most noted drivers will be here to contend for the big cash awards in seven events and time trials, the latter starting the day's events at 1:00 o'clock each afternoon of the races. The race events begin at 2:30 o'clock.

Some of the drivers are "Dapper Deb" Snyder, noted Kent, Ohio, big-car racer and the 1948 National Speedways champion. He pilots his world record-breaking Offenhauser in the State Fair national title competition here. Another red-hot contender will be Frankie Luptow, Detroit speed merchant, driving a brand new Offenhauser. Luptow is bidding for his first national dirt-track title this year.

Bert Hellmueller, veteran Missouri State Fair campaigner, will return. Hellmueller will be remembered as one of the most daring drivers on the local track. He pilots an aviation-engine Curtiss.

Sensational Winners

Bobby Grim, new 24-year-old Indianapolis sensational winner of national speedway features, is entering in the Missouri events. He has a most outstanding record, lowering the track record at Columbus, Ga., last April, beating the IMCA national 10-mile record at Birmingham, Ala., in April and lowering the track record of Emory Collins on the Danville, Ill. race track last May.

Electric timing devices are employed at the race meets promoted by Sweeney and White, thus assuring accurate speeds run in each event.

Holcomb Wins Semi-Pro Game

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., July 15—(AP)—The Holcomb Cardinals launched a 19-hit attack to smother Houston 14 to 0 in the opening game of the 1949 Missouri Semi-Pro Baseball Tournament.

Mel Schwab, Houston first baseman, paced the hitters with five hits in five times at bat. The game was called at the end of the seventh because of the tourney rule which ends the game when one team leads by 12 or more runs.

JEFFERSON CITY, July 16—(AP)—Four games of the state semi-pro baseball tourney here have been postponed because of rain.

A heavy downpour soaked the playing field just after noon.

Scheduled for games today were:

Houston vs. Sullivan, California vs. Jefferson City Tweedies, Jefferson City Redbirds vs. Vienna, and Patton Creamery of Springfield vs. St. James.

Ralph Fall Now At Vidalia, Ga.

Ralph Fall, a former member of the Sedalia Junior Legion and Ban Johnson teams, who was signed with the St. Louis Browns following a tryout camp early in June, is now playing with the Vidalia-Lyons Twins at Vidalia, Ga. This team, sponsored by Vidalia and Lyons, Ga., is at present in third place in the Georgia State league, a Class D league.

Fall was originally signed with the Olean, N. Y., club, but was optioned to the Pittsburg, Kas., club of the K-O-M league. He did not play regularly there, and so was optioned to his present position. Fall is now playing shortstop every day, which he was unable to do while at Pittsburg. He is still the property of the Browns.

Word received from Georgia is that his hitting and fielding is good, and he recently starred in a game by getting two hits for three times at the plate, including a home run.

Attended Skeet Shoot

W. O. Wilson, Roy Burkholder and Carl Wollet went to Kansas City the middle of the week, where they participated in a skeet shoot at Elliott's Gun Club.

A Sedalia Gun Club member reported when the smoke cleared away, one Sedalia shooter found he had hit the target three times out of 25 shots.

Sedalia Merchants Defeated Concordia

The Sedalia Merchants kept their winning streak intact by beating Concordia there Friday night by a 4 to 1 score.

The Sedalia team played good ball to enable Norman Thompson to hold the Concordia club to four hits, while the Merchants were hitting in the clutches to obtain six hits off the offering of Deke, the Concordia hurler.

Sedalia scored twice in the first inning on a hit by Swisher and scoring on Carver's double. Norman Thompson connected for a long triple to centerfield to score Carver.

Missouri is High in Small Game Harvest

JEFFERSON CITY, July 16—(Special)—Missouri is a leading state in the annual harvest of small game, according to field bag checks made by the Conservation Commission.

The figures place last year's legal take of quail at 2,200,272 birds, a number which, according to available information, ranks Missouri as one of the leading quail states in the nation.

For the amount of time and effort spent by hunters, the Ozark plateau produced a higher percentage of kill.

As for rabbits, 4,086,630 of them were taken in 1948, not counting the commercial live rabbit harvest. The western prairie region of the state produced the largest percentage of the total harvest.

Squirrels are high on Missouri's small game list. Last year, 2,292,449 of the bushytails were taken, of which 62 per cent were fox and 38 per cent greys.

Ohio ranks close to Missouri in small game. In 1946, hunters of that state bagged 4,606,000 rabbits (Ohio has no commrecial rabbit harvest), and 1,505,000 squirrels.

Unknown Youngster Wins A National Championship

By a score of 5 and 3, 20-year-old Ken Towns of the Crystal Springs course of Burlingame, San Francisco suburb, clearly outclassed William C. Betger, 26, also of San Francisco, in a scheduled 36-hole playoff.

Blues to Meet J. C. Mohawks At Housel Park

Team Records of 9-3 and 15-3 For the Season

The Sedalia Blues will tangle with the strong Jefferson City Mohawks, a colored team, at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at Housel park.

A victory in today's game would make the Blues' record stand at 10 wins and three losses. Only one of these losses was at home, and the other two defeats were by one run—5 to 4 at Mendon, with Vernon Kennedy pitching, and 7 to 6 at Marshall.

Jefferson City comes to Sedalia with 15 wins and three losses, also having lost two of their games by a one-run margin. The Mohawks' roster includes several former players of the Monarchs and Cleveland Clowns.

Either Turchek or Rapp will start on the hill for the Blues, with Don Weller behind the plate. Smith, Payne, or Green will start for the Mohawks, with White catching.

Sport Scraps

By D. KELLY SCRUTON

SEDALIA will not be host to the 1949 Missouri Semi-Pro tournament, which isn't news, and the fact we lost it isn't too good for the sports activity here. However, if rumors are true, one could hardly blame C. C. Howe, Commissioner, for the move after getting what is reported from Jefferson Citians, a guarantee of $1,500.

There has always been a discussion as to whether it was or was not good for baseball in Sedalia. Personally I always thought it added color to baseball here, helped baseball when local teams played good teams, and most certainly it was good advertisement for the city.

Maybe next year we might make a bid for it and get it back. Sedalia is the logical place for such a tournament and when the 1949 meet is over the proof will be there.

THE Sedalia Athletics are entered in the tournament again this season. The A's were runner-up last year and hope to win the honors this year at the Capital City. Three local merchants have taken over the sponsorship for the tournament play and opened their pocketbooks to help secure some excellant players to help win it if possible.

E. W. Thompson, of the Thompson Chevrolet Motor Co., Leroy "Dutch" Kirchhofer of the Pacific Cafe, W. C. Cramer and Carl Schrader, of the Cramer-Schrader Co., have joined together in an endeavor to assist Manager Vincent Siegel to get the players needed.

Baseball minded as these gentlemen are and like seeing good teams on the field, they are endeavoring to put the name of the town at the top of the tournament with a championship team.

THE Inter-City golf tournament which was played on the Sedalia Country Club course, the past week brought much praise from the golfers on teams from the other cities, on the local course. How much they enjoyed playing in Sedalia was exhibited by some of the "hot-rock" scores made during the play. Incidentally, Columbia's team scored 289½ points for a total of 1210½ to win the 1949 tournament.

It was an excellant tournament with plenty of spirit being shown in the contests, played not only in Sedalia but also Columbia, Fulton and Jefferson City. The finish rolled around with the Capital City team second to Columbia with 20 points difference. Sedalia was third with 989 and Fulton fourth with a 930 score.

The interesting fact of this tourney is that these four cities have competed against each other for the past forty years.

Paul Leslie, Jefferson City, thrilled the players with a 70, two under par, closely followed by Sedalia's Charlie Patterson with a 71, which included four birdies.

An interesting feature in regards to Leslie, in the four matches totalling 72 holes, the high calibre of his playing was demonstrated. In each city 18 holes were played and his record was 9 strokes under par having pared 55 holes, birdied 13 and going over par on only four holes.

Color to the tournament has been added with the presentation of the trophy by Damon Hieronymus, president of the Country Club. Mr. Hieronymus explained it has been donated by one of the former players on the Sedalia team, John McGrath. Permanent possession will not be made until one team has won it three times.

For the record on local players on the team:

	Score	Points
C. Patterson	71	32
Hieronymus	76	26½
Sherman	77	27½
Owens	79	30
McGrath	80	30
Gorrell	81	26½
G. Patterson	81	26
Darr	84	20
Yount	85	29
Martin	87	22½

The team will leave at 6:30 o'clock from the Pacific Cafe

12-to-1 Shot Wins Upset in $100,000 Race

Solidarity Takes Gold Cup Handicap From 'Big' Horses

By Bob Myers

ARCADIA, Calif. July 16—(AP)—Solidarity, a 12-to-1 California-bred colt, put the big name horses to shame today when he rolled in to win the $100,000 Hollywood Gold Cup Handicap.

Billed as the world's richest horse race, with its net purse of $100,000 to the winner, the golden upset was staged before a sweltering throngs of 40,535. Solidarity soundly whipped 10 rivals in this 10th renewal of the western turf fixture.

Tied Seabiscuit's Record

Further confusing the experts, the strapping bay colt whipped cross the line with peppery Ralph Neves aboard to tie the track record at Santa Anita park set by the mighty Seabiscuit when he won the Santa Anita hundred-grander in 1940.

The time for the mile and one quarter was 2 minutes 1 1-5 seconds.

Second, a length and a quarter back was the Maine Chance Farm's pace-setting Ace Admiral. The Argentine horse, Pretal rushed in for a surprise third.

An Undignified Procession

Trailing, in undignified procession behind, were Abe Hirschberg's Dinner Gong, Harry Warner's Honeymoon, On Trust from the E. O. Stice stable, James Tigani's highly regarded Double Jay, the more popular Vulcan's Forge, Miss Grillo and longshots Amble In and Roman In.

Solidarity is owned by blonde Mrs. Nat Goldstone of Beverly Hills, wife of a motion picture executive.

The colt paid the handsome price of $24.80, $8.50 and $6.10; Ace Admiral, coupled in the betting with On Trust, paid $4.10 and $3.20, and Pretal $9.00.

Solidarity, the son of Alibhai, was bred by Louis B. Mayer, who collected $10,000 as the winning breeder.

Dodgers and Yankees Lose Saturday

Dodgers Lead Cards 1½ Games; Yanks 5½ Over Indians

NEW YORK, July 16—(AP)—The National league leading Brooklyn Dodgers and the American league pace-setting New York Giants both lost today, but only the Yankees lost ground.

Brooklyn dropped a 7-6 decision to the Cincinnati Reds, but retained its game and a half advantage over the runner-up Cardinals when the Philadelphia Phillies defeated St. Louis, 4-2.

In losing, 4-2, to the St. Louis Browns, the Yankees saw their lead over Cleveland shrink to five and a half games as the Indians overcame the Philadelphia Athletics, 7-3.

Boston Gains A Game

The Boston Red Sox also gained a full game on the Yankees, trouncing the Detroit Tigers, 11-1, to advance to within a half game of the third place Athletics. The Bosox trail the Yankees by eight and a half games.

Chicago's White Sox moved to within a game and a half of 7th place Washington by whipping the the Senators, 5-1. The Boston Braves retained their hold on third place in the National league, walloping the Chicago Cubs, 9-1.

Pittsburgh Wins Doubleheader

Pittsburgh swept both ends of a doubleheader from the New York Giants, 9-0, and 7-6. The second game went 11 innings.

Walker Cooper's second homer of the game sunk the Dodgers. It came in the top of the 10th with one mate aboard.

In a game that was limited to five and a half innings because of a heavy rain, the Browns finally beat the Yankees getting all their runs in the first inning. Roy Sievers batted in two with a bases loaded single. Errors by outfielder Johnny Lindell and shortstop Phil Rizzuto helped St. Louis tally the others.

Indians Vanquish A's

Jim Hegan's three-run homer, and some nifty relief pitching by Gene Bearden and Satchel Paige helped the Indians vanquish the A's. Bearden and Paige gave up two hits and no runs between them in seven innings, with Bearden getting credit for his sixth victory.

Mel Parnell had an easy time winning his 12th game for the Red Sox. He spaced four hits while his mates got 13 off three Bengal hurlers. Ted Williams, Bobby Doerr, Al Zarilla and Birdie Tebbetts cracked homers for the winners.

Second baseman Cass Michaelis batted in four runs with a double and single to lead the White Sox to their victory over the Senators. Bob Kuzava pitched a six-hitter for his fifth victory.

14-Hit Cub Attack

The Braves combined a 14-hit attack and a neat six-hit effort by long John Sain to gain their win over the Cubs, and first baseman Elbie Fletcher hit a home run for the winners. It was the seventh win for Sain, who has lost nine this year.

The Pirates belted seven homers off Giant pitching, six of them coming in the first game. Outfielder Wally Westlake, who added another in the second game, smashed two in the opener.

Pitcher Vic Lombardi, acting in the role of a pinch hitter, dropped a looping single in short right, to score Stan Rojek from third with the winning in the 11th inning of the nightcap. The Giants had forced the game into overtime, overcoming a 6-0 deficit with two runs in the seventh and four in the eighth. Johnny Mize, Henry Thompson and Bob Thomson homered for the Giants.

A group of seven, each with a score of 3½-1½, included L. J. Isaacs. Paul Poschel and Joseph Shaffer, all of Chicago; Philip Le Cornu and Dr. Bruno Schmidt, both of Detroit; Dr. G. A. Koelsche of Rochester, Minn., and W. M. Byland of Pittsburgh.

Junior Legion Plays Lebanon

The Sedalia Junior Legion Post 16 team will leave at 11:30 o'clock this morning from Smith-Cotton high school to go to Lebanon, where they will meet the Junior Legion team at 2:30 o'clock.

This game was originally scheduled for Friday night, but was postponed because of rain at that time. Lebanon defeated Sedalia 5 to 4 in a game played here earlier in the season. Today's game will not be a league game.

Manager Cecil Glenn is working the Sedalia aggregation into shape for the zone tournament which stads Friday at Kirksville. No information concerning what teams Sedalia will meet in the tournament has been received yet by the local club.

Waitkus to Be Dismissed From Hospital

Following Shooting; Glad to be Out and Wants to See Team

CHICAGO, July 16—(AP)—Eddie Waitkus, the 29-year-old bullet-punctured Philadelphia Phillies' first baseman, says tomorrow'll be a red letter day.

Tomorrow, he plans to leave Billings Memorial hospital and fly to Philadelphia. It will be the end of more than a month in hospitals. And—"Boy, I'm telling you hospital life is driving me nuts." he says.

Eddie takled to newsmen today and seemed glad of the opportunity. He's been kept pretty quiet most of the time since he was shot June 15 by an addled woman fan. She is Ruth Steinhangen, 19, who has been committed to a mental hospital.

"I want to see the Phillies play, but I probably won't be able to get to the park until Monday," Eddie says. "Haven't seen a ball game recently because I haven't been able to get the television set working right. Couldn't get the aerial set us here."

Waitkus, an honorary member of his league's squad, heard the American-National league all-star game, though, on the radio, and it didn't make him happy." They always pull something you would not do in high school," he groaned.

Eddie still doesn't know whether he'll get into uniform this season. They removed the bullet from near his spine a week ago.

"I've still got a couple of drain tubes in me, and they'll stay in a couple of weeks," he said.

Ben Harleman Tough to Beat

KANSAS CITY, July 16—Ben Harleman, the 1949 champion midget auto driver at Kansas City's Olympic stadium, is practically out of the running for the current title, but he's likely to have a big say about who succeeds him.

In second division of the top ten in point standings, Harleman finally has found the car and the touch that should bring him several 25-lap classic victories before the season ends.

Ben Harleman

Ben placed second in both his heat race and the 15-lapper last Sunday in the famous Orange No. 77 Offy, driven last year by the late George Binnie, who was rated one of the greatest midget drivers in the nation.

Harleman will again be at the wheel of the Binnie No. 77 at Olympic Stadium Sunday night. Time trials start as 6 p.m. and heat races at 7 o'clock.

Vito Calia of Kansas City, the early pacesetter at Olympic Stadium, tightened up the lead in the point standing—based on dollar earnings—last week by winning his second classic of the season and must be considered among the favorites at Olympic this Sunday.

"Bud" Ward, Former Amateur Golf Champion, Turns Pro

SPOKANE, Wash., July 16—(AP)—Marvin (Bud) Ward of Spokane, twice national amateur golf champion, is playing for cash from here on out.

Ward announced this morning he has accepted a job as professional at the Meadowlark Country Club at Great Falls, Mont., The one-time Walker Cup player said his contract with the Montana club will allow him to make the tour of professional tournaments for at least two months each winter.

Parker Meets Gonzales for Tennis Title

National Clay Court Championship Match At Chicago Today

CHICAGO, July 16— (AP) —Defending champion Pancho Gonzales did a neat semi-final job today to bracket himself with Frankie Parker—as entirely expected—for a national clay court tennis title showdown tomorrow.

Top-seeded Gonzales gained the payoff round by outslashing third-seeded Vic Seixas of Philadelphia, 6-2, 5-7, 6-4, 6-1 in the masculine half of two semi-final singles at the River Forest tennis club.

In the feminine division, another defending champion, Magda Rurac of Los Angeles brushed aside Rosemary Buck of Dallas, Tex., in straight sets, 6-2, 6-4.

Women's Championship

Magda's championship opponent tomorrow will be Beverly Baker of Santa Monica, Calif., who got past the semi-final round yesterday. as did Parker.

It took Gonzales almost two hours to discourage Seixas. who perked considerably in the second set when, with the score 5-all, the Philadelphiaian broke Gonzales' serve and won the set, 7-5. That set was the longest of the match, requiring 45 minutes.

However, once Pancho got things under control with his bullet-like services and net-rushing tactics, he took the third set handily and needed only 20 minutes to polish off Seixas in the final set.

In Parker, five times winner of this meet, Gonzales will meet his Wimbledon doubles championship partner. Parker yesterday also was extended by his semi-final opponet, Herb Flam of Beverly Hills, Calif., before winning 6-3, 7-5, 6-3.

Chiefs Play at Chillicothe Tonite

The Sedalia Ban Johnson Chiefs have a busy schedule for this week, with games slated for this evening, Tuesday night, and also Thursday night.

Today the team will leave at 4:00 o'clock from Cal Rodgers' service station, Fifth street and Osage avenue, to go to Chillicothe where they will play a B-J league game at 8:15 o'clock. Jim Egbert will be the starting pitcher with either Barbour or Whitworth behind the plate.

The Chiefs will be out for their third win of the second half of the B-J season tonight, having won previously from Columbia and Mexico, but losing to Moberly.

Tuesday night, the Chiefs will play a league game at Boonville, beginning at 8:15 o'clock.

Thursday night, a game will be played at Liberty park with a B-J team from Kansas City. The Katz team is desired for the game but arrangements are not completed yet for the contest.

Trotlines Below Dams Are Serious Problems

JEFFERSON CITY, July 16—(Special)—The problem of trotlines below dams—and particularly below Bagnell Dam impounding Lake Ozark—is seriously perplexing the Missouri Conservation Commission.

The Commission is being swamped with complaints from hook-and-line fishermen against trotlines strung in the legal 75 yards below the dam on the Osage river. The lines, the anglers charge, foul up hooks, wrap around paddles and at times even snag boats, not to mention taking too many fish.

Most of the protests to date have been based on this particulr area and the problem does not seem so great elsewhere. At the present time there are no regulations barring the use of trotlines below dams other than the 75-yard rule applying to all types of fishing. At Lakes Wappapello and Clearwater, neither bank lines, throw lines, trotlines nor boats may be used within 700 feet below the spillway wing walls.

SIX OF THE MEN WHO HELP YOUR STANDARD OIL DEALER KEEP YOUR TANK FILLED

America used 18.9% more oil last year than in 1945, our peak war year—and yet, although a shortage had been feared, there were enough petroleum products for everyone last winter. This summer, with automobile travel at an all-time high, you can still get all the gasoline you want.

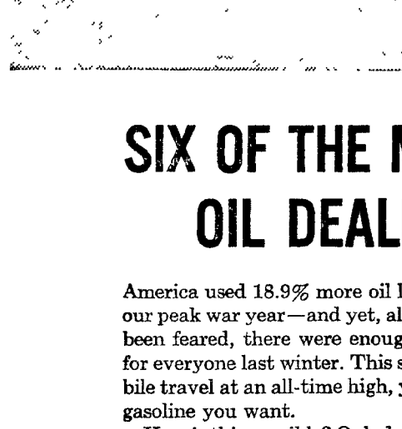

How is this possible? Only because the great efforts of the entire petroleum industry made it possible. Through teamwork, this company and its subsidiary companies have set output records in each of the last three years.

Standard Oil works as an integrated team, from the oil well to the service station. That's why we were able to bring you more oil: because we work together from the ground up to find oil, to bring it out of the earth, to carry it to refineries, to make it into useful products, to distribute those products to convenient locations in your community.

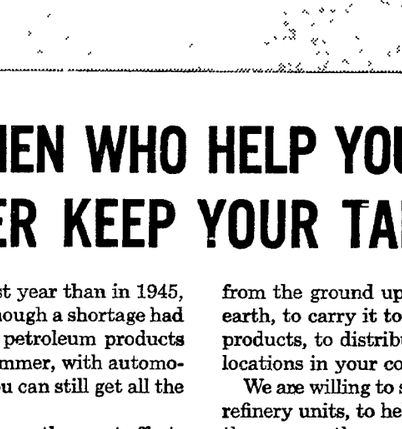

We are willing to spend for new oil wells, pipe lines, refinery units, to help keep you supplied. In the last three years, these costs amounted to more than twice our net earnings.

We have the manpower—48,000 employees, from geologists to tank truck drivers. Like the independent businessman who fills your tank at his service station, each of these men is important to your gasoline supply.

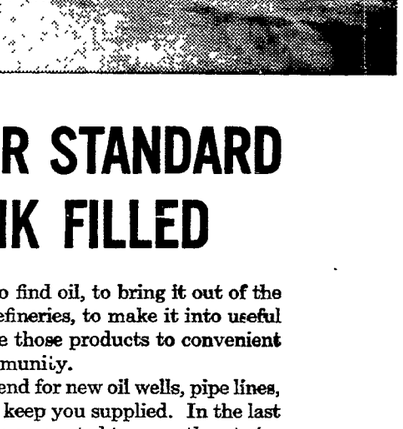

STANDARD OIL COMPANY (INDIANA)

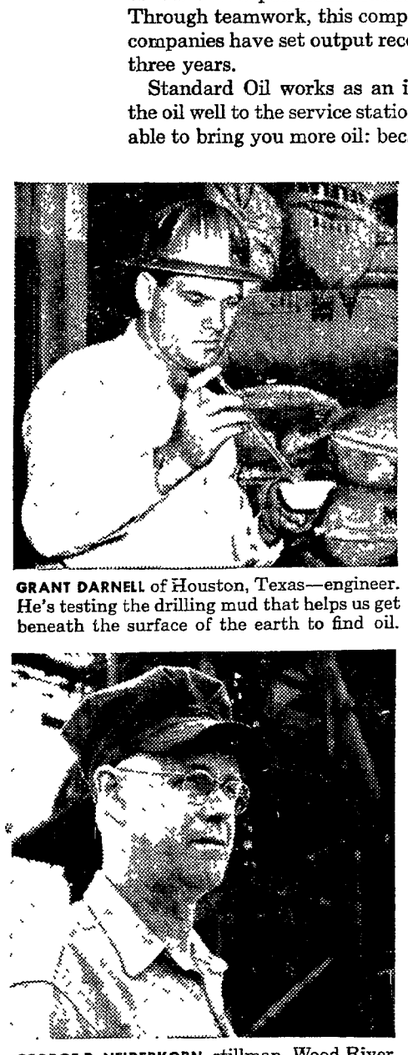

GRANT DARNELL of Houston, Texas—engineer. He's testing the drilling mud that helps us get beneath the surface of the earth to find oil.

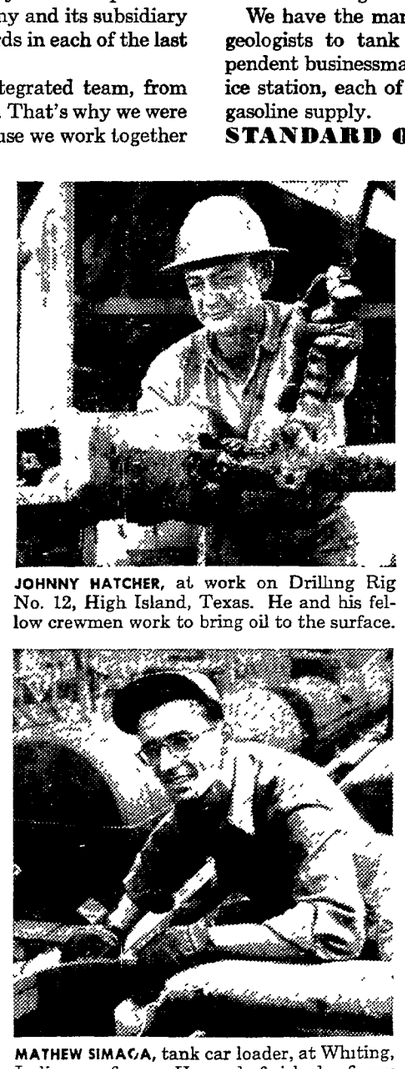

JOHNNY HATCHER, at work on Drilling Rig No. 12, High Island, Texas. He and his fellow crewmen work to bring oil to the surface.

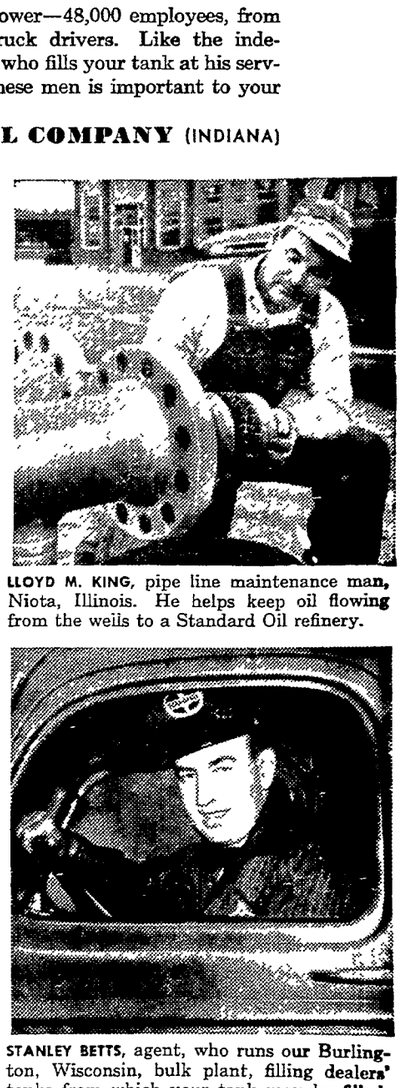

LLOYD M. KING, pipe line maintenance man, Niota, Illinois. He helps keep oil flowing from the wells to a Standard Oil refinery.

GEORGE P. NEIDERKORN, stillman, Wood River, Illinois, refinery. The huge catalytic cracker he helps run, converts gas oil into gasoline.

MATHEW SIMACA, tank car loader, at Whiting, Indiana, refinery He sends finished refinery products to Standard Oil bulk plants.

STANLEY BETTS, agent, who runs our Burlington, Wisconsin, bulk plant, filling dealers' tanks from which your tank may be filled.

Waldorf Experts Minister To Many Famed Palates

By Cynthia Lowry
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK, July 16 —(AP)— The Duke and Duchess of Windsor love spinach. Former President Herbert Hoover won't tolerate onion or garlic in his food. Clare Boothe Luce likes dainty portions. Warren Austin loves apples.

But th late Maharajah of Kapurthala was the fanciest eater of them all. He gave sumptuous dinners, but insisted on eating alone.

That's the way Rene Black sizes up the palates of some of the famous people whose menus he has supervised. Black, a Frenchman trained in old world hotels, is manager of the six restaurants in New York's famed Waldorf-Astoria. One of his many jobs is the handling of special menus for occupants of the Waldorf apartments, where so many world-famous names live while in New York.

He leaned back in his swivel chair, twirled his mustache and prepared to discuss the subject he loves: Good food prepared for people who know the joys of fine eating.

Like Simple Food

"The Duke and Duchess," he began, "like simple food when they are by themselves, but they are particular. For dinner alone they like roast chicken with a puree of potatoes and two vegetables—spinach or sorrel. Then a cheese with a glass of claret or white wine. After dinner a brandy with a demi-tasse.

The royal menu is considerably more elaborate for a dinner party. Then the couple would start with cocktails, with which is served caviar—set up at a buffet so the guests can have all they want. Dinner itself starts with a clear soup, then a plain broiled fish served with lemon butter. The main dish is apt to be capon or roasted filet of beef. Baked potatoes are preferred, plus two green vegetables. Salad is served as a separate course—with a slice of Virginia ham. Dessert is usually a mousse of ices or a hot souffle.

Hoover Likes Soup

"Mr. Hoover also is a simple eater," Black said. "He keeps away from rich dishes. He loves soups and an almost inexhaustible variety are presented to him. He keeps away from onions and garlic and prefers steak, boiled and braised beef. He likes good vegetables and his dessert choices are water ices or a bread-and-butter pudding or rice pudding, but without too much rich flavoring."

Mrs. Luce, former congresswoman, playwright and author, enjoys elegance at the table, Black says.

"She insists on haute cuisine, and through her travels has acquired a viewpoint of the gastronome," he said. "She especially likes miniature and dainty portions—but it is immaterial to her whether the piece de resistance is beef, veal, mutton or fowl. She has a good palate and appreciates the distinctiveness of cooking."

Magazine publisher Luce, her husband, likes a simple meal, but "eats in a hurry."

Conversation Important

"He likes nice things, but conversation is more important to him than putting food in his mouth."

A typical Luce dinner would consist of a fruit cocktail or melon, lamb chops or filet mignon, green vegetables, potatoes. Then a salad, followed by ice cream or cheese.

Warren Austin, head of the U. S. delegation to the United Nations, is a "great amateur of simple food, well cooked, on time, served in small quantities — but hot," said Black.

"He likes a good tomato soup, good fish, chicken or beef and he loves plain boiled potatoes and salad. Also he gorges with fruit, especially apples—sometimes with cheese."

But Black really becomes lyrical when talking of the Indian maharajah.

"He was," said the food expert, "the most finicky gourmet of the age. He liked to eat his dinner before his guests so he was certain that it was perfect."

A Favorite Dinner

Here follows, with some interpolations, a favorite dinner of the Indian potentate:

"It would start with caviar spread on roasted onions over little pieces of deviled melba toast. The dough for the toast would have mixed cinnamon and black pepper in it. Then would follow a consomme of chicken broth with turtle meat.

"After that trout, seven inches long, completely boned, cooked in red wine and stuffed with wild rice and shrimps previously mashed but freshly cooked.

"Then lamb chops St. James. They were divested of all fat, covered with bread crumbs mixed with parmesan cheese and sauteed in butter. When half-cooked they were allowed to cool. Ten minutes before serving they were covered with yolk of egg mixed with cayenne pepper and a puree of goose or capon liver cooked with reduced in Madeira wine. This was placed on the broiler with truffles of small size.

"The piece de resistance was chicken or capon, sliced in the kitchen and reformed to be presented in its entirety. Under the skin was apple sauce mixed with yolks of egg and lemon juice, which had been inserted before cooking. When finished the stuffing has 'blown' and the bird is twice as large as it was before.

No Potatoes

"There were no potatoes — or bread and butter—for the maharajah objected to anything overfilling. He claimed bread and butter are obstructions to digestion.

"He served a romaine salad in its simplest form—but with the inside and outside leaves in separate bowls, and the dressing separate, too. The salad was eaten with the fingers, and dipped into the dressing.

"Finally, there was a souffle of fruit—cherries, grapes, figs, dates or something extremely sweet. Or a peach stuffed with macaroons enrobed in a meringue, all placed on a block of water ice and ice cream. Or a puree of chestnuts, cooked in a light syrup, served with small napoleons of honey and almonds. With this was served strong coffee."

Black sighed with sheer delight and prepared to eat his own luncheon. It was a dish of rice, with two golden figs atop, and a cup of warm milk.

"No conditiments for me," he said. "It is not natural."

Eight Camels Last Straw On Shrine Jubilee Back

By William G. Garry
NEA Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO — Where to billet eight camels is giving this town a headache.

With this lone exception, Chicago is set to handle the biggest convention in its history — the 75th jubilee of the Ancient Arabic Order of the Mystic Shrine.

When about 50,000 Shriners hit town July 18, the convention committee headed by the general chairman Joseph A. Downey will be able to guarantee everyone a place to sleep and plenty to eat. Quarters have been found, too, for the 250 horses which will be ridden in the spectacular eight-hour parades on July 19 and 20. But those camels!

Shriner Charles A. White, custodian of the armory where the horses will be stabled, wants no part of the hump-backed "ships of the desert."

"I can't keep those camel patrols here," he told Downey. "Camels hate the sight of horses an dwould fly at them like mad Besides, they bleat at night. And they don't smell too good."

Dismissing the camel problem, the Shrine committee has everything under control in its convention quarters in the Palmer House.

A reception committee will meet the delegates at the stations and escort them to their hotels. A guide service will escort conventioneers to meeting places. And at night a special 300-man police detail headed by Shriner-Captain Walter Storms will keep the visitors out of trouble.

A highlight of the convention will be the Soldiers' Field address by Shriner Harry Truman on July 19. Another will be the induction of Harold Lloyd, star of the silent screen, as Imperial Potentate of North America. He will succeed Galloway Calhoun of Tyler, Texas.

With those relatively simple details arranged for, Downey and his aides can now concentrate on the one dilemma confronting them —where to batten down those camels.

JOSEPH DOWNEY: 50,000 delegates and eight camels.

Buena Vista, Where 33 Aged Persons Make Their Home

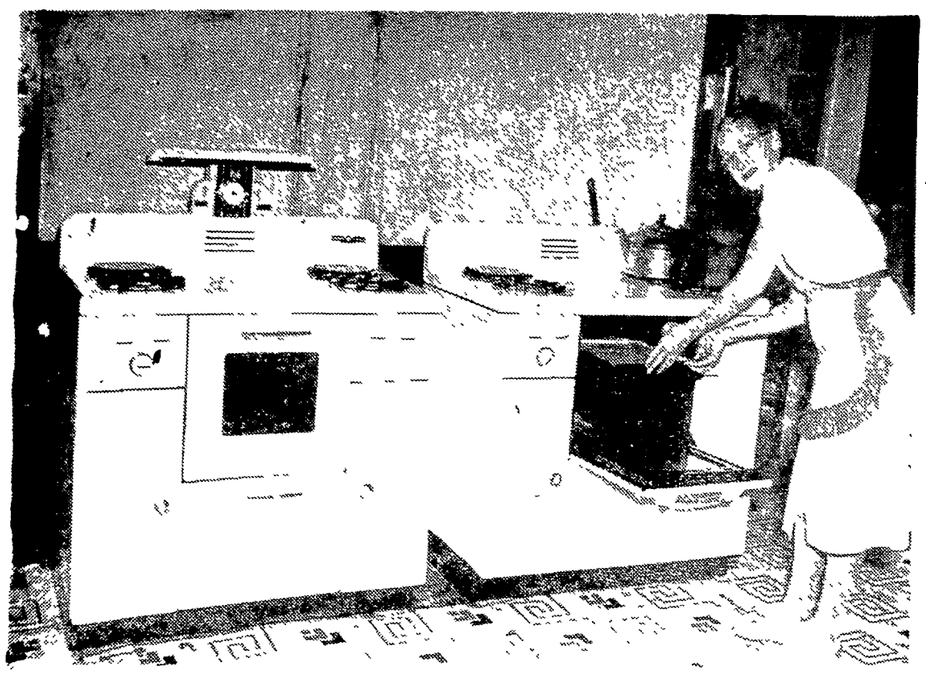

Buena Vista—operated by 11 board members who formed the corporation, Pettis County Association for Social Service, last November, provides shelter for 33 inmates of Pettis county. The home is always kept in neat appearances. (Photos by Bill Padgett)

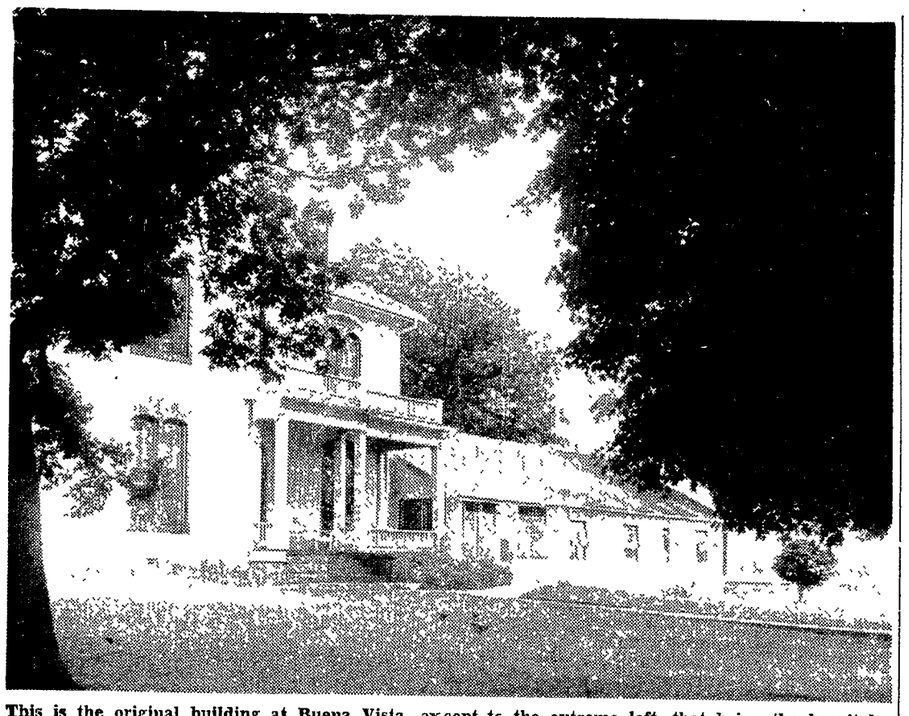

Pictured is the newly decorated and furnished lounge room. This room is utilized by the inmates in many ways, such as, reading, sewing, radio listening, and visiting with friends and fellow inmates. Sedalia organizations use this room for varous entertainments and refreshments.

Pictured is a portion of the men's quarters, consisting of three single rooms and two dormitories. The building is located in the rear of the main building, where the women reside.

Mrs. W. F. Wasson is shown putting a cobbler in the oven of one of the new bottled gas stoves, recently acquired to take the place of an old-fashioned coal range. Mrs. Wasson is in charge of preparing the meals, and doing other household chores.

This is the original building at Buena Vista, except to the extreme left, that being the hospital wing, recently added. The house sets off from the road a few hundred feet, making Buena Vista stand good for its name, a beautiful view.

Buena Vista is comprised of about 80 acres of land, located 3½ miles north of Sedalia on the Grand Avenue road. It was formerly known as the County Home, until it was leased by a corporation which was formed in November 1948 by 11 board members, who call themselves the Pettis County Association for Social Service.

This organization operates the Buena Vista home by non-political and non-profitable means. The board is headed by Harry E. Lindstrom, president, W. F. Keyser, vice-president, Mrs. M. E. Green, secretary, and Earl T. Crawford, treasurer.

Three committees are set up to keep the organization running smoothly. The employment committee consists of Riley Lee, Fr. A. J Brunswick and W. F. Keyser The farm operating committee is composed of Richard Lower, chairman, Edwin Heffernan, vice-chairman, and Olen Monsees. Rev. J. Fred King is chairman of the guest committee, assisted by Roy Bryson and Mrs. M. E. Green.

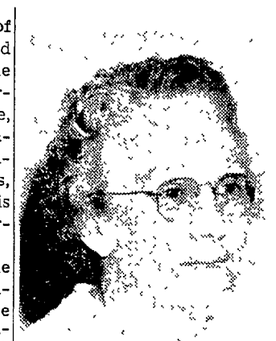

Capacity for Fifty

Fifteen women and 18 men are now residing at Buena Vista, but there is a capacity for 50 inmates. Twenty-four of the total people there are old-age pensioners. Nine inmates are wards of the Pettis county court. The organization provides its residents with room, board, some clothing, medical attention, laundry and miscellaneous, such as tobacco for the men and candy for the women.

A happy contented family and enthusiastic help dwell at Buena Vista. Some of the inmates know no other home, having lived at Buena Vista when a small child. One particular woman now living there, came to the home in 1912 with her mother. The youngest inmate is 49 years of age, with the oldest being 91 years.

Woman Superintendent

Mrs. Ethel Knelle is general superintendent of Buena Vista, and is doing a fine job, looking after the old persons and keeping them happy. She took over the supervision duties when the home was taken over by the board. Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Wasson, formerly of the State of California, are employes, Mrs. Wasson being in charge of preparing the meals, and household duties, while Mr. Wasson is the farm hand They have been at Buena Vista since March, 1948. Mr. Wasson is an expert farmer and a hard worker, awakening as early as 3:00 o'clock some mornings to work the fields. His

Mrs. Ethel Knelle, general superintendent, since she came to Buena Vista in November is well liked by all the inmates. She has a capable way of handling all of the Buena Vista family.

Own Products

Three Jersey and three Guernsey cows produce all of Buena Vista needs for milk, butter and cream. Eggs and meat are provided with a flock of over 300 chickens. Twenty-two hogs are ready for butchering when needed, in addition to four little arrivals now over three weeks old. The mother of the pigs is a registered Poland China sow. An Angus bull calf was born the same day as the pigs. Two steers are being fattened for beef this winter. Four horses and a three-months old colt roam the fields. One horse and the colt are owned by Mr. Wasson.

"Daisy Mae" has started a family. A pair of rabbits was given to Buena Vista by Mrs. M. E. Green. Within two months Daisy Mae has increased the family to fourteen, and the family is expected to double within another month. According to Mr. Wasson, the rabbits make better eating than fried chicken.

Nice Garden

Two acres of land is in garden with nearly every type of vegetable planted. Besides this year's garden vegetables, much of last year's canned fruits and vegetables are stored in the basement, in addition to a 50-gallon barrel of sour-kraut that was put up this year. Long rows of fruit orchards and blackberries will provide fruit to eat this winter. All the canning will be done by Mrs. Knelle and Mrs. Wasson.

Besides all these good things to eat grown at Buena Vista, 30 acres of oats, 16 acres of corn, and 10 acres of hay are planted. The oats are ready for harvest, and the corn is looking good.

Many Improvements

Many major and minor improvements have been undertaken since last November. A lounge room was built with all the furnishings added, and two gas bottled stoves replaced an old fashioned coal range. An automatic gas heater was installed A hospital wing was built. Five of the rooms are being used by women, and one is reserved in the event of sickness. The women use two dormitories and five single rooms, and the men, who have their sleeping quarters behind the main building, have two dormitories and three single rooms. The women's quarters are heated by gas, while coal stoves are used for the men's quarters. There are two dining rooms in the main building, one for the women and the other for the men.

Their Own Chapel

A chapel is located on the north side of the main building. Services are held every Sunday afternoon at 2 00 o'clock ,and are conducted by a different minister each Sunday.

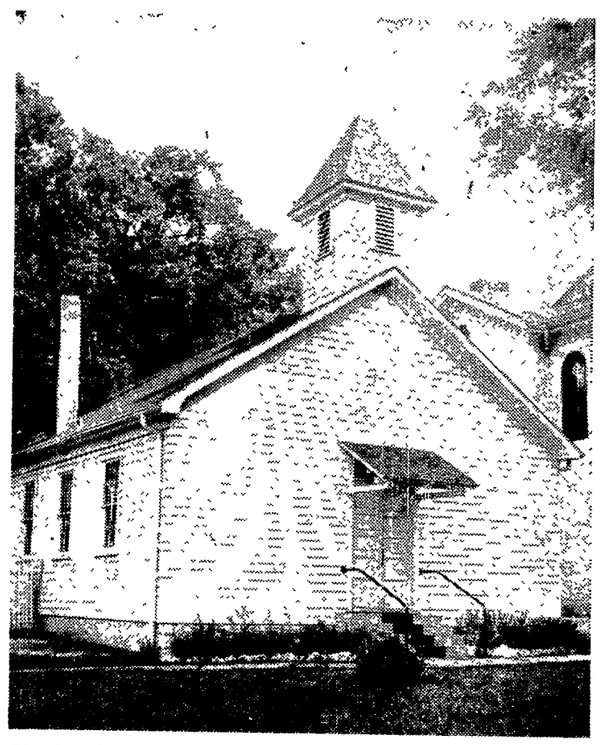

The inmates are proud of the new lounge room. Here they read, listen to the radio, converse and relax In this room various organizations in Sedalia entertain the old folks and serve refreshments. The lounge room is also known as the guest room.

Agitation Is Art, Says "Pravda"

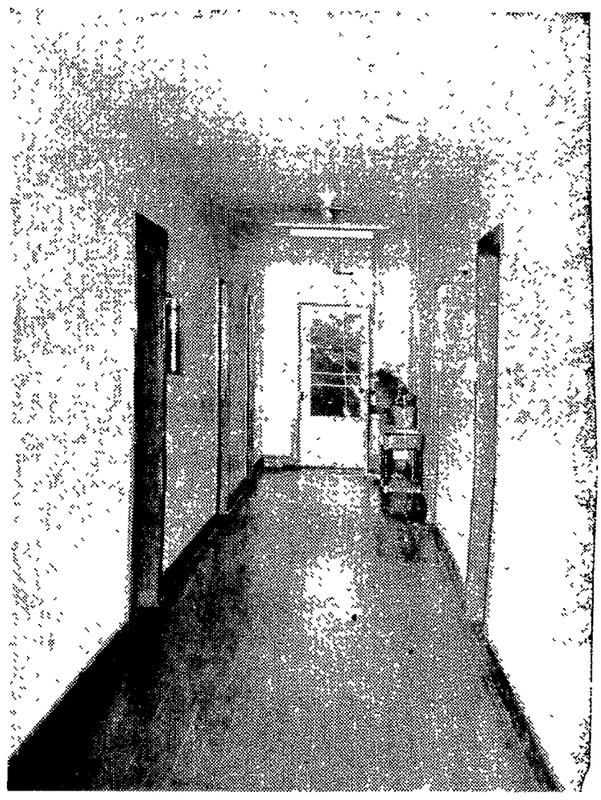

MOSCOW — (AP) — Agitation, "Pravda" says is an art.

"The ideological level of Bolshevik agitation," said "Pravda," "is being continually raised." "But," it added, "it is not in the Bolshevik tradition to rest on past achievements. New problems demand further improvement in political agitation, demands an increased sense of responsibility and better qualifications in agitators."

"It is not only, however, a matter of teaching the agitator to elucidate complex questions simply and understandably and to select for his talk the most instructive facts. The art of agitation lies also in avoiding the commonplace and being able to approach different strata of the population differently."

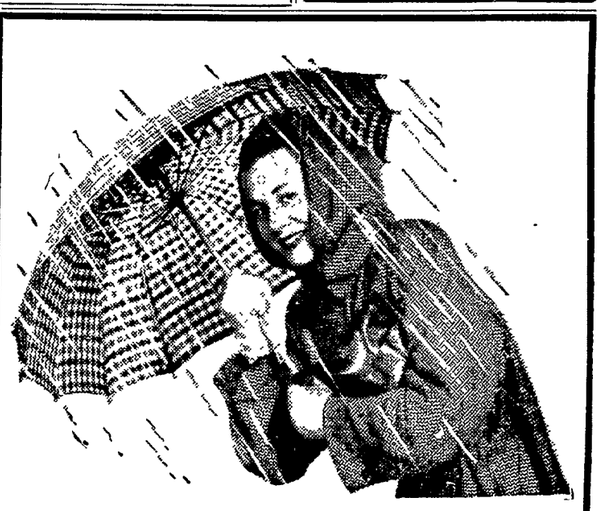

The inmates have only to step out of one building next door to attend church services every Sunday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock. The Buena Vista chapel is adjacent to the main building. Church services are conducted by the Ministerial Alliance, and Sedalia ministers take turns every Sunday in religious services.

This is the hospital wing, comprised of six rooms. Five rooms are used by women inmates, and the other room is held in reserve in the event of sickness. The hospital, as well as the main building is heated by gas, while coal stoves are used in the men's quarters.

Tribesmen Cho p Each Other Up For 'Good L uck' Medicine

LONDON, July 16—(AP)—Tribesmen of African Basutoland have revived a jungle ritual of chopping each other up to make "good luck" medicine.

An alarmed British government is sending Cambridge Professor G. I. Jones there next week to study the problem. He is chief lecturer on native tribes and their ancient customs at the university.

A spokesman for the British commonwealth relations office, which is in charge of this primitive area, said there had been nearly 20 such slayings in the past year.

The spokesman gave this explanation:

It seems the Basutos believe they can derive certain marvelous new powers—either spiritual, political or sexual—if they brew a medicine of which the principal ingredient is some portion of a human being they have just killed.

So they wait along a linely footpath in the wild bush until the hapless victim comes along. They clout him over the head with a club and proceed to cut off the victim's nose or a bit of his flesh. They brew this in a secret medicine and either drink it or scatter it around the household, depending upon what kind of powers they are asking for.

One tribesman recently sold his brother to a local chieftain for $400. Then the chief's gang waylaid the brother and made some potent medicine out of him.

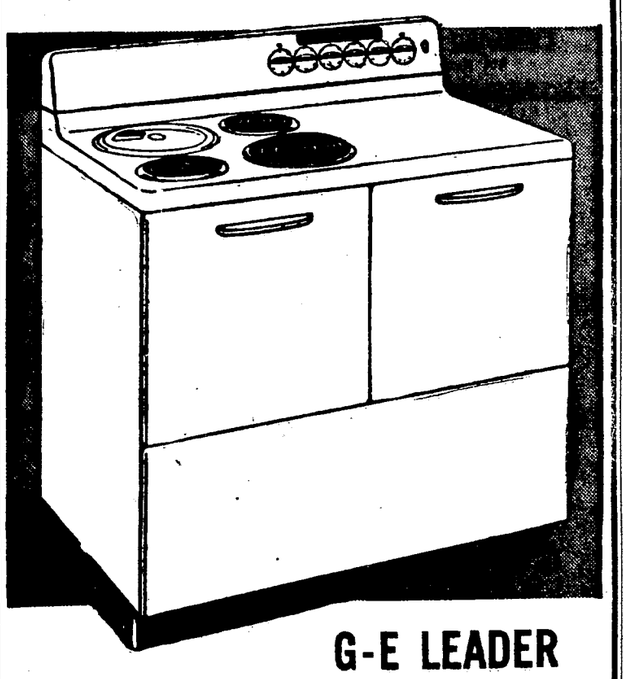

Prof. Jones, the spokesman added, is not going as a detective to find out who is committing the murders. His job is simply to find out sociologically and anthropologically what has caused the sudden outbreak in a custom that had been nearly stamped out among the 500,000 peoples of the tribe.

Opera Delayed For Invalid Boy

ST. LOUIS, July 15—(AP)—The Municipal Opera was delayed ten minutes tonight to permit 15-year-old Jerry Turpin of Jefferson City, an invalid, to be on hand for the start of a performance of "The Chocolate Soldier."

It was the first time in the 31-year-old history of the opera that it had been delayed for a reason other than rain.

The boy, bedridden for the past year with a serious spinal ailment, was the guest of the opera management and the Missouri Pacific Railroad Women's Club.

The ambulance bringing him here from Jefferson City had a blowout en route, delaying his arrival. An opera fan and a music student since he was five, Jerry had frequently expressed a desire to see the opera here.

As the ambulance drew into the parking lot, the boy's mother exclaimed "he is one of the happiest boys you have ever seen."

His stretcher was placed on a rolling frame and wheeled into a box, where he watched the performance with obvious enjoyment.

After the performance, principals of the cast and some of the stars of next week's show visited Jerry and offered their autographs.

Girl Builds Her Dances Around a Feline Theme

NEW ORLEANS, July 16—(AP)—Ever watch a cat stretch and walk gracefully away?

Lilly Christine did — and what she saw has made her the recognized challenger of the long reigning specialty dancers of the nation.

It was about a year and a half ago when the beautiful blonde from Buffalo, noted the charm of a cat's grace. She decided to build her dances around a feline theme.

Now, billed as "The Cat Girl," she is packing them into night clubs over the country.

The tawny, 21-year-old dancer uses a slow, provocative rhythm that has brought her rave notices in newspaper reviews and trade magazines and more than a thousand cat figurines from fans all over.

Lilly is no stripper. She wants that understood. She begins with the minimum, so there isn't anything she can remove and stay within the bounds of the New Orleans law which requires at least a bra and a G-string.

Hopes to be Tops

Watching the fortunes of other specialty dancers who have reached the top, Lilly hopes to fare even better than most of them.

For one thing, she and Leon Prima, brother of bandsman Louis Prima and owner of a New Orleans night club, plan to open three night clubs in Miami, New York and New Orleans as the beginning of a Lilly-Cat club chain. These, she says are to open in the fall.

With the night club trade in a seasonal slump, she is using her time now to plan for them after concluding a successful return engagement at Prima's 500 club here.

This summer she will be on her farm near Buffalo, N. Y., enjoying a bit of horseback riding, golf, tennis, swimming and sun bathing.

Vacations seem especially good to night club dancers, she says, because they don't have to sleep all day to be ready for the nightly grind. Besides, she can be with her mother and father during the day, instead of seeing them only at the end of the night's work when they call at the club to take her home.

Enjoys Sports

Then, too, summer sports are good for her figure, although she has little trouble retaining her present proportions: Five feet 6½ inches, 128 pounds, 35-inch bust and hips and 24-inch waist.

Baptized Lilliana Christina, the girl who anglicized the name given her by parents of German, Swedish and Italian extraction, prefers dancing in night clubs to working in films or on the stage.

It was fun working in "My Wild Irish Rose" and "Two Guys From Texas" in the movies and with Bert Lahr on the stage in "Burlesque," she says, but night clubs are much better.

"The audience is smaller and closer. I feel nearer to the people and can get their reaction," Lilly says.

Looking at you with her deep blue eyes, Lilly tells you she doesn't smoke and she doesn't drink, but she does have a drink named for her.

It's called the Lill Cat-nip and the recipe is secret, but it contains about everything you could put in a mixed drink without giving the customer an enforced cat nap.

After all, who wants to nap when Lilly Christine dances?

Could this be love? William Bendix wants to know. Bob Hope isn't sure, but lovely Segne Hasso is happy about the affair. Scene from "Where There's Life." Showing this Sunday and Monday at the 50 Hi-Way Drive-In Theatre

Drunk on Duty—It's Duty

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. —(AP)— Three Miami Beach policemen recently sat down at a table with a fifth of 100-proof bourbon and got drunk—with the blessing of their superiors and in the interest of science.

The trio were serving as guinea pigs for the city's new "drunkometer," a device for measuring the extent of intoxication. All drank two, four and 10-ounce shots of bourbon, then breathed into a sterile balloon. The alcohol content was rated at .180 or better in each policeman—.150 is considered drunk.

They agreed it was a staggering ordeal.

Interpretation of Vatican Order on Communists

By James D. White
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

Put yourself in the shoes of a Polish peasant.

He is a Catholic and a devout one in a land where a relatively small body of Communists controls virtually every phase of his day-to-day life.

He is forced, of necessity, to have contact with the Communist propaganda, if only through reading official orders of the government. Assume he has learned of the Vatican excommunication decree, through his diocesan authorities, forbidding him to expose himself to Communist doctrine.

Is he faced with the necessity of disobeying the government and depriving himself of a living? From a literal reading of the decree excommunicating Communists and forbidding Catholic contact with them, this might appear to be the case. However, the effect probably would be to make his contact with his parish priest closer than ever.

Priest Could Judge

The parish priest, his confessor, would have the authority to judge what this peasant could and could not do if he wanted to avoid the risk of cutting himself off from the sacraments of the church.

The crux of the matter is the conscience of the peasant, as his priest most likely would instruct him. Reading government notices which vitally affect his everyday life would not constitute wilful disobedience. Exposing himself knowingly to Communist propaganda would.

He is inevitably caught between two systems of supreme authority. The church holds itself supreme in all spiritual matters. A Communist government claims supremacy in temporal affairs, and wants authority over church affairs, too.

Sort Wheat From Chaff

What the peasant must do is sort the wheat from the chaff, with the assistance of his spiritual advisor. He must now learn what he has to reject and what he may accept.

To good Catholics, this can be a matter of spiritual life or death To citizens of Communist countries, it can be life or death, period.

The Vatican has unsheathed its supreme weapon—and the Communists have asked for it. They have attacked the church in all the countries of eastern Europe, and even in northern Korea.

The Communists have had a lot of experience at this. The Russian Orthodox church exists today, partly because the Soviets found they could not wipe out religion without wiping out the people who follow it—and partly because the orthodox church in Russia adjusted itself to Soviet rule.

Rebellion May Have Begun

This is not to say the Roman Catholic church of today is like the Russian orthodox church that bowed to the Soviets, except that both are churches and churches that are made up of people.

Widespread rebellion may already have begun in Czechoslovakia, for instance, as Catholic peasants support their priests who are victims of Communist campaigns against them. It may spread, weaken the Communist hold in such countries, and alter the political face of eastern Europe.

On the other hand, if Communist control is strong enough, local church groups may have to adjust themselves if they are to live.

In any case, the Vatican's order seems to mean that as far as it is concerned there is to be no compromise in the religious phase of the cold war.

Rice Deteriorates In Relief Work

BANGKOK—(AP)—Rice sent for relief of suffering residents of the southern provinces of Thailand (Siam) have undergone a corruption process before reaching the starving.

OFFERS EYE—Paul Richter, 46, Kansas City, Mo., reads a calendar on the opposite side of the room as he offered to sold his good left eye for $5,000 in order that his ailing wife could spend her remaining days on earth "in peace and comfort." Richter, an unemployed painter, made the unusual offer as a last desperate hope to prolong his wife's life. "I've been plagued by bad luck since a youth," Richter said, "and I have about reached the end of my rope." Richter's right eye is slightly impaired because of an accident a few years ago.

For Hennings As Candidate

ST LOUIS, July 16—(AP)—The St. Louis Central Democratic committee adopted a resolution last night urging Thomas C. Hennings, Jr., to run for the U. S. Senate in 1950.

Hennings, a former congressman, was a guest of honor at a dinner given by Jules J. Schatzman, a broker.

All but two of the city's 28 wards were represented at the dinner and only two of the committeemen present declined to vote for the resolution. They said they wanted to consult first with their ward organizations.

The resolution was introduced by John K. Regan, committeeman for the 17th ward, who termed Hennings "an ideal candidate" for the senate.

Old Age Pensioners Should Have July Checks by Monday

JEFFERSON CITY, July 16—(AP) — Missouri's complaining old age pensioners should have their July checks by Monday.

Gov. Forrest Smith announced plans today to get the delayed checks in the mail tomorrow by using emergency postoffice crews.

The checks — about 124,000 of them—normally go out the first of the month. They average around $42 But this month the legislature did not pass the necessary appropriation bill until July 1, the first day of the state's new financial year.

The money bill is expected to be signed tomorrow by the presiding officers of the House and Senate, then it will be rushed to the governor for his immediate signature.

The envelopes are stuffed and the checks are ready to go as soon as the governor acts. Many pensioners have complained about the delay.

Aid to dependent children and general relief checks also have been held up They will go out at the same time tomorrow, giving the local postoffice 162,992 checks to handle. The governor said extra men will be working to get the big volume of mail started on its way promptly.

Altogether the welfare bill carries $196,100,050, including $112,278,006 in federal matching funds and the rest in state money.
